

'Right-turn-on-red'

Law seen as effective throughout most of Illinois

(Illinois' right-turn-on-red law has been in effect for a year now. United Press International reporter Jeffery Shuler surveyed some of the state's major cities, asking traffic officers how it has been working.)

Illinois' new "right-turn-on-red" traffic law seems to have lived up to its notices in most areas of the state.

As expected, the law speeded up traffic during its first year on the books. And fears it would result in a rash of pedestrian injuries seem to have been groundless.

"Good" is the word downstate police departments use most often in describing the effect of the law in their areas:

"It's been good for us" — Lt. Walter Mounce of Bloomington.

"It's had a good effect here," — Sgt. Lavern Pickett of Rockford.

"In my opinion, it's good," — Lt. John Maxwell in Quincy.

Only Chicago's First Deputy Superintendent Michael Spiotto complained about the law which was passed in 1973 and put into effect on New Year's Day, 1974.

"The benefits of this new law, in our experience, is very questionable," Spiotto said. "As far as we're concerned, we're better off without the right-turn-on-red."

Spiotto said he checked with his traffic division officers and, while he has "no empirical data to support this... we've had an increase in injury accidents."

The major problem, he said, is the motorists' failure to yield the right-of-way to pedestrians before turning through a red light.

"We've had innumerable complaints from pedestrians who feel their safety is being jeopardized, especially around schools," he said.

Cities are empowered, by terms of the law, to ban the turns at any intersection. Many, including Chicago, have prohibited them at crossings where such maneuvers would be dangerous.

Moline Sgt. Bill Fisher agreed with Spiotto that his department has had "a lot of pedestrian complaints, especially at school crossings."

But, Fisher said, he has only seen about three accidents related to the new law, out of about 2,100 total mishaps for the year.

"As far as I'm concerned, it's an overwhelming success and it really moves the traffic," Fisher added.

Others agreed the new law has speeded the movement of traffic — particularly in downtown areas.

Maxwell reported "a couple of accidents" in Quincy but only one involving a pedestrian. "The law was designed to move traffic and that's what it's doing," he said.

Pickett said Rockford police have also had "a few complaints from pedestrians who say they're not being yielded to." But over-all, he said, "the effect here has been real good."

Mounce said Bloomington has experienced "minimal" accidents as a result of the new law and "now it's really moving traffic."

Other cities reported even fewer problems. Belleville Police Sgt. Gene Bolz said his community has seen "no noticeable increase in accidents." Peoria patrolman Charles Lyons said he knows of not a single ticket issued for failure to yield. And Springfield traffic officer Mary Weichert said her department abandoned separate record-keeping for right-turn-on-red accidents and violations because "there weren't enough to make it worthwhile."

Lyons said the law has proven so effective in Peoria that "it's reduced our tie-up situation by up to 10 minutes and has eliminated a lot of the blockage of side thoroughfares."

The law provides specifically that a motorist, after stopping at a red light, may turn right without waiting for the light to turn green. He must, however, yield to any cross traffic and to any pedestrians in the intersection.

Venezuela takes control of 2 U.S. firms

Venezuela formally took over holdings of two American steel companies Wednesday but President Carlos Andres Perez said his government was not using iron and oil as instruments of retaliation and confrontation. Perez raised the Venezuelan flag on Bolivar Hill, to symbolize the nationalization of the operations of U.S. Steel and Bethlehem Steel. Perez said the U.S. trade bill which affects Venezuela and other members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries "offends our country" and creates a climate of confrontation which threatens world peace.

No comment on Brezhnev illness report

The Soviet foreign ministry Wednesday refused to comment on Cairo reports that Communist party General Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev has been confined to bed in a sanatorium. "We will not comment on any such reports," said ministry spokesman. The reports said Brezhnev's state of health was the main reason for the announced indefinite postponement of his Jan. 14 trip to Egypt, Syria and Iraq.

A bus full of holiday skiers plunged off a winding road in the Japanese Alps Wednesday and floated on the waters of a lake for a few seconds before it sank, killing 23 persons. Police at Omachi, 125 miles northwest of Tokyo, said another 36 passengers and the driver escaped and swam to safety before the bus went down in the chilly waters of Lake Aoki.

U.S. Attorney General William Saxbe has been asked to see that Chicago gets $76 million in federal revenue sharing funds that have been denied the city in a federal court ruling. The Chicago Bar Association, in a letter to Saxbe this week, said Chicago desperately needs the money. "It (withholding the funds) can have serious consequences: to the city and all its residents in that it will raise financial problems that may interfere with the continuing operation of programs relating to public health and safety," the CBA said in its letter.

Police using an armor-plated "anti-riot" vehicle arrested 42 persons early Wednesday and dispersed 1,500 New Year's revelers who began throwing rocks, bottles and beer cans at officers along a strip of Fort Lauderdale Beach. The incident was the third New Year's in a row that police have broken up unruly crowds which have poured out of beach-front bars into the streets along a four-block stretch of highway A1A. Last year, 27 persons were injured in a New Year's riot.

Justice Douglas suffers a stroke

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Justice William O. Douglas, who has served on the Supreme Court longer than any other man, suffered a severe stroke while vacationing in Nassau and was rushed Wednesday to Walter Reed Army Hospital in serious condition.

Douglas, a staunchly liberal member of the court since his appointment in 1939, was reported resting comfortably in the intensive care unit of the medical center.

A court spokesman said Douglas suffered a "cerebral-vascular accident" — the medical term for a stroke. Douglas had a pacemaker implanted in his chest six years ago because the rate of his heartbeat was abnormally slow.

Douglas was stricken on Nassau Tuesday night and taken to Princess Margaret Hospital. President Ford was notified of the stroke by Chief Justice Warren Burger and dispatched an Air Force plane to take Douglas' doctor to Nassau and to bring the Justice and his wife Cathy back to Washington.

Douglas, though a noted outdoorsman, hiker and nature lover, has paid the price on occasion for his activities.

He cut down on his mountain climbing as he neared his 70s, saying "I've had amebic dysentery three times and that takes some of the motivation out of traveling."

All Douglas' colleagues on the court who are in Washington have been notified, a court spokesman said. Burger telephoned some of them and asked that they contact the others.

Douglas took his seat on the court in 1939 when he was 40 and has been a justice longer than any other in Supreme Court history.

He has always been known as a non-conformist and — particularly since Burger became chief justice in 1969 — as a dissenter.

Off the bench he has tended to speak out forcefully on subjects of public concern, especially foreign affairs. He labeled America's post-war Asian policy as "bankrupt."

He has been among those taking the Central Intelligence Agency to task for excessive secrecy and what he called improper interference in the affairs of foreign governments.

Only a few days ago it was reported that Douglas' telephone had been tapped by the CIA. His office said he would have no comment on the subject.

Douglas always has believed the Constitution was written to protect the poor and the helpless.

His clearcut views have brought predictably liberal decisions. They won him many friends and at least as many enemies in business and politics. He lived to see his ideas accepted by a majority of the court and rejected once again under Burger.

Douglas was chosen to the bench by President Franklin D. Roosevelt, the youngest appointee in 128 years. Last year he surpassed Stephen J. Field's record of 34 years.

JUSTICE DOUGLAS

4 of 5 Watergaters found guilty

Archibald Cox, whom Nixon fired on Oct. 20, 1973, as special Watergate prosecutor because of his insistence on continuing a court battle to obtain the then-secret White House tapes, refused comment on the verdict.

James F. Neal, chief trial prosecutor who once prosecuted former Teamsters Union president James R. Hoffa for the Justice Department, announced he was resigning immediately to return to law practice in Nashville, Tenn.

"It's not a happy occasion," Neal told reporters. "We prosecuted as fairly as we could and as vigorously as we could."

Ehrlichman and his wife Jeanne stood with their arms around each other in front of the courtroom after the verdict.

Only six months ago, Ehrlichman was found guilty of conspiracy and two counts of lying to a grand jury in the 1971 Labor Day weekend break-in at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist in Los Angeles. He was sentenced to 20 months to five years in prison on those counts and also has been disbarred from law practice in his home state of Washington.

Parkinson, the only one of the five cover-up defendants to be acquitted, said he was going home to take a hot bath.

"I've always had great faith and hope and it worked out," he said.

The jury of nine women and three men reached their verdict at 4:25 p.m. after three full days of deliberations. On New Year's Eve they celebrated at their sequestered quarters at the Sheraton Park Hotel with a dinner of clam chowder and chicken stuffed with ham.

The verdict, certain to be appealed, was the climax of the scandal that began with the June 17, 1972 Watergate break-in and ended in Nixon's resignation a little more than two years later after he had won re-election to a second term by a vote of landslide proportions.

When the grand jury indicted the seven original Watergate conspiracy defendants, Nixon was listed as one of 20 indicted co-conspirators. Besides the five who actually went on trial, two others were indicted.

Charles W. Colson, a White House political operative, pleaded guilty to another Watergate-related crime before the trial began, and Gordon C. Strachan, a Haldeman aide assigned to the Nixon campaign committee, successfully bid for a separate trial.

City of Chicago records 968 murders for the year

by United Press International

A record 968 murders were reported in Chicago in 1974, eclipsing the previous year's high of 865, police said Wednesday.

A drifter identified as Glen Bladen, 23, who was shot to death in a South Side alley, was the year's last homicide victim.

At least four new murders were reported early Wednesday in the nation's second largest city.

In the first double homicide of the year, Darlene Linzy, 23, a registered nurse and wife of policeman James A.

Linzy, was charged with shooting to death two teen-aged girls in a South Side tavern.

The dead were identified as Linda Goodrum, 19, and her friend, Sharon Donaldson, 18, both of Chicago.

Police said the shootings followed an argument over a carelessly thrown cigarette butt. Patrons said one of the girls threw the stub at an ash tray on Mrs. Linzy's table. A long argument ensued and one of the girls allegedly slapped Mrs. Linzy.

Each girl was shot once in the chest with a .38 caliber revolver, police said.

Ford names Lynn as budget director

People

• President Ford named Housing Secretary James T. Lynn, 47, his new budget director Wednesday with chief responsibility for shepherding the administration's big, red-ink spending program through the incoming Democratic Congress. If confirmed by the Senate as expected, Lynn will succeed Roy L. Ash, who is returning to private life... Ford, who celebrated a quiet New Year's Eve with family and friends, "slept in a little" Wednesday morning and then wound up his work-ski holiday at Vail, Colo., with a final run on the ski trails. Later in the day he got a phone call from French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing in Paris wishing him a happy new year.

• Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., who underwent a kidney operation Dec. 20, was discharged from a Tacoma hospital in time to be home for New Year's. His doctor pronounced the possible presidential contender to be in the best of health.

• It was a working holiday in Cape Town, South Africa, for Dr. Christian Barnard who celebrated New Year's by performing the world's second double heart transplant operation. The patient was reported in excellent condition, and there have been no complications.

• Queen Elizabeth Wednesday knighted movie great Charlie Chaplin, novelist P. G. Wodehouse, West Indian cricket star Gary Sobers and Roger Bannister, the first man to run a four-minute mile. Jockey Lester Piggott, who rode many of the Queen's horses among his

3,900-plus winners, was given the Order of the British Empire as was Angela Baddeley, 70, who plays the grumpy cook in the television series "Upstairs, Downstairs."

• Although he portrayed a penny-pincher during his entertainment career, comedian Jack Benny actually was generous in his private life. Benny, who died of cancer Dec. 26 at age 80, was equally generous to charities in his will. Two valuable violins — one of them a $100,000 Stradivarius — were willed to the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra and other bequests left to the Motion Picture Country Home and Hospital and the Los Angeles County Museum of Art. The bulk of his multimillion dollar estate was left to his widow, Mary Livingstone, an adopted daughter and a sister.

• During his walking campaign through Utah, Democratic Sen. Jake Garn vigorously attacked government spending — and found after the election that he had to pay his own moving expenses from Salt Lake City to his new home outside Washington, D.C. So yesterday Garn was wheeling toward the Capitol in a 24-foot rented truck with furnishings for his home. He estimated the do-it-yourself move saved him $3,000.

• Jacob "Papa" Adler, Jewish journalist and author who wrote under the pen name of "B. Kover," died at age 102 in St. Petersburg, Fla.

• It was supposed to be a drug raid. But Zion, Ill. police and Lake County sheriff's deputies were not prepared for the 15-foot python and the assortment of other snakes they found in basement cages. Police raided the home of Donald R. Kimmell, 23, and charged him with possession of controlled substances, marijuana and wild animals. Kimmell and his snakes were all jailed — in separate cells.

INSTALLING NEW LIGHTS in the stairwells and tackling major cleaning projects kept the custodial staff busy at Forest View High School while students took a two-week winter vacation. It was all work and little play not only for custodians but also for administrators, who waded through paperwork in preparation for the next school year.

Time to 'wash, wax, repair, replace'

School chiefs, custodians work while pupils vacation

by DOROTHY OLIVER

While you're up to your eyebrows in holiday partying, school custodians are up to their elbows in soapsuds and school administrators have had it "up to here" with paperwork.

The traditional two-week winter break, "salvation" for students, is just another couple of weeks of work for some of the people who staff area elementary and high schools.

For the custodial staff, it's a time to wash, wax, repair and replace. "We don't have that three-month summer vacation anymore to tear the whole building apart, clean it and get it back together again because of the length of summer school," said Gary Tjarks, assistant principal at Forest View High School.

WINTER VACATION is two weeks of catching up, tackling major projects — "lots of scrubbing and waxing, refinishing the gym floors, giving a general cleaning to major areas," Tjarks said.

"We save the big jobs for this time," he said. "Some of the areas in the school are used so much you can't get into them without being disruptive when the kids are here. Those are the same areas that need it the most."

Custodians are on duty 24 hours a day at Forest View but still find it hard to keep up with daily cleaning, much less major projects. "We have so much glass in this building we just can't keep it clean," Tjarks said. "I could put one man on it full time and he still wouldn't get it all done."

During vacation, Forest View is getting all new lights in the stairwell, a sink for the band room and the heater in the dishwasher is being rebuilt.

Some of the cars in the near empty parking lots in front of schools belong to administrators — principals, assistant principals, superintendents and other staffers.

LEO HUNDT, a Forest View assistant principal, said he and many others in charge of instructional services, are wading through paper trying to plan scheduling and registration for next fall. "It would be simple if we just offered English 1, 2, 3 and 4. But we offer so much to the students it is very complex," he said.

Although the academic halls are relatively quiet, some parts of the schools are noisier than ever. Girls' and boys' athletic teams fill the gymnasium, some choral and band directors bring the kids back early for practice and several high schools are in the midst of play rehearsals.

Still, it is peaceful while the students are gone. "Every so often one of the little neighborhood kids comes in to take a look around," Tjarks said. "It's kind of nice having someone want to come here who doesn't have to. But they get into so many things we have to hustle them out."

"We tell them to come back when they're high school age."

Boy, 9, shot twice

Motorists report windows hit by BBs

Arlington Heights police blame parents who gave Christmas BB guns to their children for a rash of incidents involving youngsters shooting air rifles at passing cars, and at each other.

At least two Arlington Heights motorists have reported their car windows shot out this week, police said. In both cases the cars were traveling along Euclid Avenue.

A 9-year-old Arlington Heights boy was shot once in the head and again in the shoulder by another youth while the two were shooting air rifles in a field south of Dundee Road.

Firing a BB or pellet gun in the village is as illegal as the discharge of any other cartridge-loading firearm, said Arlington Heights Police Capt. Jack Aldrich. The only exceptions are on police-approved indoor target ranges.

"If they use them out of doors, they're asking for trouble. And if the parents give them out as Christmas presents, then they're asking for trouble," Aldrich said.

"If a kid gets a BB gun he's going to shoot it. And what's he going to shoot it at? Cars, birds, windows and people," he said.

SUSAN GLAWE, 810 N. Drury Ln., told police a pellet or BB shattered the vent window on the passenger side of her car earlier this week as she was driving along Euclid Avenue near Waterman Avenue.

A second Arlington Heights woman, Lisa Kaskle, 226 S. Kennicott Dr., said the passenger window in her car was hit by a pellet Monday night on Euclid near Forrest Avenue.

In both cases, police checked the area, but failed to find the gun-toting youth.

The 9-year-old boy told police he was shot by an unidentified youth late Sunday afternoon while shooting in a field south of Dundee Road just east of Betty Lane in unincorporated Cook County. The boy was treated and released at Northwest Community Hospital.

Task force slates meeting tonight

The Des Plaines Community Development Task Force will meet at 7:30 p.m. today to continue its study of the U.S. Housing and Community Development Act.

Robert Kunkel, chairman of the group, said the task force will review suggestions made at a meeting Monday on how the city should spend the $2.5 million that it stands to receive under the program.

Kunkel indicated some disappointment at the small turnout at Monday's public hearing. Only four persons presented suggestions to the group on how the money should be used.

In Dist. 59, said, "Although there is insurance to partially cover the loss there has been a considerable burden placed on the family — especially considering the time of year it occurred.

"In response to this situation we are establishing a benefit fund at the Bank of Elk Grove where people who wish to assist the family may make a contribution directly through the bank," he said.

THE FIRE started while Mrs. Frey and her daughter Mary were at Devonshire for the last day of school before winter vacation.

The fire gutted the kitchen and living room of the home, 922 Twilight Ln., and almost reached the bedrooms by the time firefighters arrived. Damage was estimated at $30,000 with heavy smoke and heat damage to the unburned portions of the house.

Wheeling Fire Chief Bernie Koeppen said the fire started in a stove.

Frey is a recruiting officer for the Navy in the Palatine recruiting office. The family is staying with relatives in Des Plaines.

Housing act

Communities pass up chance to get federal funds

by ANNE SLAVICEK

Most communities in the Northwest suburbs are passing up a chance this year to share in federal money from the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974.

And the two local suburbs assured of money under the program, Arlington Heights and Des Plaines, are moving at very differing rates to meet the spring deadlines to apply for funds.

The non-entitlement communities — municipalities of fewer than 50,000 persons — have until Jan. 13 to tell the federal Dept. of Housing and Urban Development if they plan to apply for some of the $380 million earmarked for those communities in 1975.

If local municipalities don't notify HUD by that date, their populations will be added to Cook County's in deciding how much money the county government will get as an urban county under the program, a HUD spokesman said.

NILES IS THE only Cook County suburb that has notified HUD it wants its population left out of the county total, the HUD spokesman said Tuesday.

There is a requirement that in order to apply for community development money a town must have prepared a housing assistance plan and a community development plan.

Although some observers have said the federal government is trying to force low- and moderate-income housing on the suburbs with the housing plan requirement, Harry Gottlieb says local communities aren't actively avoiding low- and moderate-income housing in their decisions to not seek the Community Development money in 1975.

Gottlieb, executive director of the Regional Housing Coalition, blames instead the federal government's slowness in getting out guidelines and regulations to apply for the money. Tight application deadlines requiring a lot of work to be completed by early spring along with HUD statements that there isn't much discretionary money for smaller communities in 1975 have combined to "unduly discourage" local communities from seeking the money, he said.

"If the citizenry knew that the money was there — most communities do have needs which could be met with the money — the municipalities would get more interested," he said.

GOTTIEB CHARACTERIZED local communities as "cautious and slow" in moving on the program. "They're trying to grasp the requirements," he said.

The two local suburbs over the 50,000 population cutoff are required to move a little faster if they want the money earmarked for their communities.

Arlington Heights — slated to get $125,000 in 1975 and $450,000 for each of the next three years after that — has a second public hearing set on its community development and housing assistance plan Jan. 9. A special policy team preparing the village's application for the money already has held one public hearing on long-term community goals and is well on the way to meeting spring application deadlines.

Des Plaines, — promised $130,000 in 1975 and $312,000 each year for the next three years after that — is just now forming a task force to help prepare the application for the program. Members of the force are expected to include representatives of various city commissions and the Des Plaines Park District. They will work with Michael Richardson, the city director of planning and zoning.

A CONTINUING controversy is expected concerning the funds in Des Plaines where some city council and housing commission members feel there are too many federal strings attached to the money.

In Arlington Heights the list of pressing needs encompasses everything from stormwater control and recreational space to senior citizen housing.

Des Plaines officials have talked of using their city's share of the money to buy an old Post Office building or to beef up the city's streetlighting program.

Nine non-entitlement communities are in various steps of finding out about the community development act and deciding what to do about it.

MOUNT PROSPECT Village Pres. Robert D. Teichert will ask his village board Jan. 14 to approve a resolution for preparation of a housing plan. Officials in the village had one special meeting to consider the community development act, but are focusing on the need for a local housing plan to protect the village against federally forced low- and moderate-income housing, rather than on seeking any of the discretionary community development act money.

Elk Grove Village officials say they're not going to make application for the money at least during the first year of the program. If the village does seek the money next year, Trustee Michael Tosto said he would like to see the money used to cover open storm sewers in the village. Catherine Duoba, chairman of the village housing commission, said she would like to see the funds used to seek additional recreational land for the village, but she predicted Elk Grove's "blight-free" appearance might make it difficult for the village to receive any of the discretionary money.

Schaumburg has a subcommittee of the plan commission studying the need for low- and moderate-income housing, but there is no target date for the study to be completed and the village has no plans to seek community development funds in 1975.

Hoffman Estates has been considering a type of housing ordinance for senior citizen housing, but Village Pres. Virginia Hayter said the village may let its population be added to the Cook County total.

ROLLING MEADOWS officials have discussed the community development act only once at a public meeting and have no immediate plans to seek the money.

Palatine Village Mgr. Anton H. Harwig said his community didn't have the time or the money to prepare the applications for the discretionary funds. "It appears the program is such the village stands next to no chance to get the funds," Harwig said, but the village may seek the money in future years, he said.

Buffalo Grove trustees decided Dec. 9 not to make up a housing plan and not to apply for the funds because they feel income levels in the village would preclude Buffalo Grove from getting the federal money.

Other local communities which have decided to take no action on either housing plans, community development plans or the applications for 1975 funds include Wheeling and Inverness.

Social Security taxes back

Happy New Year—checks to be smaller this week

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Middle- and upper-income workers took 5.85 per cent cuts in take-home pay beginning Wednesday when withholding for Social Security taxes resumed.

For a worker earning $15,000 a year, that means there will be about $17 less in this week's pay envelope.

Although the Social Security tax bite will be bigger again in 1975, the increase will not be so large as in 1973 when it jumped $140.40.

Social Security taxes will be increased $32.05 from $772.20 in 1974 to $804.25 in the new year. The tax rate of 5.85 per cent remains the same, but the base was raised from $13,200 to $14,100.

DURING THE PAST two years, Social Security taxes have risen 32 per cent and during the past four years they have more than doubled. The Social Security tax in 1971 was $405.60, or 5.2 per cent of the first $7,800 of earnings.

Along with the increase in tax payments by workers will be the first automatic cost of living increase for more than 30 million Social Security recipients including senior citizens, widows and dependent children. Increased benefits will be reflected in Social Security checks mailed in July.

The average monthly benefit now for a retired person is $167 per month. The July rate will be based on the difference between the Consumer Price Index on June 30, 1974, and March 31, 1975. Through November, the CPI was up 7.3 per cent.

RESUMPTION OF Social Security taxes on wages and salary income of workers earning more than $13,200 will mean a further reduction in spendable earnings, a factor that will make consumption of goods even weaker in the next few months.

Real spendable earnings, because of Social Security taxes, the graduated income tax and inflation, declined 6.2 per cent in 1974.

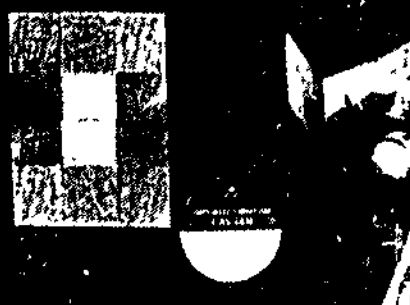

All the tax news for 1975 is not bad, however. The excise tax on telephone use dropped from 8 per cent to 7 per cent on Wednesday — an annual savings of about 75 cents.

Speed Wastes

At 75 mph it takes about eight minutes to travel 10 miles. At 50 mph it takes 12 minutes to cover the same distance.

Imagine you break the law, multiply your chances of an accident, run a good risk of killing yourself as well as a few innocent bystanders... and the best you can do is save four minutes.

While you're trying to save those precious minutes, you're also wasting fuel. And today, fuel is precious, too. It's a problem that may be here to stay. But one you can do something about.

Slow down from 75 to 50 mph and you'll save three gallons of gas out of every 10. Think of it. You'll also save 30¢ on your cost of fuel. And gain 30 miles for every 100 you travel.

The doctor says

by Lawrence L. Lamb, M.D.

Noise in head won't quit

Approximately four years ago I noticed a noise in my head, which greatly disturbed me because I imagined all kind of things that could be wrong. This noise is not with me all the time. I may have it one day and not the next. If I drop off to sleep in my chair after a day's work I wake up with it, and it may last for two days.

After going to several doctors and using ear drops and being examined for the prostate gland, which is normal, I have no relief.

This noise has caused me to become very uptight and nervous. I have taken many kinds of tranquilizers. I had a complete physical in a hospital, and they found nothing nor did they give me any relief from the noise. The brain scan was normal.

I have had three hearing examinations which showed that I have lost some high-frequency hearing and have been told this caused the noise. I was told I would have to live with this noise.

I'm 62 and weigh 150 pounds, which is my normal weight. This noise is hard to describe, but it sounds like a high line wire humming in the winter time.

The diagnosis and treatment of noises is either very simple or almost impossible. Apparently you fall in the latter category.

Any obstruction in the outer ear can cause ringing sounds in the ear. If it is wax, simply removing the excess wax in the ear may cure the difficulty. Unfortunately most cases are not that simple.

Pinging and noises can also be caused by some medicines. When the medicine is stopped, the ringing stops.

Circulation changes in the brain and around the hearing mechanism can cause ringing or buzzing noises. Some people are more aware of normal circulation sounds than others.

Damage to the ear, for example from a very loud noise such as gun fire, can cause this condition.

INCREASING AGE is commonly associated with buzzing and ringing in the ears. This is probably related to changes in the arteries. For this reason I usually advise people with this problem to do the same things they should do to prevent heart disease, go on a low-fat, low-cholesterol diet, correct obesity and get regular sensible exercise.

Avoiding coffee and drinks that contain caffeine may help some. That is better than taking tranquilizers.

Patients with Meniere's disease may also have ringing in the ear, dizziness, nausea and loss of hearing. This is probably related to accumulation of fluid and changes inside the delicate ear mechanism, not inside the brain.

The best advice I can give you since you have already had a good examination is to try the diet, exercise program, and avoid caffeine-containing drinks and cigarettes. That may help some.

Suicide takes far higher toll than figures indicate

(This column is presented by Forest Hospital in Des Plaines.)

Suicide — the 12th-largest killer — takes 22,000 lives a year. "And that's only an estimate, a conservative count," said Dr. Richard Evenson of St. Louis.

"The whole business of suicide is filled with numbers games and educated guesses. I say it's a conservative count because it is based on coroners' reports that list deaths as suicides. Many go unreported. There almost has to be a note or something very convincing for a death to be denoted a suicide."

Evenson, a clinical psychologist teaching at the Missouri Institute of Psychiatry, estimates there are more than 200,000 unsuccessful suicide attempts every year in the general population. "But again," he said, "this is just an educated guess. Most families try to keep such things quiet."

"It is equally hard to make a comparison between the suicide rate of the general population and patients in mental institutions. It's hard to keep track, though estimates put the rate of patient death by suicide 5 to 10 times higher than the rate of the normal population.

"ALSO," EVENSON said, "if we knew what caused persons to take their own lives, we'd be able to predict it. At present, we can make efforts of prevention only if a person makes sounds, talks about it, tells someone."

"It is generally conceded that most suicide prone people are suffering from some sort of depressive illness. This is not always easy to detect," Evenson said. "In a study we did with the friends and families of those who had attempted suicide, the families and friends frequently had no idea the patient was depressed or sick. But the patient's own evaluation of himself indicated the opposite. He just didn't show it."

"Interesting, too," Evenson said, "is a study we did with more than 800 patients in a Missouri mental institution. We separated the patients into three groups — those who had attempted suicide, those who had threatened suicide but had not attempted and those who had done neither. We tested them on a wide variety of community adjustment scales. Surprisingly, those who had threatened suicide were much more pathological on all scales. There was more depression, more disturbance at work, greater disturbance in terms of alcohol and drugs and greater tendencies towards psychotic thinking."

"THOSE WHO had actually attempted suicide didn't appear nearly as sick, primarily in drug and alcohol disturbances. We haven't yet been able to account for this, but those who threaten but don't attempt are very agitated, very upset and have trouble in a great many areas."

"Suicide rates tend to go up with age, the risks being particularly high in the forties and fifties. Women make more attempts and threats, but the men are more successful," Evenson said. "Perhaps this is because men do it in a tool oriented, more efficient way. They'll simply get a gun and shoot themselves."

"Women, on the other hand, seem to prefer less violent ways, like taking an overdose of pills. The trouble is, they don't know medications and how much to take, so they get discovered and get their stomachs pumped. Suicides also are more prevalent among the better educated professional for some reason."

'It's Academic'

Good players are smart, quick—and know trivia

by KATHERINE BOYCE

Quiz shows are some of the most popular programs on television today and a small group of students at local high schools have discovered the secret to becoming a good player — "a garbage mind," said Rich Langbauer, student at Fremd High School.

Rich is a member of the "It's Academic" team at Fremd and he's joined in his opinion by other students from Northwest suburban high schools who have appeared before the television cameras. A good player, they say, needs brain power, a wealth of trivia, confidence and a loud mouth.

"We have all these fantastic egos," said Jeff Rosenzweig, a player for the Buffalo Grove High School team. "You have to be quick and aggressive and know a lot of trivia," said Tim Gross on the Fremd team. "You have to not care about making a fool of yourself," adds Rich.

Although the team members are not always the smartest kids in the school, they do have a broad background of general knowledge, quick reactions and steady nerves to withstand the pressure of the television cameras, flashing lights, buzzers, and trick questions.

THIS YEAR four local high school teams have started on "It's Academic," which is broadcast at 10:30 a.m. Sundays on WBBM-TV. The Forest View High School team and the Fremd team appeared early this fall. Maine South High School's team will appear in January and the Buffalo Grove High School performance will be aired sometime in February.

The shows are taped in advance and all the local teams lost their first show which means they won't be back for the playoffs.

"We were ripped off," said Mary Ryan of the Buffalo Grove team. The final score of the game was Buffalo Grove, 195 points; Grayslake High School, 215, and Walther Lutheran High School, 155.

Each team plays three rounds per game where correct answers are worth 10 points, and the three teams race to answer questions during the final round that are worth 20 points. Teams also can answer questions passed by their opponents.

THE BUFFALO Grove team contends it lost on a technicality because it answered a question before the opposing team's time had expired. "We were all sad when it was over. We wanted to win and go on again," said Jeff.

"It really wouldn't have bothered me to lose if it hadn't been so close," said Mary. "We really weren't keyed up when we went in but after we got going we really started answering questions," she said. "If it had been an hour show we would have killed them."

The Fremd team lost to Joliet East High School 340 to 295. "We played a conservative game," said Rich. "A few seconds killed us. We lost on time."

But the Fremd team doesn't feel too badly about its defeat; members are usually matched with some of the best high

Are you a whiz kid?

Test your knowledge along with the whiz kids of the Northwest suburbs who are members of the "It's Academic" teams. Sample questions submitted by the team members and the producer of the show are listed below.

1. Who invented baseball?
2. What was the name of President Franklin D. Roosevelt's dog?
3. If the shape of your breakfast croissant reminds you that you're visiting the Crescent City, you must be in what Louisiana metropolis famed for its French cuisine?
4. Although he's best known for writing about the lives of the inhabitants of Spoon River, what American author has a surname that sounds like a famous golf tournament?
5. What is the shortest verse in the Bible?
6. What is the capital of Ethiopia?
7. Had George Washington surveyed the peak named for the first Surveyor-General of India, he'd have taken his instruments to what highest mountain of the Himalayas?
8. Some wives are pillars of the community, but according to the Bible, whose wife was a pillar of salt?
9. A kilometer is five-eighths of a mile. If you drove 1,600 kilometers during your vacation, how many miles would you have gone?
10. While it was no picnic for the participants, onlooking picnickers watched what first major battle of the American Civil War?

school teams. Last year Fremd was beaten by a team that went on to win during the finals. "I'd rather be beaten by someone who goes on than by someone who gets beaten in the next show," said Rich.

THE SHOW'S contestants are selected by the producers of the program after an audition at the studio. "It's Academic" students at Fremd are members of the school's National Honor Society and are nominated to the team by the members. At Buffalo Grove High School all students are allowed to try out for the team and are nominated by the faculty and the team sponsor.

Five team members are usually nominated from each high school. During a practice run before the actual taping the three team members who answer the most questions are selected and the remaining two serve as alternates.

The producers of the show are looking for students with a combination of talents — a good background of knowledge and quick reactions. Questions range in content from those that appeal to trivia experts to those that are covered in the traditional high school subjects — math, history, music and science.

A total of 81 public and private high schools in the Chicago metropolitan area compete on the show in the course of one year with three teams competing each week and the winner returning for the play-offs. There is a waiting list to appear on the show; Elk Grove High School hopes to send a team next year if it can get one.

THE FREM'D team practiced twice a week for six weeks, sometimes meeting at 6:30 in the morning before school. The team has its own practice lightboard, which it uses to compete in practice against the faculty. This year it defeated the faculty.

For practice the Fremd team used quiz games patterned after quiz shows like "Jeopardy." Although the Buffalo Grove team didn't hold any practice sessions some of the team members used some of their textbooks and "The World Almanac" to beef up their knowledge.

Although the local teams lost their first game they ought to get some points for enthusiasm and team support. Fremd's team was accompanied to the television studio by 40 students from the school and Buffalo Grove brought about 50 fans with it. "They said we had the best cheering section," said Carol Zamrazil, alternate for the Fremd team.

SEVERAL OF THE students believe the support from other students is perhaps the most important part of the game. "It's Academic" is good because it gives kids who aren't super athletes or super in music a chance to use their brain power if that's what they have," said Kevin Richardson, captain of the Fremd team.

Jeff thinks more students should try out for the show. "People shouldn't be afraid to audition because they don't think they're not that smart. All you need is a quick tongue and you could win," he said.

"Kids are afraid to get involved," said Kevin. "You've got to have a well-rounded student body. Right now everything out here is athletics."

Lower speeds, energy crisis cited

8,000 lives saved in '74: Safety Council

by United Press International

An estimated 8,000 to 10,000 motorists who would have been killed in traffic accidents in a normal year survived 1974, the National Safety Council said at year's end Tuesday.

"There have been at least 8,000 to 10,000 less deaths this year," the council spokesman said, "because of the energy crunch, lower speeds and the economy."

Final figures will not be available for another month, but the spokesman estimated the highway death toll for 1974 would be roughly 48,000. The last time traffic fatalities were below that figure was in 1964 when 47,000 died. In 1973, total deaths were 55,800.

Three Midwest states provided examples of the year's reduced traffic toll. Going into the final hours of 1974, Illinois reported 1,938 traffic deaths compared to 2,331 for 1973, Wisconsin had 905 deaths compared to 1,157 and Indiana had 1,214 deaths, 372 fewer than in 1973.

Correction

The Dec. 28 article about Jarosch Bakery in Elk Grove Village incorrectly stated that Herb Jarosch and Joseph Stephan were partners for 15 years. Jarosch and his father George Jarosch started the Elk Grove bakery in 1959. George Jarosch sold his share of the business to Stephan in 1968, and continued working at the outlet until 1973.

don't rush to gold

As of December 31, 1974, any U.S. citizen may buy and sell gold for the first time in over 40 years. And it appears as though the great gold rush of '75 is on. The availability and attractiveness of gold as an investment is not all glitter, however. There are some cautions to which the consumer should be alerted:

- The price of gold is like the price of stocks. Many people are enchanted by the fact that the price of gold soared from $35 an ounce in the 1968 to $190 an ounce last November on the world market. This tends to overshadow the fact that the gold market can go down as well as up. The price of gold is set twice a day based on the London, England market. These price bases are commonly called the A.M. and P.M. "fix." Any day the price of gold can go up, stay the same or go down.
- Gold has its middlemen. The miner, fabricator, distributor and retailer all add a price mark-up for his particular role in handling the gold. Don't be surprised at having to pay a premium for gold on the retail level as opposed to the price on the world market.
- There is always the risk of forgery. Although gold experts feel the risk of forgery is somewhat less on gold bullion than on coins, the risk does exist. Consumers should always deal with reputable firms in buying and selling gold.

- Clarify the buy-back arrangements. Some buy-back arrangements have certain requirements such as only buying back gold that is kept in storage at the place of purchase or buying back gold only if it is returned unopened in the original package.
- Don't count on gold to be a hedge against inflation. No one can accurately predict whether or not gold is a hedge against inflation. For the last four years it has been, however, over the last 100 years gold has not been a good investment. Remember, too, that when you invest in gold it has no yield. To compensate for that, the price has to increase about 10% per year.

COME TO OUR FREE SEMINAR ON GOLD

While we support the decision allowing Americans to participate in gold, the opportunity has raised many questions and much confusion. For instance, at least five commodity exchanges across the country are prepared to handle gold futures. Many institutions including banks, department stores, currency dealers, brokerage firms and jewelers can sell gold to the consumer on a retail level.

Because of your interest and questions, the Plum Grove Bank is conducting a Seminar on Gold to be led by top investment advisers and gold specialists who will explain the pros and cons of gold as it affects the consumer. The seminar will be held at 7:30 P.M. on THURSDAY EVENING, JANUARY 9TH at the PLUM GROVE BANK, ROLLING MEADOWS, just east of Route 53 on Algonquin Road. Refreshments will be provided. There is no charge or obligation; you need not be a customer of our bank to attend.

WIN FREE GOLD IN OUR "END OF THE RAINBOW" SWEEPSTAKES

As a salute to gold and our Plum Grove Bank, we are conducting an "END OF THE RAINBOW" Sweepstakes. Enter and you could win one of three ONE-OUNCE GOLD WAFERS (December 2 world market value was $186 an ounce!) Simply complete the coupon and deposit it or a facsimile thereof in the Plum SWEEPSTAKES box located in the Plum Grove Bank lobby or deposit it in our Plum Grove Bank night depository or at the drive-up window. Sorry, we cannot accept coupons by mail. Limit one coupon per person. Again, you need not be a customer of our bank to participate.

Each gold wafer is numbered and stamped with the refiner's own mark attesting to weight and fineness. It's your chance to find the gold at the end of the rainbow simply by "finding" the Plum Grove Bank!

Entry deadline is January 17, 1975, and the drawing will be conducted shortly thereafter under the auspices of our certified public accounting firm. Winners will be notified by mail and a list of winners posted in our bank lobby.

If you have any questions on the seminar or the chance to win free gold, please call us at 398-3700.

Lake Michigan Federation asks public check Drinking Water Act compliance

by LEA TONKIN
The compromise Safe Drinking Water Act recently signed into law by President Ford will force the cleanup of water supplies throughout the nation. But the Chicago-based Lake Michigan Federation is calling on the public to assist in an effort to monitor compliance to ensure adequate protection of public health.

Nancy Flowers, a federation spokesman, said many municipalities in this region depend on Lake Michigan for drinking water, a cause for concern because of insufficient testing for pollutants. Viruses and toxic pollutants are the major categories of contaminants that the Public Health Service Drinking Water Standards established in 1962, and that have not been adequately monitored.

Confidence that water is safe to drink has been undermined by the discovery of cancer-causing asbestos and chemicals in drinking water supplies across the nation, she said.

In Lake Michigan's Illinois waters, the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency monitored asbestos levels in recent months. Increasing concentrations of asbestos were found.

The rusting of old buildings may contribute to the problem, in addition to the use of asbestos in tiles, brake linings, and other items. Joe Harrison, head of the drinking water quality division of Region V, U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, said the presence of organics in Lake Michigan is cause for greater concern.

Ships' sewage hazard told

The International Joint Commission, Great Lakes Regional Office, recently concluded that there may be a potential health hazard in the sewage discharged into the Great Lakes by vessels arriving from ports where communicable diseases are epidemic. The commission said the absence of communicable diseases in the Great Lakes vicinity is probably due to the relatively high level of treatment of municipal water supplies. The IJC said there is no clear-cut U.S. or Canadian authority to deal with the problem. It recommends that the two governments adopt compatible vessel waste regulations and procedures and assure adequacy of sewage handling, treatment and disposal.

Air-pollution rules voided

A decision recently handed down by the Illinois Appellate Court voids key Illinois air pollution regulations. It invalidates the Illinois Pollution Control Board Air Pollution Rule 303 that deals with nondegradation, and sent back to the board for further review the rules governing particulate and sulphur dioxide emissions. Orville Bergren, president of the Illinois Manufacturers Association, said the decision vindicates the IMA position that the pollution board "failed to adequately consider economics of technology in adopting air pollution rules."

Bergren said manufacturers and utilities could not get sufficient quantities of low sulphur coal or oil necessary to meet the particulate of sulphur dioxide standards. Technology to remove sulphur gases from smokestacks is not available, he said. The decision, which raises the possibility of federal enforcement under the Clean Air Act, is expected to be appealed.

Work OK'd on Byron site

The Atomic Energy Commission's Directorate of Licensing recently issued a limited work authorization to Commonwealth Edison Co. of Chicago, permitting preliminary construction work at the Byron station site. It is located two miles east of the Rock River and three miles southwest of Byron in Ogle County, Ill. The authorization was issued under AEC regulations that permit a company to perform construction work at its own financial risk before issuance of a construction permit. The decision follows favorable findings on environmental considerations and the suitability of the site for the operation of a nuclear power plant.

Unearned income deducted

I thought a person who is 65 or older and in need of financial assistance could receive $110 a month under the new federal program called Supplemental Security Income. My grandmother is living with our family in Arlington Heights. She is 83 and has no income or resources. Why did she receive only $93.31 instead of $110?

When a person lives in the household of another, the items of support and maintenance furnished in cash or kind is considered unearned income. Instead of counting the dollar value of room and board provided, the law provides that the basic amount is reduced by one-third. Therefore, payment in this case could not exceed $93.31. If you want further information contact the Arlington Heights Social Security Office, 120 W. Eastman, or phone 233-7512 (toll free).

Warranty Changes

by Ed Landwehr

Warranties at Landwehr's Home Appliances are the best in the electronic field. They protect the customer's purchase and maintenance job from undue defects or short life. But we're looking forward to even a better kind of warranty.

Warranties specify a certain length of time, but time does not indicate usage. One customer may use his set ten hours each day and another only two hours. Obviously, the latter warranty is less valuable if something goes wrong shortly after the guarantee expires.

So the industry is perfecting a device that will record the time of usage. This timer will be on each set and future warranties will be based on this record in the coming years.

When you phone 255-0700 for electronic services, you will discover a modern technician with the finest testing gear. We'll warrant our work for suitable periods to your satisfaction. Try us.

Herald opinion

Study disregards cost reductions

A state advisory committee for motor vehicle registration and titling appointed by Sec. of State Michael Howlett, last week issued its report. The results were disappointing.

Despite a need to amend the Motor Vehicle Code and an opportunity to bring cost-saving efficiencies in operation of the secretary of state's office, the study group merely opted for maintenance of the expensive status quo in Illinois.

The committee's major recommendation was a ludicrous one — to abolish the current auto license fee system and replace it with a "flat fee" that would increase small cars to the same charge for larger cars. Properly so, Howlett already has rejected that proposal as contrary to the need for encouraging use of smaller cars and thus saving fuel.

The study presumably considered a number of proposals for reducing costs, including a change from the current annual plate-replacement system to multi-year plates.

Illinois is one of only seven states still maintaining the annual plates; all others have gone to multi-year plates ranging from two to five years.

Such a change would save a significant amount of money — savings acknowledged by the committee which said a two-year plate may become mandatory as the costs of production and distribution become excessive.

Nevertheless, the report urged maintenance of the present system because it insures that worn or illegible plates are regularly replaced and vehicle information is "updated" every year.

These arguments apparently do not apply to 43 other states whose license plates presumably are not as flimsily made as ours. We are not yet convinced that the additional cost of sturdier plate manufacture would not be more than offset by savings possible from the multi-year plates.

Although expense-reduction proposals — including use of only one plate and changing to a staggered, year-round registration system as well as multi-year plates — were rejected by the committee, we hope Sec. Howlett takes the initiative in submitting his own recommendations to the General Assembly. The effort to streamline the operations of his office and reduce costs should not be abandoned merely because the study committee failed to meet the challenge of its assignment.

Certified secretaries

The more militant feminists may consider the secretary's job as being on the bottom of the business totem pole. But to at least 7,300 secretaries around the United States, it is anything but that.

That is how many now hold the title of Certified Professional Secretary. The number is increasing every year, and many of them are men.

The certificate is earned on the basis of a 26-week course, followed by a grueling two-day series of tests held under the auspices of the National Secretaries Assn. So comprehensive are the tests (only 11 per cent get a passing grade in every area) that colleges now recognize the certificate as credit toward a degree in such subjects as business administration.

The Certified Professional Secretary program not only helps management in selecting qualified secretaries, it promotes the professional identity of the exceptional secretary and gives her (or him) a yardstick against which to measure her (or his) professional development.

If the Village of Palatine is not interested in annexing the Peppertree, Heathcote, and English Valley areas, far better that its officers should say so rather than subject us to another meeting like the one just held at Lincoln School. At no time was there any presentation of the advantages of village membership to those of us who live in unincorporated Cook — instead the session was allowed to degenerate into a long, tedious, repetitive squabble over dollars and cents.

Helmet law opposed

I hope that all motorcycle enthusiasts throughout the state will unite against Secretary of State Howlett's latest announcement that he will try to make the wearing of helmets mandatory. He says it is for our own good, but shouldn't that decision be left up to us?

Illinois is one of only four states where the motorcycle riders have the right to wear what they want. Don't let them take it away. If everyone interested in seeing that this proposed bill never makes it would send a letter to his congressman and to Governor Walker, it may stop this bill.

Campaign reform contested

by ARNOLD B. SAWISLAK
A most unusual group of allies are contesting in court what an anonymous Englishman two centuries ago called "the holy mistaken zeal in politics."

Lending what they concede is "an odd coalition" will be Sen. James Buckley, the Conservative-Republican from New York, and former Sen. Eugene McCarthy, the liberal Democrat from Minnesota.

Their target is the 1974 federal campaign reform law, which they claim will absolutely shred the First Amendment and an assortment of other constitutional guarantees if it is permitted to go into effect.

Buckley, McCarthy, New York Civil Liberties Union chief Ira Glasser and Yale law professor Ralph Winter are joining in a lawsuit to overturn the campaign law that was Congress' response — after nearly two years — to the abuses uncovered by the Watergate scandal investigations.

They say, and their records certainly support the disclaimer, that they have no sympathy for the dirty work and shady practices that marred the financing and operations of the 1972 and some earlier presidential campaigns.

But these men, in vast disagreement on issues of public policy, are joined in the belief that reformers were so carried away by the wish to clean up the political process that they trampled the Bill of Rights in their haste.

Specifically, they argue that prohibiting citizens to contribute to political candidates through public financing of campaigns or setting limits to the amount of money citizens may donate or candidates may spend violates the First Amendment right of free expression.

They concede that it might appear to be an overriding need to keep "fat cats" and special interest groups from trying to buy elections with hundreds of thousands of dollars, but they insist that this may not be accomplished by limiting or forbidding anyone to express his political preferences with cash.

They ask, for example, how a citizen can be forbidden to buy a newspaper or broadcast advertisement supporting a candidate if that citizen cannot be forbidden from giving a public speech for the same candidate.

POLITICS MAKES STRANGE bedfellows indeed. Former Sen. Eugene McCarthy (right), a liberal, has teamed with Ira Glasser (left), director of the New York Civil Liberties Union and Conservative Sen. James Buckley of New York to challenge the 1974 campaign reform bill.

Winter is the legal mind behind the challenge, and he has argued that all efforts to control or disclose campaign finances flirt with unconstitutionality.

But Buckley and McCarthy believe some controls could stand — required disclosure of big contributions, for example. And they believe that the public, informed of huge donations from an individual or organization to a candidate, would be forewarned of the possibility that the candidate could be "in the pocket" of the big donor.

It is interesting that the federal law has had some type of control on campaign contributions or expenditures in varying forms for 50 years. But there has never been a Supreme Court test of the proposition that all such limits are unconstitutional invasions of the right of free speech and expression.

McCarthy was asked at a recent news conference why civil libertarians did not challenge campaign laws long before. Because, the former senator replied with a sweet smile, everyone knew the old laws were completely unenforceable. (UPI)

In tracing the origins of today's steel shortage, he attributes it to the price controls imposed a few years ago, which compounded the problem the industry had already been having competing with foreign steel under the fixed dollar exchange rate established by the Bretton Woods agreement in 1945.

Because of a severely overvalued dollar, says Knoell, foreign producers with their modern postwar plants were able to undersell American producers by $20 to $30 a ton. The dollar was eventually cut loose, but devaluation was almost immediately followed by a freeze on steel prices at "unrealistically" low levels.

Steel imports continued to rise, to account for 18 per cent of domestic steel consumption, or the equivalent of all the growth in the consumption of steel in this country over a period of seven or eight years.

The result was to restrict steel producers from making the profits necessary to expand capacity. The plants that were closed and the plants that were not built then are where the steel isn't coming from today, Knoell asserts.

If legislators opt again for price controls, he warns, there will be no profits to be invested in reopening or building steel mills. U.S. producers thus will not be able to provide the steel that will be needed when the economy gets going again.

Others no doubt will draw different conclusions from the same facts. There is no shortage of evidence, however, to support those who caution that while price controls may buy economic stability for a time, they only store up a lot of trouble for later.

As Knoell says, "Today's crisis all too often is yesterday's hastily contrived legislation."

The lighter side

Paper-training the pet begonia

by DICK WEST

Psychologists say household pets frequently are cast into the role of child substitutes by people who can't have children.

In which case there also must be a need for pet substitutes by people who can't have cats and dogs.

This possibly accounts for the popularity of a bestseller called "Mother Earth's Hassle-Free Indoor Plant Book."

The book starts out by listing some of the advantages of house plants over household pets. "A plant will never mess on your rugs," it points out. And "You don't have to walk a begonia."

True enough. Something else a plant won't do is fetch your slippers and bark at burglars.

Nevertheless, the house plant business is booming. Scores of indoor gardening shops, or plant boutiques, have opened in American cities in the past year.

Hundreds of goldfish have been disposed and their bowls and tanks converted to terrariums.

The upsurge of plants as pet substitutes has been going on ever since the publication of a couple of books purporting to prove that plants have emotions.

But I never realized how deeply rooted it had become until a recent afternoon.

As I was walking past a plant boutique I saw a tousled-haired moppet with his nose pressed to the window behind which was displayed a number of cute little pots of exotic and domestic flora.

At that moment the shopkeeper appeared in the doorway. The kid looked up at him with wistful eyes and in a tremulous voice asked, "How much is that begonia in the window? The one with the waggly stamen?"

Whatever the price, it was beyond the youngster's means. He trudged away, the picture of dejection. Touched by the scene, which recalled my own childhood, I tapped the lad on the shoulder.

"You really like that plant a lot, don't you, sonny?" I said.

"I wasn't asking for myself, sir," the youth replied, smiling through the tears. "I wanted it for my girl friend."

"I must take a trip to California and leave my poor sweetheart alone. If she had a house plant, she wouldn't be lonesome, and the begonia would have a good home."

I didn't feel like shelling out for a pedigreed begonia but I did hit on a happy compromise. I took the lad by the local Botanic Rescue League, an organization that takes care of homeless plants.

As luck would have it, they had on hand a hybrid begonia. It was a straggly little thing, probably about one-quarter aspidistra, with yellowing leaves, drooping petals and other signs of neglect. But the kid loved it.

I'm sure his sweetheart will too. And feeding it will be no problem. Whenever she dines out, she can ask the waitress for a begonia bag.

What price price control?

by DON OAKLEY

Things aren't so bad that they couldn't be worse — if they were better, that is.

There is a steel shortage today, among other shortages. Bad enough. But if the economy were humming and if the auto industry were taking its normal share of production, the shortage would be of "staggering" proportions. This is the opinion of William H. Knoell, president of Cyclops Corp., a steel producer.

Knoell is concerned about the re-imposition of price controls, an anti-inflation measure strongly supported in some quarters and even more strongly now because of the eight per cent price hike announced by U.S. Steel, the industry's pacesetter.

In tracing the origins of today's steel shortage, he attributes it to the price controls imposed a few years ago, which compounded the problem the industry had already been having competing with foreign steel under the fixed dollar exchange rate established by the Bretton Woods agreement in 1945.

Because of a severely overvalued dollar, says Knoell, foreign producers with their modern postwar plants were able to undersell American producers by $20 to $30 a ton. The dollar was eventually cut loose, but devaluation was almost immediately followed by a freeze on steel prices at "unrealistically" low levels.

Steel imports continued to rise, to account for 18 per cent of domestic steel consumption, or the equivalent of all the growth in the consumption of steel in this country over a period of seven or eight years.

The result was to restrict steel producers from making the profits necessary to expand capacity. The plants that were closed and the plants that were not built then are where the steel isn't coming from today, Knoell asserts.

If legislators opt again for price controls, he warns, there will be no profits to be invested in reopening or building steel mills. U.S. producers thus will not be able to provide the steel that will be needed when the economy gets going again.

Others no doubt will draw different conclusions from the same facts. There is no shortage of evidence, however, to support those who caution that while price controls may buy economic stability for a time, they only store up a lot of trouble for later.

As Knoell says, "Today's crisis all too often is yesterday's hastily contrived legislation."

Area well served by paramedics

On the evening of Dec. 9, 1974, while attending an affair sponsored by the Holy Ghost Council, No. 4977, Knights of Columbus, Palatine, I suffered a suspected heart seizure.

Immediately (within minutes), I was being administered to by the Palatine Paramedics, and subsequently transported by ambulance to the emergency room of Alexian Brothers Medical Center where I was treated and released. (I was later to be informed that I had not suffered a heart seizure, but rather an attack of gastritis and exhaustion.)

On that same evening, my father-in-law, William W. Kalata, at approximately the same time, 10:30 p.m., was rushed to the emergency room of the Northwest Community Hospital by the Arlington Heights Paramedics with a severe coronary thrombosis. I am sorry to report that Mr. Kalata was dead on arrival.

I wish to take this opportunity to publicly thank these very courageous, courteous, and professional people, the Paramedics, for their service and say thank you from the bottom of my heart.

I will not mention any names, for these people know who they are, but in closing, I must add that the service of our communities provided by this wonderful arm of the respective fire departments in Palatine and Arlington Heights should make every citizen proud that there are those fine and unselfish people caring for our needs.

Again, may I say thank you, Paramedics, of Palatine and of Arlington Heights.

The complex affair of building complexes

Dream of the suburbs—a 20,000-seat arena like this Arlington Heights plan.

by STEVE FORSYTH

Chicago suburbs are a spawning ground for grandiose plans and dreams. A few survive, many die, and some slip into limbo.

Most of the developments, commercial or industrial, fail to materialize after initial announcements, either because land or money isn't available or because local zoning officials won't bend far enough to please the wide-eyed backers.

More interesting are the projects that slide into limbo, unbuilt but unbanned on the suburban landscape. Some are bold enough to invite immediate skepticism, but a few are more plausible.

The latest wave of possible, but unbuilt, proposals caters to the sports fan—the person who would like to see professional hockey or other athletic events in his suburban back yard.

The late Charles Klehm came forth with just such a proposal in the spring of 1973. He soon dropped the sports plan, but continued with work on a huge trade center.

THE PLANS FOR the Chicago-O'Hare International Trade Center, to be built on more than half of Klehm's 110 acres at the southeast corner of Arlington Heights Road and the Northwest Tollway, began to plod through village protocol.

Roadblocks were normal for the projected $65 million complex. Elk Grove Village objected to Arlington Heights extending its borders south of the tollway, and the village board wasn't ready to give Klehm a free hand on the development of the second half of the property in the future—a request Klehm had made.

With the land already in one piece, many of the problems had been sidestepped. During their talks the backers announced an October, 1974, opening date.

The dream slipped into limbo, however, following Klehm's death on Oct. 22, 1973.

Promoters claimed his death would not halt progress on the trade center, but the village has not heard from anyone attempting to continue the plans and annexation. The word is that financial backing has been lost.

THE LAND remains and the feasibility of the project has not been disproven, but no earth has been shoveled.

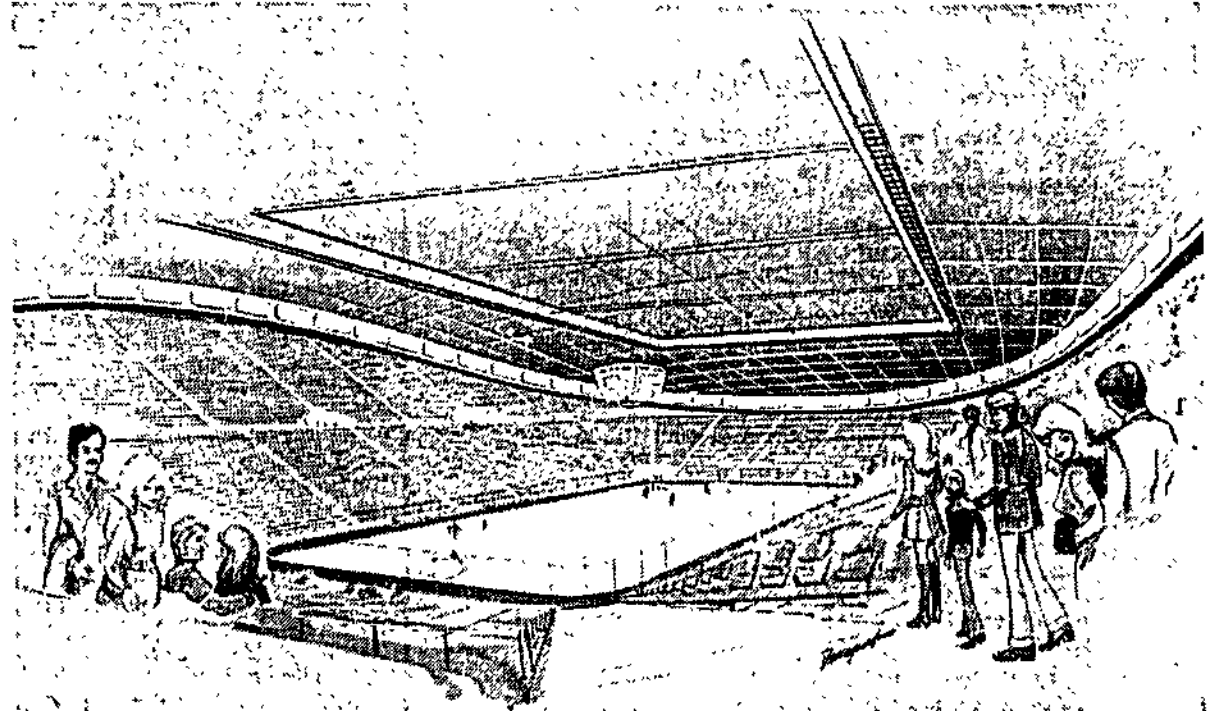

For developer Anthony R. Finocchio, it was another setback in his efforts to bring bigness to the suburbs. He had previously announced a convention center and hotel project in 1972 on a selected 65-acre site at Mount Prospect Road and the tollway near Des Plaines.

That project never came to fruition because a negative engineering report three days before zoning hearings indicated the land was a former lake site that had been filled in, and would require extensive foundation work for construction.

The sports arena story also has been told in Rosemont, where the Chicago Cougars hockey team was to have been based. Everything went ahead except construction, and the Cougars have filed suit against the village charging that it did not really intend to build the arena. Don Stephens, Rosemont village president, said the plans are still in the works, although financial backers have said it is several years off, if it is to be at all.

THE VILLAGE acquired 40 per cent of the proposed site at the intersection of Mannheim Road and Lunt Avenue, just south of Des Plaines, but the 18,000-seat arena will probably never see the Cougars, even if it is completed.

A relative youngster in the sports arena contest is Elk Grove Village, which recently announced plans for its own giant center at Busse and Landmeier roads. Details have not been forthcoming since the announcement was made in November, but a feasibility study is in progress.

Rosemont's 'Cougarena' lost the Cougars, but what about the arena?

Deuster, Duff try again; sponsor 42 bills in House

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — During the past two years, State Representatives Donald Deuster and Brian Duff have sponsored a total of 107 bills. Only seven of them have passed both houses and only six have become law.

Undaunted, the pair is back at it. Counting those received through last week, they now are listed as chief sponsors of 42 of the 78 House bills "prefiled" for the session starting Jan. 6.

Many of the new measures are duplicates of ones that have gone nowhere in previous years.

DUFF, A WILMETTE Republican, reintroduced his legislative packages to reform the grand jury system and speed up trials. He has been trying for years to pass that legislation.

One of the measures would allow prosecutors to bypass the grand jury system entirely in the course of a prosecution. Others would permit defendants to bring lawyers to grand jury appearances and would require that transcripts be kept of grand jury proceedings.

Duff also introduced a resolution seeking to amend the state constitution and provide for appointment of Supreme Court and appellate court judges.

DEUSTER, A Republican from Mundelein, introduced a raft of bills earlier last month. His new batch includes one that would permit closed meetings by public officials to discuss any personnel matters. The Open Meetings Act currently allows private meetings only to discuss hiring and firing.

Deuster also introduced a bill which would specifically require that three-fifths of the members of each house must vote to ratify a proposed amendment to the U.S. Constitution before the amendment can get Illinois' ratification.

That ruling would "freeze in" the Republican interpretation of an ambiguous law. It also probably would prevent ratification in Illinois of the Equal Rights Amendment to the U. S. Constitution, which otherwise is regarded as a cinch next year.

Education today

by WandaLn Rice

School boards in need

Since this will be the first "Education Today" column of the new year, it would be easy to write something funny — like New Year's resolutions for public officials.

But this seems like a good time to take up a more serious subject that has caused much concern among many people during the past year — how to find qualified persons to serve on local school boards.

Increasingly during the past year, I've heard experienced school board members express the fear that there will be fewer people willing to run for school boards in the future. They cite the controversy that has surrounded boards, turning a job that used to be a good way to fulfill civic responsibility into a thankless hotseat.

An additional problem that local officials feel acutely is that all government has come under greater suspicion because of the "post-Watergate morality." School board members, as well as other local officials, are finding themselves cornered at cocktail parties by neighbors and acquaintances who are convinced that anyone in public office is making a profit.

ALL THESE THINGS, some of the experienced board members say, mean it is harder to find replacements for retiring board members from the usual sources — PTAs, booster clubs and general-purpose "civic" groups.

This is cause for concern. It would be embarrassing if someday we had an election, and although the voters came, there were no candidates. But I suspect that is unlikely; instead, school board members are going to start coming from different kinds of places than in the past.

The reason? In recent years, board members have faced militant teachers, student problems and angry parents with more frequency. And if the "traditional" school board candidates decide things are too tough, some different kinds of people are going to have to run.

These different people may include a fair sampling of "spillers" who are running for a particular cause (against sex education, for example). Or they may be proponents of a special interest who are going to neglect the broad picture. That is what veteran board members fear.

HOWEVER, I have a feeling there is at least the potential for a different kind of school board candidate who could be a real benefit to Northwest suburban schools. The new candidate probably will come into a campaign without the usual long list of quasi-social civic activities that is common among board members. Instead, he or she will bring intelligence, skepticism and a healthy disregard for the relatively small cliques that run governments in the suburbs.

There are signs that such candidates may be appearing. The Northwest Suburban Women's Political Caucus and members of the local chapter of the National Organization for Women have turned up increasingly in discussions of local government — including school boards.

Also, every once in awhile in the past year board members have come seemingly out of the blue and taken strong roles in the affairs of their boards. Jean Fisher, a member of the High School Dist. 211 board, and Robert Rausch, a member of the Harper College board, are two examples of board members who don't fit the traditional mold.

IT IS CLEAR that school boards aren't a good place for nice guys who want only to be popular, or for people who, faced with equally balanced and contradictory sets of information, find themselves unable to make a choice.

Serving on a school board can be a lot of fun — and I'm sure there are plenty of present and former members who will testify to that. But it also can be a pretty unpleasant business sometimes.

Persons who may be thinking in this new year about running for a board in the April election should think about that — and measure themselves for the job.

One thing never changes. School boards, and other governmental bodies, always need good people.

Too many graduates, too few jobs

Bachelor of arts degree: is it a ripoff?

by PATRICIA McCORMACK
NEW YORK (UPI) — In today's job market, does it make sense for Joe and Jane College to spend four years studying poetry or medieval history or painting and drawing?

These and other "majors" leading to the bachelor of arts degree, on the surface, seem highly unrelated to jobs listed in the help-wanted sections of newspapers.

So questions come up. To wit:
• Is the bachelor of arts degree a rip-off?

• Should the pursuit of such a degree be limited to those born rich, and not in need of a paycheck after the sheepskin?

JOHN HURT FISHER, a professor of English at the University of Tennessee in Knoxville, was asked those questions during an interview in New York.

He was in town to preside at the annual meeting of the Modern Language Assn. He was president when the meeting started. His term ended when the meeting did.

More than 9,000 from the languages — about half English teachers and the rest teachers of French, German, Spanish and such — attended. Most are teachers in college fields, where majors usually lead to the arts degree.

MANY YOUNG members were seeking jobs. Young English majors and their peers who majored in other languages drive cabs, take custodian jobs and clerk in department stores. Some wait on tables.

The financial return on their expensive college educations hardly seems good.

Ditto for the job satisfaction.

At the meeting many jobless young holders of bachelor's degrees sought to buttonhole department heads who do the hiring. To escape them, many department heads from the colleges kept their name badges in their purses or pockets. They went incognito.

FISHER SAID the question in higher education should not be, "Is an arts degree or a major in poetry or history a ripoff?"

Rather, he said, one should address the real problem: How can the education establishment, in conscience, encourage around 60 per cent of high school graduates to go to college, preparing for white-collar work. There are not that many jobs requiring such preparation.

That's why you have persons with Ivy League degrees in English driving cabs in New York, Fisher said. The Ivy League degrees are among the costliest. Tuition and room and board come to about $6,000 a year. The schools say the cost of a year to them is around $18,000 a year.

In 1924, when about 10 or 15 per cent of the population was in college, a Yale degree in English could be a good preparation for becoming chairman of the board of Standard Oil.

TODAY, A similar degree may put a Yale grad in the running with six other of his classmates for a trainee's job, Fisher said.

"In the running" doesn't mean the English major gets the job.

From he classifieds, jobs to shoot for would appear to be in computers, the food and hotel fields, engineering or business administration.

Training for such jobs is called "skilling" in educationese. It is so job-related that it is considered a first cousin of vocational education — hardly as high-brow as Chaucer or Keats.

FISHER BELIEVES the problem of the arts and humanities is the problem of higher education in general — the huge stampede for sheepskins.

He disputes the contention that any one field is more secure for job prospects than any other.

"There is a mystique among the young that some occupations are more secure, such as engineering, computers, the health fields," he said.

"There is no guarantee."

"I don't despair for the humanities. From as far back as you look, to ancient Greece and to ancient Rome and since, those schooled in the humanities have provided the leadership for the world. It is true today."

So if you want to spend that $20,000 or more for a bachelor's in poetry or French history, do so in good spirits.

ALL THINGS BEING competitive, who knows, you might turn out to be a world leader. It's a little bit like a lottery, though.

Fisher said a lot of European countries have other ideas. Only 10 to 15 per cent of the young persons go on to higher education — and they must pass stiff tests showing they are qualified.

The academically fittest get the college degrees.

New minimum wages take effect

WASHINGTON (UPI) — New Year's Day brought higher wages for many of America's lowest-paid workers.

More than 1.5 million domestic workers were entitled to the $2-an-hour minimum wage effective Wednesday.

More than half a million farm workers covered by federal wage laws will be entitled to $1.80 an hour, up from the previous floor of $1.60.

Under 1974 changes in the Fair Labor Standards Act, fire and police employees will be eligible for overtime pay if they work more than 240 hours in a 28-day period.

Of the 86 million persons in the work force, 56 million are covered by minimum wage laws.

Under the law, domestic workers will be entitled to a minimum of $2.20 an hour Jan. 1, 1976, and $2.30 an hour Jan. 1, 1977.

Of the covered farm workers, nearly one-third will get raises. The rest already earn more than the floor wage. Minimum wages for covered agricultural workers will increase to $2 an hour in 1976; $2.20 an hour in 1977, and $2.30 an hour in 1978.

Employers who use more than 500 man days of labor in a three-month period must pay minimum wages.

IT'S THE REAL thing, says Gerald Fitzgerald, chairman of the Palatine-based Suburban Bank Group, of the gold wafers offered for sale this week.

Wait and see, say local gold dealers

by LEA TONKIN

The new U.S. gold market is off and running. But the true test of the American public's interest in the yellow commodity is yet to come, say area market watchers.

At the Palatine National Bank in Palatine, the Tuesday delivery of 1,000 specially minted one troy ounce gold bars under armed guard of Brinks security service was greeted by a crowd of bank personnel.

As the shipment was audited and distributed to personnel from several area Suburban Bank Group affiliates, chairman Gerald Fitzgerald said he does not expect an immediate flurry of gold purchases. The banks' Tuesday price of $210 an ounce, plus the Illinois sales tax, will be followed by fluctuations according to the London exchange price.

"There have been quite a few inquiries from customers about the purchase of the gold wafers," Fitzgerald said. He doesn't see a substantial decline in the gold price in coming months, with "wait and see" his attitude on how customers will take to buying gold.

At the affiliated Suburban National Bank of Elk Grove Village, cashier Joyce Luehl reported, "We did make a couple of sales, and we've had quite a few calls."

Bob Hopkins, owner of the Bob and Sonni's Coin Mart in Des Plaines, said the Tuesday drop in gold prices is surprising, but short-lived. "I don't know what happened to the market," he said. "Our gold sales have been good, but today it dropped off. I'm a little perplexed."

Hopkins said a steadily increasing demand for gold coins during the past several years reflected uncertainty about the value of printed currency and economic conditions.

"We sold a 100 corona gold piece from Austria for $52 three and a half years ago," Hopkins said. "It's $190 plus now."

He said an advantage of buying gold coins compared to gold bars is that it is readily convertible to cash and the ability of a dealer to appraise coins. Gold bars must be assayed before they may be resold at many banks.

Active trading is expected in the gold

Great gold rush starts as fizzle

by RICHARD HUGHES
UPI Business Writer

A gold rush encouraged by speculators seeking quick profits when the U.S. ban on gold bullion ownership was lifted fizzled Tuesday and sent gold prices tumbling from record high levels of nearly $200 an ounce.

"There is no gold rush. It's more like a funeral march," said Samuel Weiss, a major New York wholesaler.

"This is a good show to Europe that Americans are not as stupid as they think," he said. "Gold is still a good buy but not at these prices."

The price of gold soared to nearly $200 an ounce Monday in anticipation of a large U.S. demand when buying, selling and owning gold became legal for the first time since the Depression of the 1930s.

But when banks and brokerage houses throughout the nation opened gold sales Tuesday, they reported a number of inquiries but few takers.

President Ford summed up the feelings of most Americans who passed up the chance to buy gold. "I'm not a speculator," he told newsmen at his ski resort in Colorado.

In the commodity trading pits of New York and Chicago, where the normal business is in grains and frozen pork bellies, there was an early flurry of trading that sent prices soaring on January delivery sales to $190 or more.

But trading slowed and prices closed as much as $10 to $12 lower.

The price of gold on major European trading markets, where gold has been bought and sold for hundreds of years, fell even before the major U.S. gold markets opened and fell even lower when a rush to buy failed to materialize.

In Paris, where it reached $201.40 an ounce Monday, gold fell to $193.27. In Zurich and London, where it hit $199 Monday, the price plunged to $188 and $186.50.

Gold dealers in London and New York said the U.S. demand for gold-historically prized as a hedge against shrinking currencies — was less than expected.

Weiss said government warnings about the risks and hidden costs that could add as much as $50 an ounce to the price, plus high prices created by speculators "after a killing," dampened enthusiasm. "The public is tired of getting ripped off," Weiss said.

'The Granite Lady' salutes the Old Mint

In celebration of the Old Mint's 100th birthday, the award winning film, "The Granite Lady," and a new million dollar gold display opened to the public Dec. 10 at the Old Mint in San Francisco.

Last month, the Council on International Nontechnical Events conferred its top award, a Golden Eagle, on "The Granite Lady," starring the Old San Francisco Mint.

Narrated by actress Mercedes McCambridge, the 20 minute color film is a rich tapestry of historical events set against the creation, abandonment, rescue, preservation and restoration of the Old Mint.

THE ROMANCE of the Old West, the realism of the economic impact of the discovery of gold, the honor of the San Francisco earthquake and fire and the leading role played by the Old Mint, then and now, make the film a fine blend of quality entertainment, history and education.

Not only a salute to the years embracing the Old Mint, the film also celebrates our Bicentennial, emphasizing the diversity of our cultural, architectural and historical heritage as our nation grows and prospers.

The glitter and magnetism of gold can be seen in the new Million-Dollar Gold Display. Encased in a cylinder of glass are 71 bars of .999 fine gold, the purest of gold, and a 1,000 gold nugget collection considered the finest in the world. The gold nuggets, valued at over $250,000, are on loan from Sierra County, Calif., and were taken from the Ruby Drift Mine near Downieville.

THE FINE GOLD bars, a tiny part of the nation's gold store, are from the San Francisco Assay Office. The 71 bars weigh a little over a ton (28,168 Troy ounces) and, when valued at the official price of $42.22 per ounce, are worth a bit over $1 million. On the open market, the bars would be worth roughly four times as much.

Sophisticated security and sensing devices made it possible to put the gold on public view in steel walk-through vaults in the museum area of the Old Mint.

Located at Fifth and Mission Streets, San Francisco, the Old Mint is open to the public Tuesdays through Sundays, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. There is no admission charge.

Address your questions in care of this column to Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill., 60006.

Million-dollar display consists of 71 bars weighing more than a ton, plus 1,000 nuggets.

Vote for your favorite commemorative issue

We greet a New Year and that brings us to Curiosity Survey No. 4 to determine the best liked and least liked U.S. Postal commemoratives released during 1974.

Recapping the 10-cent adhesives:
March 11 — Veterans of Foreign Wars
March 26 — Robert Frost
April 18 — Expo '74/Preserve the Environment
May 4 — Horse Racing
May 11 — Sk. Lab
June 6 — Universal Postal Union (block of eight)
June 17 — Mineral Heritage (block of four)
June 18 — Pari Harrod
July 4 — Bicentennial (block of four)
Aug. 6 — Chautauqua
Aug. 16 — Hard Winter Wheat
Sept. 23 — Energy Conservation
Oct. 10 — Sleepy Hollow
Oct. 12 — Retarded Children

In voting Curiosity Survey No. 4, please consider the Mineral Heritage issue, the Universal Postal Union set and the Bicentennial block of four stamps as one stamp each. Send your vote for the best liked and least liked 1974 U.S. commemoratives on a postcard to Stamp Notes, Paddock Publications, Inc., P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006 before Jan. 31.

DUE TO THE increase in postage rates, which was to have become effective in Jan. 1974 but was delayed by the Cost of Living Council until March, there were several new regular issues too:

Nov. 1973 — 11-cent Air Mail stamp
Dec. 1973 — 10-cent Crossed Flags
Dec. 1973 — 10-cent Jefferson Memorial
Jan. 2 — 26-cent Mt. Rushmore Air Mail
Jan. 4 — 10-cent Mr. Zip
Jan. 11 — 8-cent Statue of Liberty Air Mail
Jan. 23 — 10-cent Elizabeth Blackwell
Aug. 5 — Booklet
Oct. 23 — Three 10-cent Christmas stamps

January also saw the release of four new postal stationery items to meet the revised rates — the 11-cent, 12-cent and 18-cent postal cards and an 18-cent aérogramme.

Another 10-cent aérogramme was issued April 4, the 1.8-cent Volunteers envelope was released Aug. 23 and Aug. 31 the 10-cent Tennis envelope was issued.

Four souvenir cards were issued during 1974 — Hobbyists in February, INTERNADA in June, STOCKHOLM in September and EXFILMEX in October.

It was a busy year, highlighted by the diamond format of the Mineral Heritage issue (which most people affix improperly to their envelopes) and the non-lick experimental Christmas issue, which most people seem to like. On to 1975...

THE FRANKLIN D. Roosevelt Philatelic Society will mark the anniversary of the birth of the former President Jan. 30 with a cacheted cover.

It will be franked with the one and three cents Roosevelt Memorial stamps (Scott Nos. 930 and 932) and the 8-cent Roosevelt coil stamp (Scott No. 1305). Covers will be canceled Jan. 30 at Hyde Park, N.Y., where Roosevelt was born in 1882.

Collectors desiring these covers should send $1 for each cover to the FDR Philatelic Society, P.O. Box 150-30, Clinton Corners, N.Y. 12514 enclosing a self-addressed, stamped, business-size envelope for their return.

Stamp office attracts tourists

The U.S. Postal Service's Philatelic Sales Division office is becoming a tourist attraction, and an attraction for Washingtonians, too.

More and more Americans are discovering that stamps are a better savings device than dollar bills.

The Postal Service provides a reason. It's encouraging stamp collecting and probably more Americans are saving stamps now than at any time since Franklin D. Roosevelt popularized the hobby a few generations back.

Most Americans can, and do, augment their collections by calling regularly at their nearest post office. But the philatelic office has complete stocks unlike most post offices.

The office is on the 12th Street side of the building, part of the Federal Triangle between Constitution Avenue and Pennsylvania Avenue NW, adjacent to Washington's Mall.

A RECENT SURVEY by a Washington newspaper revealed that thousands of Washingtonians are buying stamps as inflation hedges, and the newspaper even found stewardesses and housewives among the collectors.

After all, stamps always retain face value, are certain to appreciate, and as a last resort, can always be stuck on envelopes.

By and large, the philatelic office sells stamps at face value.

The philatelic office is a haven for dealers and hobbyists alike. The office has a huge display of foreign stamps valued around $5 million. When you're looking for the office, enter the first unlocked door south of Pennsylvania on 12th Street.

Buffalo Grove High actors show well

High School Dist. 214

The Buffalo Grove High School Individual Events team placed eight out of 41 teams at a recent tournament in Dundee.

Mary Herrmann and Sally Leadley received a first place trophy for their dramatic duet acting. Other students who received at least one first-place rating in one of the three rounds include: Diane Hesler, oratorical declamation; Mary Beth Lee, humorous interpretation, and Jody Lorimer, prose reading.

In addition, the Reader's Theatre group won a third place trophy for their presentation of "Alice in Wonderland." Reader's Theatre is a group interpretative reading where students rely on voice and facial expression to set the mood and portray the characters rather than using movement or props.

Students performing in Reader's Theatre were Joyce Alender, John Baumann, Teresa de Groh, Mary Rose Fabish, Tammy Gunn, Rick Horndasch, Vickie Mayberry, Rodney McKenzie, Sue Means and Debbie Rasmussen. The student director was Roberta McKenzie.

The team's next competition will be on Jan. 11 when the 50 members will divide to participate in two tournaments, one at West Leyden and the other at North Chicago High School.

The 35-member drill team of Wheeling High School marched in the annual Chicago Christmas Parade down State Street. The group includes co-captains Colleen Morgan and Marilyn Schuetz and other seniors: Liz Balogh, Laura Davis, Laura Dawson, Kathy Gilligan, Kim Holzkopf, Debbie Kaage, Laura Kelly, Tracy Klein, Chris Lischetti, Linda Mendralls, Dawn Olson, Cheri Piorucci, Patti Rutter, Gail Thomas and Debbie Zmuda.

Sophomores are Angie Deering, Mary Gauthier, Rita Katharine, Andrea McCabe, Sue Pavlick and Debbie Stricker.

River Trails Dist. 26

The River Trails Junior High School student body recently collected $102.73 in a four-day drive for endangered animals. The money will be sent to the Defenders of Wildlife, a nonprofit, educational organization based in Washington, D.C.

The fund raising was the culmination of a study of endangered animals by River Trails students. The youngsters did research papers on the animals and took the endangered species tour at Brookfield Zoo.

Maine Township High School Dist. 207

The Maine North High School individual speech events team won six trophies recently at the Dundee High School Invitational Tournament.

Award winners include Ed Hensel, first, original comedy; Steve DiMenna, second, original comedy, and third, oratorical declamation; Dean Phebus, second, oratorical declamation, and second, humorous duet acting, and Lalla Tarazi, second, humorous duet acting.

St. Joseph Worker School

St. Joseph the Worker School will hold an open house Jan. 8 at the school, 171 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling. Persons interested in the programs, philosophy and academics of St. Joseph the Worker are invited to attend the open house.

Maine Township schools

Maine Township schools will sponsor a series of registration and prescreening interviews for Project Pre-Dict services during January.

Project Pre-Dict is a federally funded program designed to identify and serve 3- and 4-year-old children with developmental problems.

A program staff member will be at each school on registration day to interview each parent and child to determine if further screening or service is necessary. Full screening will be done at the Project Pre-Dict Center, 2101 Oakton St., Park Ridge, within a few weeks following registration.

Registration will be Jan. 13-15 in Des Plaines Dist. 62 schools and Jan. 20-22 in East Maine Dist. 63 schools. Parents should contact local elementary schools for the exact time and date of registration at each school.

Win at bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

Dummy meets a reversal

When a bridge expert talks about dummy reversal he isn't referring to a dummy meeting with reverses. He is referring to a play that consists of declarer making an extra trick by ruffing so many of dummy's cards in his own hand that dummy winds up with the long trump.

Today's hand shows an extreme example of this play. Normally South will be able to ruff his last diamond in dummy and make his contract but West is unkind enough to open a trump and East shows out. South can still bring the contract home but he must start reversing the dummy immediately.

He wins the first trick in dummy, ruffs a heart, leads a spade to the king ruffs a second heart, leads a spade to the ace, ruffs a third heart, leads a diamond to the ace, ruffs the last heart, gets back to dummy by leading his next to last trump; ruffs dummy's last spade with his own last trump and has 10 tricks home, while there is dummy with one more trump for the 11th.

Lawsuit could put muzzles on critics

NEW YORK — The next time a critic punches CBS in the eye, or pulls the tail of NBC's peacock, or even scrambles ABC's alphabet, he may be in trouble if a New York Court decides against a TV columnist for the Long Island newspaper, Newsday.

The Suburban Broadcasting Corporation, which operates WSNL-TV (Channel 67, a UHF station), is suing Newsday's TV writer and satirist, Marvin Kitman for $15 million.

In a complaint filed in the New York Supreme Court, the SBC suit charges Kitman's columns have made WSNL a mockery and are a "willful and malicious effort to mortally injure" the station as a "viable advertising medium." SBC also charged Kitman with slander and "derogatory and derisive statements."

THE ATTORNEYS of SBC supplied the court with some of Kitman's comments on Channel 67 as an example of the columnist's mischief.

"The morning of March 6, a large crane went to the site of a leading cultural landmark on Long Island, the Channel 67 transmitter and antenna ... The riggers turned the tower ... Since then, there have been bitter complaints from the Russian trawler fleet ... The reception of Long Island's first commercial television station had been very good in the Atlantic Ocean ... By twisting the antenna they may have damaged delicate."

"Actually, it's very easy to use the UHF dial. All you need are: The fingers of a safe cracker; and the antenna of a national radio-telescope laboratory, which allows you to listen to things a billion light years away."

"Actually, there is a better way for a station to improve its audience. Build a large screen in central Islip about six miles high and six miles wide ... and such could be seen from Long Island City to Montauk. It would also make a terrific tourist attraction."

If the SBC wins this case against Kitman, the suit raises the terrifying prospect of creating a precedent for broadcasters to sue critics for their attacks.

KITMAN, WHO was last seen rounding up copies of "Crime and Punishment," to help ease his family through the ordeal, denies he singled out Channel 67 for abuse.

Kitman told a reporter from Variety: "I'm just as reckless and irresponsible in criticism of Channels 2 (CBS), 4 (NBC), 7 (ABC), 9 (RKO), and 13. Oh, have I made a mockery of 13, WNET, the PBS outlet?"

He added, "They (SBC) must be crazy. This thing flies in the face of the whole history of TV criticism. It's a whole new concept of the TV critic's role. Critics usually ridicule and make a mockery of programs — 'Beverly Hillsbillies,' for example — and they immediately become a success."

"I'd like to thank them for putting a price on my work — six columns are worth $15 million. I advised Newsday to pay the $15 million just to show they're good sports."

NOTES: The Screen Actors Guild Annual Award "for outstanding achievement in fostering the finest ideals of the acting profession" was presented to Walter Pidgeon ... Monty Hall, host of "Let's Make a Deal," celebrated his 3,000th segment of the show on the air.

'Technomics': efficient space at low cost

Chicago designer finds Schaumburg most active area in entire nation

by LEA TONKIN

Space planning and design are crucial to efficient office operations, says designer Eugene Marzelli.

As a design expert working for a Chicago-based firm, Marzelli decided in early 1974 to take his concepts of office design right to the doorstep of the hottest commercial development market in the nation. "I did an informal land survey," said Marzelli, a Palatine resident.

Following his travels to New York, California and Florida, "I found that Schaumburg is the most active area in commercial development in the country," he said.

Preaching a doctrine of economics combined with the use of technology, Marzelli came up with a new word — "Technomics" — to describe his work. The concept is not unique although the word may be unfamiliar, he said of the Interior Space Technomics, Inc. firm.

WHAT THIS MEANS to company management is the most efficient office layout for their money. For the office worker, the increased emphasis on efficiency will mean a convenient location of desks and office equipment and storage areas to make the workload a little easier.

Marzelli uses his own offices at One Woodfield Place as an example of the efficiency employers and employees can appreciate. In 480 square feet, there are offices, work, storage and reception areas. The feeling of openness is enhanced by high ceilings and the use of vertical accents, he said.

The 80,000-square-foot office complex to be occupied by the Admiral Group of Rockwell International in February at One Woodfield Place is another example of office design concepts that feature flexibility as a key ingredient, Marzelli said. A flexible floor plan will allow the firm to relocate employee work areas when needs change. Partitioning will be installed before the wall partitions are constructed, to allow later change in office layout. Lighting fixtures may be adjusted to accommodate various office layouts.

BUDGET LIMITATIONS and the expected move-in date set the pace for interior space design, Marzelli said. But the most important element is the tenant's individual needs.

"We obtain the requirements of the tenant," Marzelli said. "In doing this we come up with a space study, drawing that allocates space according to needs for work areas. Then we determine whether the space, say 10,000 square feet is sufficient for present and future needs."

Once the client and designer have worked out an office design, the furnishings and other elements can be selected. One means of cutting the cost for relocation is to reuse existing office furniture in work areas coupled with new furniture in the corporate offices and reception areas.

"Economics has always been important," Marzelli said. The refinement of space planning as a cost-cutting measure is a continuing trend, he said. The use of decorator accents such as plants and furnishings is only one element of a planning effort that begins as soon as plans for a move are finalized and ends following a shakedown period in the new offices.

Marzelli predicts that the Northwest suburbs, particularly the Schaumburg area, will experience a rapid development of commercial buildings in the next five years, and the consequent development of innovative office design concepts many affecting many area workers.

"Out here, you can just look out the window and see the land available for development," he said. "What has happened in the past five years is only a drop in the bucket."

Space design combines technology and economics, says Eugene Marzelli.

Arlington man cited by HUD

An Arlington Heights man has received recognition from James T. Lynn, secretary of Housing and Urban Development, for making $1.7 million available to the federal government for Federal Housing Administration mortgage loans this year.

Donald Gearhart, 530 S. Arlington Heights Rd., attended an annual HUD awards banquet in Washington, D.C. Saturday to receive the special achievement award.

Gearhart, a real property officer for HUD's regional office in Chicago, introduced a new method this year by which the federal government could repair and resell tax and mortgage delinquent properties more quickly throughout the nation.

Gearhart's new method increased the number of properties that the federal government resold this year on the market to 14,000 compared to 8,600 parcels that the government remarketed last year.

An open floor plan is one answer to requirement for a flexible office design.

Mt. Prospect tops in housing starts

Mount Prospect has regained its lead as the top Chicago metropolitan area community in new housing starts during 1974, a Bell Federal Savings and Loan Assn. survey of building indicates. The report surveyed residential construction permits for the first 11 months of the year.

A total of 86 single-family home permits and 1,105 multi-family construction permits were issued in Mount Prospect during the 11-month period.

The Bell survey of November housing permits showed a continued downward spiral compared with the same month a year ago, however. An over-all 47 per cent drop in residential construction permits in the Chicago metropolitan area was recorded for the month, tumbling from 2,295 permits in November 1973 to 1,225 during November 1974.

SINGLE-FAMILY units decreased less than multi-family permits. The single-family permits dropped 34 per cent in November compared with the same month in 1973, down to 646 permits compared with 980 permits. Multi-family permits for the month dropped 56 per cent, from 1,135 to 579.

During the first 11 months of 1974, all housing in the six-county area reached 20,969 permits, a 43 per cent decrease from the 41,150 reported in the same period of 1973.

Among the top 10 housing leaders in the Chicago metropolitan area in addition to Mount Prospect for the first 11 months of 1974 are the municipalities of Schaumburg, ranked second, and Elk Grove Village, fourth. Single-family home permits totaled 662, and multi-family unit permits reached 512 in Schaumburg. In Elk Grove Village, new single-family home permits totaled 204 units and multi-family permits totaled 300 during the period.

$16 million available for mortgages

A savings and loan association building a branch in Hoffman Estates has announced the release of $16 million for mortgages on single-family houses.

Lincoln Federal Savings and Loan Assn. of Berwyn is making the money available immediately as a "shot in the arm" to the local economy, said Frank J. Kinst, president.

The money will be available to qualified purchasers of prime condition properties for periods of up to 25 years at 9.25 per cent interest. The association also will charge a 2.5 per cent service charge for credit report and appraisal fees. Lincoln Federal will concentrate on financing up to 80 per cent of appraised value on new and used detached single-family houses, Kinst said.

Kinst said the association hopes to accommodate couples who have been stymied by lack of mortgage money, and that the association will consider applications regardless of whether applicants are Lincoln customers.

Kinst said the money is available because of increased deposits and anticipated savings expected at the Hoffman Estates branch.

The local facility, under construction at the southwest corner of Higgins Road and Gannon Drive, is expected to open in April.

Title insurance firms to open offices

The suburbs will gain two permanent title insurance company offices in January, offering escrow closing and other services to Northwest suburban residents.

Pioneer National Title Insurance Co., which maintains a temporary office at 121 S. Wilke Rd., Arlington Heights, plans to open a permanent branch office at 212 W. Northwest Hwy. Jan. 13. Pioneer also has offices at 68 W. Washington St., Chicago.

Chicago Title Insurance Co. will open an Arlington Heights office Jan. 6 at 115 N. Arlington Heights Rd. The local office is among 120 offices operated nationwide by the Chicago-based firm.

The network of CTI offices and some 1,100 agents write some 600,000 title policies a year. The company, which has $114.3 million in assets, is a wholly owned subsidiary of Chicago Title and Trust Co.

Title Insurance informs the buyer of a house or property of any claims of public record, so they may be cleared up before the transaction is completed. The title insurance protects a buyer against undiscovered claims that may arise to threaten the title and possession of property.

SHOWN ARE TWO happy girls, winners of $100 savings bonds in the Annen & Busse, Inc. Realtors' free drawing held recently as part of the firm's 25th anniversary celebration as well as the grand opening of their newest office in Buffalo Grove-Whooling. Other winners in the two month contest included four recipients of Schwinn 10-speed racers. In addition, 100 bicycle safety flags were given away.

Proper heating makes a difference

Isn't there a house like this in your neighborhood? It is styled like a mansion with a beautiful, well-kept lawn and a garden rich with shrubbery. Inside, the floors are polished to a high gleam, and the furnishings are simple but expensive. A dream house, you say to yourself. But only the owner knows that it's a drafty barn.

No matter how beautiful it is, unless a house has a balanced heating system, it cannot be a nice place to live, says the National Better Heating-Cooling Council.

A heating system must do more than keep the temperature at 68 degrees, the Council says. It must keep you comfortable. With balanced heating there are no cold corners. All rooms controlled by the same thermostat have the same temperature. Floors are warm, and there is only a slight difference — two or three degrees — between floor and ceiling temperatures.

The best way to achieve balanced heating is with a hydronic (modern hot water) heating system using baseboard panels. The panels are mounted at ankle height on the outside walls, warming the floors and acting as a barrier against the cold and drafts.

With hydronic baseboard, even if your home is a barn, it will feel like a palace.

Gains in housing sector to offset sluggishness

Gains in the housing sector in late summer and fall 1975 will help offset some of the first-half-of-the-year sluggishness.

"The result: a 1.5-million-start total as compared to 1974's estimated 1.2 million — a 20 per cent increase," predicts Marshall C. Dennison, president and chief executive officer, Associated Mortgage Companies, Inc., a Philadelphia-based national real estate financing and servicing organization.

Dennison adds that the single-family dwelling will remain the over-all leader in home building next year.

"By autumn, however, large-dollar commitments for multi-family projects should be staging a comeback. It will take that long before the gradual lowering of interest rates and inflow of savings into thrift institutions begin to truly open the monetary faucet, pumping funds into mortgages for large-scale apartment projects."

He notes that there will be some apartment construction in the first and second quarter '75, but this will be primarily of the garden variety.

"By year's end, about 50 per cent of new starts will be in single-family dwellings. Federal programs offering special assistance to this type of housing will be a key motivator."

"Multi-family (five or more units) starts will garner 34 per cent of the mix and the remainder will be in 4-unit dwellings."

Dennison estimates that 1974's final tally of housing starts will see 64.5 per cent in single-family. Only 23.3 per cent will be in five or more units, and the rest in 2-4 units, reflecting the sharp decline in mortgage funds available for larger projects.

He looks for the initial take-off in housing to come in Phoenix, parts of the Southeast (the greater Atlanta area and the Tampa-St. Petersburg region) and Denver.

The pressure for new housing is great in these locales. "The building industry will be aiming to fill this need soon as money — the grease that runs the machinery of the construction sector — becomes available."

As for the much-discussed housing cycle, Dennison comments that "we are bottoming out a bearish period."

"Weather conditions, of course, normally make the first quarter of any year a slow time, and 1975 will be no exception. But by spring, permit activity should be picking up as builders anticipate accessibility of funds in midsummer."

"I'm optimistic that the real estate industry will be well on its way out of the economic doldrums — into a period of sustained growth at the start of the next new year."

"By the 1976 bicentennial, it will surely be 'all systems go' for the nation's housing sector," Dennison concludes.

Self-cleaning snow

The next time it snows, how would you like to watch it fall and admire how pretty it is, secure in the belief that you won't have to spend back-breaking time to clean it off your driveway? Sounds pretty good, doesn't it?

Well, this is another possibility available to people who have hydronic heating, reports the National Better Heating-Cooling Council.

Hydronic snow melting consists of a network of tubing or piping buried from one-half inch to two inches below the sidewalk and driveway surface and connected to the home heating system. A small pump circulates a mixture of antifreeze and heated water. This system is controlled by a thermostat, and whenever the surface of the concrete falls to 34 degrees F, it goes into operation.

A separate 'air thermostat' is recommended to de-activate the system when the air temperature falls below 15 degrees F. According to weather experts, there is little likelihood that snow will fall when it's that cold. Because the system only operates between 15 degrees F and 34 degrees F, the burden on the house heating system is kept to a minimum.

Kaufman & Broad announces year-end inventory clearance

Kaufman and Broad Homes, Inc. has announced a year-end inventory clearance during the holiday season and January.

Kaufman and Broad marketing director Norman Hassinger stated that for the first time several incentives will be offered to new home buyers. They include reduced mortgage interests, deferred monthly payments, paid closing costs and cash bonuses.

These benefits are being offered to new home buyers at Kaufman and Broad's four Hoffman Estates communities and at Kaufman and Broad's developments at Bollingbrook and Matteson for all homes bought before January 31, 1975.

For purchases during this period, Kaufman and Broad will not require monthly payments until April 1, 1975. In addition, Kaufman and Broad will pay all closing costs for each transaction.

Mortgage rates have been reduced to 8 1/4 per cent for Kaufman and Broad's Villages townhomes at Barrington Square in Hoffman Estates; Stone Mill and Quail Run single-family homes in Bollingbrook; and Woodgate single-family homes and Provincetown condominiums in Matteson.

Kaufman and Broad is offering 8 1/4 per cent mortgage interest for its Carefree condominiums at Barrington Square and, in lieu of an adjusted interest rate for its Pine Meadow condominiums in Bollingbrook and its Woodgate condominiums in Matteson, Kaufman and Broad will reduce mortgage payments $75 per month for one year. Mortgage rates for the Pine Meadow and Woodgate condominiums is 8 1/4 per cent.

Mortgages for Kaufman and Broad's communities are available through a subsidiary of Kaufman and Broad, Inc. of Los Angeles, The International Mortgage Company which provides financing for Kaufman and Broad's homes throughout the United States.

Last month Kaufman and Broad announced a $10 million allocation in Federal Home Loan Bank funds. The funds have made available government-guaranteed mortgages for approximately 300 new homes.

As a further incentive, Hassinger announced that for each home sold during the two-month period, buyers will receive 500 gallons of gasoline or $300 worth of fresh meat.

Hassinger added that special promotions and incentives have helped to keep the Illinois Division sales steady during the last several months. In announcing the program he commented, "More than ever today's buyer is concerned with as much value as possible. We welcome their scrutiny as to value and quality."

Single-family home sales volume off 5.9% in October

Sales volume of existing single-family homes in October fell 5.9 per cent below the level for the same month a year ago, and 10.4 per cent below October 1972, according to survey results released by the National Assn. of Realtors.

Except for a brief recovery period in late spring, activity in the existing home market throughout 1974 has been slowed by adverse mortgage-market conditions, the survey reported.

The survey indicates the median price nationally of an existing single-family home in October was $31,870, an increase of 10.3 per cent from the $28,890 median price for October 1973. This marked the eighth consecutive month the year-to-year price rise matched or exceeded 10 per cent.

With the exception of the South, price advances were uniform on a regional basis. In the Northeast, the year-to-year price rise was 11 per cent to $37,190; North Central, 11 per cent to $27,470; Southern, 6 per cent to $30,770, and Western region, 11 per cent to $34,720.

By price class, October sales indicate a continuing shrinkage of the number of homes available in lower-price categories, and an increase in homes available at $30,000 or more. This October 45.5 per cent of homes sold were at prices ranging from under $10,000 to $29,999, and last year 53.5 per cent of sales were in those price ranges.

Percentages follow, with October 1973, figures in parentheses: $9,999 or under, 2.3 per cent (2.8 per cent); $10,000 to $14,999, 5.4 per cent (6.9 per cent); $15,000 to $19,999, 10.5 per cent (12.5 per cent); $20,000 to $24,999, 12.9 per cent (15.4 per cent); $25,000 to $29,999, 14.4 per cent (15.9 per cent); $30,000 to $39,999, 24.1 per cent (21.9 per cent); $40,000 to $49,999, 13.9 per cent (11.7 per cent); and $50,000 and over, 16.5 per cent (12.9 per cent).

Survey results are based upon data submitted by more than 100 Boards of Realtors nationwide. The data reflect actual sales prices rather than offering prices.

SUPPORT BY proper cabling and bracing could have prevented the destruction of this fine old tree. Artificial supports prevent such injuries as crotch-splitting and branch breaking, both of which can lead to wood decay and eventual death of the tree.

Cabling can prevent damage

Weather forecasters are predicting a more severe winter than usual this year, with storms, snows and frigid spells in many parts of the nation. Ice-covered trees glistening in the crisp air of a bright winter morning may be pleasing to the eye, but can mean total destruction for some trees.

The greatest threat to structurally weak trees are winter storms. Freezing rain sometimes builds up enormous loads of ice on trunks and branches. Tree limbs may be encased in an ice load weighing more than one hundred times as much as the limbs themselves. Literally tons of ice may coat the entire tree. At a certain point, branches begin to snap off or whole limbs crash to the ground. Fine trees can become splintered wreckage.

"Many deciduous trees divide into structurally weak V-shaped forks which tower upward and outward. Wood fibers are weakest at the point where these branches join and, unless cabled, are likely to split under stress of winds or ice," Mr. Martin L. Davey, Jr., of The Davey Tree Expert Company said. "Cabling, skillfully done by a professional arborist, provides needed support to the main limbs and saves the framework of the tree from ruin."

Because of such inherent properties as heavy foliage and brittleness of wood, some species of trees are more susceptible than others to breakage by ice storms and winds. These include, honey locust, horse chestnut, mimosa (silk tree), poplars, maples, sassafras, Siberian elm, tulip tree and willows.

Many trees can be saved by cabling and bracing which unites the separate parts of the tree to distribute the pressures of weights and strains. Inconspicuous cables installed high in the tops and reinforced by bracing rods near the fork will relieve the strain and often save trees from destruction. They hold the trunks securely and provide strength the fork itself lacks.

In bracing, prepared lengths of steel rods with lag threads at both ends are commonly used. The holding power of such rods which are 5/8" and 7/8" in diameter is similar to that of ordinary wood screws fastening two boards together.

Rigid braces are employed to support crotches, to hold split limbs or trunks together, to support cavities and to prevent two large branches from rubbing against each other.

"Each individual tree is a separate problem and no system of cabling or mechanical support can be designed which will be applicable to all trees," Mr. Davey pointed out.

Since cables are a standard form of insurance against splitting of weak V-shaped forks, they are usually installed to support little weight except under extra strains which occur on the limb during wind, rain or sleet storms. The usefulness of a cable lies in its ability to transfer part of the weight of a weak branch or limb to a stronger one, perhaps many feet distant.

A professional arborist never ties cables around trunks or limbs of trees. The constant pressure and growth of the tree could cause a constriction over the conducting channels which has a girdling effect that may kill the branch above the wrapping. For this reason, cables are attached to the limbs with eye screws, hooked-end lag screws or eye bolts of sizes which vary to suit the size of the tree.

Interest rates affecting mobile home shipments

Manufacturers' shipments of mobile homes to retailers for October totaled 23,730 compared to the 44,970 homes shipped in October 1973, a decline of 47 per cent according to E. C. Allen (Mobile Home Industries), Board chairman of the Mobile Home Manufacturers Association.

"Industry shipments which have been hurt by high interest rates throughout the year, are apparently feeling the impact of an economy in a recession phase," Allen said.

Cumulatively shipments are off 32 per cent, 341,220 homes compared to last year's 10 month total of 500,050. The dollar value of homes shipped in October was $234,674,000, down 37 per cent from the $369,769,000 of October 1973. Cumulatively shipment values were $3,101,100,000 compared to $3,831,477,000, a decline of 19 per cent.

"The Pacific region is the only area which appears to be holding up reasonably well, with shipments down only 13 per cent for the year and October shipments off only 5 per cent from 1973," Allen noted.

Allen cited double-wide shipments as showing an increase from 23.3 per cent of total shipments in the third quarter to 27.2 per cent in October. "This indicates a greater acceptance of the mobile home life style among the younger married population who have turned to mobile housing as a viable alternative to meeting their needs."

"With the entry of the Federal National Mortgage Association into the secondary market for mobile home loans, more money will be available to families seeking loans for the purchase of mobile homes. This program along with several others will be explained at our Finance Forum in Louisville next month," he concluded.

Real estate facts

President, Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors

The home improvement industry is booming according to the National Home Improvement Council (NHIIC). The NHIIC expects an increase of up to 20 per cent in business this year over the 1973 mark of $18.9 billion, based on Department of Commerce figures.

According to a recent article in the New York News, many homeowners are tackling home improvement projects themselves rather than hiring professionals, in the interest of saving anywhere from 30 per cent to 60 per cent in costs.

But whether you're a professional or do it yourself, there are certain things you should keep in mind if you're remodeling with an eye to enhancing your home's resale value.

First, you can't expect a dollar-for-dollar return on every improvement you make. Some improvements have a high percentage of recovery cost; others have only nominal resale value.

And, second, it's possible to over-improve property in terms of the value of neighboring homes. Should your improvement mean that the home is worth far more than other homes in the neighborhood, it would be difficult to gain that new value in the sale of the home.

One dollar spent on remodeling adds only about 50 cents to the resale price of a house, according to a recent survey. Some improvements add nothing at all.

While modernizing a kitchen or bathroom is almost certain to reap maximum return in resale value, outdoor improvements — adding a patio or landscaping extensively — tend to be risky investments. Exterior improvements, such as adding storm windows, aluminum siding or new shingles also offer little return.

Before remodeling, you and your family should decide what repairs are imperative and what improvements are merely desirable. Keep in mind that what seems a necessary improvement to you may not seem so to the family who might one day offer to buy your home.

And remember, above all, that the most important factor in the sale price of a home is the quality of the neighborhood.

If the average price of a home in your neighborhood is $35,000 and your house cost $30,000, you may recover most of a $5,000 remodeling project. But a $10,000 improvement venture might price you out of the market for homes in that neighborhood.

Before remodeling — as well as before putting your house up for sale — why not consult a Realtor? He or she is probably your best source of market information on neighborhood growth patterns, current housing trends and features that make a home saleable.

ABC expands in center

Bennett & Kahnweiler Associates recently announced that ABC Records, Inc., a subsidiary of American Broadcasting Company, has leased the one-story office and warehouse building at 360 Scott Street in Centex Industrial Park, Elk Grove Village. The building contains 24,752 square feet and will be used by ABC for the warehousing and distribution of phonograph records and tape cassettes for the entire midwest region.

This is the third transaction that Bennett & Kahnweiler Associates has made with ABC in recent years. Bennett & Kahnweiler Associates has been appointed the exclusive agent for ABC to sublease their present 17,500 square foot office and warehouse facility at 120 King Street in Elk Grove Village.

Robert A. Stone and Edward A. Rowe of Bennett & Kahnweiler Associates were cooperating brokers in the $530,000 lease transaction. Attorneys were Arnold Weinberg of Curtis, Marks, Katz, Walker & Blatt representing the lessor and American Broadcasting Company was represented by house counsel.

Heat makes it livable

No matter what home improvement project you are planning — a finished basement, a completed attic, an add-on room — it won't be livable all year long, cautions the National Better Heating-Cooling Council, unless it has heat. With hydronic heating, the system can be expanded easily because the tubing can be snaked through walls.

Frederick F. Webster, chairman of the board of the First National Bank of Des Plaines, has announced the election of seven officers to new positions of responsibility in the bank.

John W. Heddens Jr., moves up from senior vice president and secretary to executive vice president and secretary, reporting to Arthur R. Weiss, president. A First National Bank employee since 1959, he was in charge of all commercial lending. Prior to that, he was cashier and manager of operations.

Heddens, a resident of Mount Prospect, is a graduate of the University of Illinois and the University of Wisconsin Graduate School of Banking. He also completed a National Mortgage School course sponsored by American Bankers Assn. at Ohio State.

JACK E. LAVOLD has been promoted from vice president and cashier to senior vice president and cashier responsible for bank operations.

Since joining the bank in 1968 as assistant vice president Lavold has been active in the internal operations of First National. A resident of Lake Zurich, he attended the University of Illinois, Northwestern University and DePaul University and holds a graduate certificate from the American Institute of Banking. He is also a graduate of the University of Wisconsin's NABAC School and Graduate School of Banking.

Vice president and trust officer James S. Sheldon has been elected senior vice president and trust officer in charge of the trust department. He joined First National in 1966 as vice president in charge of the trust department.

A 1959 graduate of the University of Illinois College of Law, Sheldon is a member of the Illinois Bar Assn. He resides in Des Plaines.

WILLIAM E. STAAT has moved up from vice president of mortgage loans department to senior vice president in charge of the new property development department.

Staat, who began his FNB career as a savings teller in 1949, has been associated with the bank's mortgage department since 1957 when he was named assistant cashier. Staat is a resident of Arlington Heights, and a graduate of the American Institute of Banking, the University of Wisconsin Graduate School of Banking and the National Mortgage School in Columbus, Ohio.

Bruce I. McPhee, vice president, will be in charge of the commercial lending and mortgage loan departments.

McPhee, Winnetka, has been with First National since 1966, has had extensive experience in the real estate and commercial loan departments. ### Check heating before cooling

When shopping for a new home, give more consideration to heating than to cooling, advises the National Better Heating-Cooling Council. Remember that in most parts of the country heat is needed at least eight months of the year. Cooling, on the other hand, is needed for a few weeks, or a month at most. For optimum comfort, the Council recommends hydronic heating with baseboard heating panels installed on outside walls.

Guess what the new Friden 3012 printing calculator costs.

This is our new Friden® 12 digit electronic printer by Singer. It has features you'd expect on $450 to $500 calculators. But now you'll get them on a quality calculator that sells for the price of a good adding machine.

The 3012 has direct access memory. 12 digit capacity with underflow. Add mode. And a full decimal range with selectable roundoff. Constant multiplier and divisor. Item counter. % key. Clear. Two-color printing. Zero and double cipher keys. Punctuation in the thousands. And a buffered keyboard you can't outpace.

All usually very expensive features. Until now. The new Singer 3012 printer. Using it is a pleasure. It's compact, with a quick, light touch. With the features you want at a price you can't beat. And you can't beat Singer Service.

Then subtract around $200.

Announce class schedule for brokers, salesmen

Chicago-based Real Estate Education Company has announced the January schedule of classes for prospective real estate brokers and salesmen that meets new state course regulations for pre-licensing classroom instruction.

The requirement that candidates for salesmen's licenses successfully complete 30 hours of classroom instruction in basic real estate transactions prior to registering to take the state's license examination continues in effect. But under the new regulations, instruction is limited to two class sessions of two hours each, per week.

"Thus our evening classes for salesman applicants scheduled to start Jan. 6 or 7 in Winnetka, Rosemont, Oak Brook, Chicago and Alsip will continue through February," according to Richard W. Herb, Real Estate Education Company vice president. These classes are co-sponsored by the Illinois Association of Realtors. Tuition is $100, plus $15 for books and materials.

Courses will be completed Feb. 25 or 26, enabling graduates to register by the March 14, 1975 deadline to take the state license exam in mid-April.

Classes will be held as follows: starting Monday, Jan. 6 —

Winnetka Community House, 620 Lincoln, 6:30 - 8:30 p.m.

Sheraton-Oak Brook, 1401 W. 22nd St., 6:30 - 8:30 p.m.

Crouching Lion, Alsip, 5000 W. 127th (at Cicero and I-294), 6:30 - 8:30 p.m.

Starting Tuesday, Jan. 7 — Real Estate Education Center, 327 S.

LaSalle St., Chicago 6 - 8 p.m.
8655 W. Higgins Rd., Rosemont, 8:30 - 10:30 p.m.

In addition to fulfilling the requirement for salesmen's licenses, broker candidates are required to have completed 60 hours of advanced classroom study before registering for their exam.

"Effective Nov. 1, 1974, the 60-hour requirement has to be met by taking a series of four 15-hour courses on specific real estate subjects," Herb said.

Two of these, Advanced Real Estate Principles and Contracts and Conveyances, are required. The remaining two may be selected from among several 15-hour elective courses. Real Estate Education Company will offer four such electives: Appraisal, Property Management, Financing and Sales & Brokerage.

Instructors from Real Estate Education Company will conduct evening-hour sessions for prospective real estate brokers in classroom facilities at 8655 W. Higgins Rd., Chicago. Each class will run for four weeks.

Course offerings for January are as follows. Starting Monday, Jan. 6 —

Advanced Real Estate Principles, 6 - 8 p.m.

Contracts and Conveyances, 8 - 10 p.m.

Starting Tuesday, Jan. 7 —

Appraisal, 6 - 8 p.m.

Financing, 8 - 10 p.m.

Tuition for each of the 15-hour broker courses is $75.

Information on the classes can be obtained from Real Estate Education Company, 500 N. Dearborn, Chicago, (312) 644-0175.

Financing arranged for Oakton Square

Financing of $1,175,000 has been arranged by Republic Realty Mortgage Corporation for the Oakton Square Shopping Center, a 50,500 square foot facility located on 4.15 acres, at the corner of Oakton Street and Oakton Place.

The all-masonry and steel building is fully-sprinklered and air-conditioned and parking will be provided for 245 cars.

Currently the center is 97 per cent leased to two major tenants, Walgreens and Dominicks, with an additional 2,650 square feet of satellite space to be leased. The center is scheduled for completion in November, 1975.

Owner as trustee is the Michigan Avenue National Bank. Republic was represented by Stuart L. Greenberg, assistant vice president.

People in business

Edison's Zietlow honored as lifesaver

Commonwealth Edison Co. Lineman Henry J. Zietlow knows what heroism feels like.

Zietlow, Des Plaines, was working on an overhead line in Clarendon Hills last May when a fellow worker contacted a high-voltage line. Zietlow climbed a pole, administered mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and restored his fellow crewman to consciousness.

Zietlow was awarded a citation and a paid-up life insurance policy worth $1,000 by the utility for his actions. He works in the company's Des Plaines Valley area.

Florida's last great waterfront surrounds you with the life style you always dreamed about

PUNTA GORDA ISLES

It's worth all the hard days you worked to earn it!

There's an explorer's spirit in the wind that billows your sails on Charlotte Harbor. Ponce de Leon navigated these same sparkling waters in 1513 and sprinkled the chart with romantic names — Matanca, Patricio, San Ysabel, Boca Grande.

Here is beautiful, unspoiled land with room for more water-oriented living than any other county in Florida. The open spaces are still here, and the clean, fresh air, invigorating sunshine and sparkling tropical waters.

Charlotte Harbor is a 120 square mile body of sheltered and unpolluted salt water that surrounds Punta Gorda Isles on three sides. Here you can live a new lifestyle that reflects the free spirit of Florida's "Last Great Waterfront." And almost every day of the year there's golf, gardening, fishing, sailing, swimming, hunting and the enjoyment of friendly neighbors at the "Isles" clubs.

You choose the lifestyle and we'll make it a carefree adventure in good living — waterfront homes, condominiums or Park Lane homesites set in spacious greenways near Southwest Florida's most unique marina recreation complex. Punta Gorda Isles — a community of custom homes designed by Florida living specialists. There's so much more, write us.

How's your '74 financial report card?

It's financial report card time again! How did you do financially in 1974? Did your net worth rise? If it fell, can you account for the reasons?

While there's no requirement for year-to-year increases, accumulations of assets, increased equity in a home, an increase in cash value of life insurance, and vested interests in retirement plans usually post gains in personal net worth.

"Your Personal Money Plan" is a complete system for managing your family's money, and the personal balance sheet is only one of the 18 worksheets included. These worksheets will help you determine your net worth and take positive steps for correcting any problems. (To order your copy of "Your Personal Money Plan," send $1 and your printed name and address to Managing Your Family's Money to Padlock Publications, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60005. Allow 3-4 weeks for delivery.)

When completing the worksheet, remember that a personal balance sheet represents a snapshot of your financial condition as of a specific instant. Cash you may have in the bank can be spent the next day, but for the purposes of the net worth calculation, it remains an asset over all.

YOUR NET-WORTH calculation can be more than a year-end report card. By analyzing the individual entries and the result, you can determine these important bits of information:

- Are all your assets working as hard as they might? Investments, savings, money tied up in insurance cash values and miscellaneous properties should be yielding returns that keep up with inflation. If not, they are generating negative income.

- Excessive cash in a checking account beyond the amount needed to assure free check-writing represents lazy nonworking dollars. Excessive cash in a passbook savings account is not generating enough interest income to keep abreast of the depreciating purchasing power of the dollar. A rainy-day "comfort lump" in savings is desirable and necessary for good family money management, but any excess represents lazy dollars that are shirking their responsibility.

For one analysis of your personal balance sheet, divide your assets (those things you own) into working and nonworking categories. A savings account is a working asset. So, too, are stocks, investments in income-producing property, bonds and the cash value of life insurance.

Managing your family's money

by Merle E. Dowd

Nonworking assets include your car, home furnishings, a boat and other personal property. Your biggest asset could be the house you own — along with the bank or mortgage company. The equity in a personal residence can be a leveraged, hard-working asset that likely will outperform inflation.

After you have divided your assets into working and nonworking categories, examine them for possible switches. Lazy assets that are not working as hard as they might may be holding back growth of your net worth if you value it in terms of purchasing power rather than simply in dollars.

- Does the increase in net worth, if any, represent a loss or gain in real dollar value? That is, did the increase in net worth equal, exceed, or fall to match inflation? If your net worth increased only five percent while inflation cut the purchasing power of your dollar by 12 percent over the past year, then your real net worth declined.

- How about liabilities? Did your debt load increase either in total dollars or as a percent of your assets? A total look at how much you owe could be an early warning that you may have allowed your family to become overloaded with debts — a highly vulnerable position in view of the country's precarious financial condition and the sorry state of the economy.

- Can you account for any disturbing revelations? If your net worth declined, was it because of one or more children in college, a nonrecurring casualty loss, or a deep decline in the value of stocks or mutual funds? If you can identify the reasons for differences, you can benefit in 1975 by taking steps to correct problems and reinforce your positive actions.

Comparisons of year-end results from year to year afford one of the biggest advantages of a continuing series of personal balance sheet summations of a year's money-related activities.

(The Register and Tribune Syndicate, 1975)

Michael Howlett

Howlett to address Realtors

Secretary of State, Michael J. Howlett, will address the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors at its regular monthly dinner meeting Thursday, Jan. 9, 1975 at 7:00 p.m. at the Casa Royale, 783 Lee Street, Des Plaines.

Howlett is the only Democrat in history elected to four consecutive terms of statewide office in Illinois. In 1972 he was elected Secretary by the largest plurality of any of the victorious Democrats on the state ticket. Previously, he was Auditor of Public Accounts for 12 years. He was the only auditor in Illinois history elected with governors of both parties. In both positions he earned recognition from newspapers, civic groups and professional organizations for efficiency and economy in office.

As secretary, he has increased services to the public while reducing staff. His office does more work with fewer employees. On his first day in office, he ordered removal of all photographs of public officials from driver license stations. In their place, a toll-free telephone number was posted so any citizen with a complaint or suggestion could call the secretary's office in Springfield. During World War II, Howlett served in the U.S. Navy. As regional director of the Office of Price Stabilization during the Korean conflict, he smashed a sensational horsemeat racket.

From 1952 until 1960, he was vice president of the Sun Steel Company. In 1956, he started an investigation of the State Auditor's office which led to uncovering the Hodge scandal.

Subject of Mr. Howlett's talk before the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors will be, "Economy and Efficiency in a Public Office". He will discuss what he has been doing to save money for the taxpayers of Illinois.

Keep vents open

When the ceiling of a home is well insulated, attic vents should be left open winter and summer. Winter ventilation lessens the possibility of moisture condensation on the underside of the roof. Summer ventilation keeps the attic cooler.

Russell Hughes joins Plum Grove Bank

Russell Paul Hughes recently was elected vice chairman of the Plum Grove Bank of Rolling Meadows, said Robert P. Abate, chairman of the bank's executive committee. Hughes will be primarily responsible for assisting Northwest suburban area corporations in the acquisition and merger field.

"Russ Hughes comes to our banking group with a long and dedicated professional career in financial management and public accounting," Abate said. "Our acquisition and merger service which we are providing to companies of all sizes is unique. We are one of a relatively small number of banks in the country that now have this expertise. Hughes will play a key role in the continued expansion of our services to the Northwest suburban area business community," Abate added.

In his 30-year career Hughes has served in executive capacities with public accounting and financial management firms. A certified public accountant, he received his bachelor's degree in commerce from the University of Denver, Colo., is a graduate of the Northwestern University Institute for management and of the Aspen Institute for Humanistic Studies, Aspen, Colo.

Active in civic and professional groups, Hughes is a member and past senior vice president and director of the Illinois Society of CPA's, a member of the Colorado Society of CPA's and of the International Committee, American Institute of CPA's. He is also past president of the Fox Valley Credit and Financial Management Group and past chairman of the Elgin Junior College Accounting Dept. Advisory Committee. In addition, he has served on the board of directors of the Illinois Assn. of the Professions and the Chicago Midwest Credit Men's Assn. Hughes is also a past president of the

The Plum Grove Bank is at 2701 Algonquin Rd. Rolling Meadows, and is a member of the Elgin Banking Group.

Topcoat makes a difference

Whether you're painting a piece of furniture, a ceiling, or a door, the choice of a topcoat is very important. An important consideration which some do-it-yourself painters tend to overlook is choosing the degree of gloss in a paint. Most paints and enamels are available in either Gloss, Semi-Gloss, Satin or Flat finishes.

Degrees of gloss are not available merely to create a shiny or dull effect. There are very practical reasons for choosing a High-Gloss over a Flat enamel or vice versa. High gloss finishes are useful for surfaces that have to withstand moisture, grease, and frequent washing. The kitchen, bathroom, some woodwork, and exterior trim fall into this category.

Large wall areas in rooms where people gather such as living rooms, recreational rooms, or bedrooms are usually not painted with Gloss finishes because of the glare created. Ceilings and walls should be painted with a flat paint, thus cutting down on the glare.

A table top will look best and wear better when painted with a Gloss or Semi-Gloss. Doors are normally coated with a Semi-Gloss or Gloss enamel to make cleaning easier.

Des Plaines man wins bumper sticker contest

Bricklayer Robert Naccarato recently was startled at a job site in Franklin

Robert Naccarato

Park to see a team of men heading straight toward him. As a photographer flashed a picture, Naccarato, 2231 Pine St., Des Plaines, was congratulated by the delegation for submitting the winning slogan in a Chicago-area masonry promotion.

"Brick... past, present and future" is Naccarato's winning entry, selected in the name-the-bumper-sticker contest sponsored by the Chicago Masonry Institute. A $50 prize and an expense-paid weekend for two at The Abbey in Lake Geneva are his winnings.

Some 1,300 entries were submitted in the contest, said Colin Munro of the Masonry Institute. Participants included members of local 21, United Order of American Bricklayers and Stone Masons, and Locals 14 and 27 of the Bricklayers, Masons and Plasterers International Union. Representatives of the three locals and the masonry institute completed the judging.

1974 review

Hersey enjoyed a supercalifragilisticexpialidocious year

Like the headline says, Hersey High School experienced a sports year that few schools ever have or ever will enjoy.

The Huskies carted away a good deal of the glory both in and out of the Herald area.

There was that special trip downstate that no other area basketball team had ever made.

There was that glorious day in Prospect's fieldhouse which saw the Huskies bask in state title glory as Illinois' best gymnastics team.

There was still another success in conference wrestling.

There was that fine football season which just missed being a super one.

There was the third straight year of overall domination of the Mid-Suburban League and the Paddock Cup which goes with it.

And there was Dave Corzine — the school's superstar basketball player. Corzine quite possibly was the first prep to be passed over as an All-State selection only to become an All-America player.

Still, many other area teams and individuals besides Hersey had their shining moments.

There were state team and individual champs along with high finishes and near misses.

Besides still another All-America honor, there was a national record and also a national champ.

There were many historic firsts and the extending or breaking of streaks.

There were successes in every sport.

This all made it most difficult for the sports department to rate the top 20 stories of 1974. Nevertheless, the seven-man staff was up for the challenge.

What follows is the result of this staff's

Paul Logan

Associate Sports Editor

voting. There are also lists of the near misses (21 through 30) and other stories that were considered deserving of recognition.

Hersey goes downstate

No. 1 — Hersey, coached by Roger Steingraber, earned the area's first trip downstate with a thrilling Supersectional victory over Waukegan. The Huskies lost a close one to Bloom at Champaign, but the spell had been broken. A team had finally made it to the Elite Eight. The trail had been made for — hopefully — many more area teams to come.

Huskies win gym crown

No. 2 — Ending what appeared to be a never-ending stranglehold on the state gymnastics crown by Hinsdale Central, the Hersey gym team of Coach Don Von Ebers took the title. The Huskies had a goal — winning the championship for Gary Morava, a former Hersey star who died after a gymnastics accident. The goal was achieved, thanks in part to the first-place co-title performance of side horse man Bruce Freedman.

St. Viator tops Evanston

No. 3 — Stunning the experts and shocking their opponents to boot, the St. Viator Lions of Coach Jim Lyne registered a monumental victory for the area with their win over Evanston in football. The Wildkats, a perennial powerhouse, had only lost 34 games compared to 119 wins and four ties under Coach Murney Lazier. It proved area teams could play with the best in the state.

Lions in grid Elite Eight

No. 4 — St. Viator became one of two area teams (Schaumburg) to win berths in the first state football playoffs. After quarterback Bobby Walsh helped engineer the polishing off of Deerfield, the Lions advanced to the Elite Eight. Their dream ended, however, several days later when Willowbrook defeated them. Thus ended a brilliant year which saw them roll up a 9-2 record.

Saxons take Super Bowl

No. 5 — Schaumburg, playing in its first Super Bowl, captured the title against favored Hersey, 7-6. The Saxons were led by quarterback Russ Zonca, who set up his team's only score with a 54-yard run.

Conant wins MSL thriller

No. 6 — Thanks to a rebounded shot by Roger Sander with just two seconds remaining, Conant won its first Mid-Suburban League championship at Arlington, 64-63. Sander's basket marked the only time the Dick Redlinger coached Cougars has led the Cardinals.

Sox choose Monroe

No. 7 — Larry Monroe, Forest View's superb pitcher, was the White Sox' first-round draft choice. Monroe was the winningest hurler in area history, compiling a 27-9 record with a 1.09 earned run average.

3 gym teams among top 4

No. 8 — Besides Hersey's winning of the state gym title, two other area teams finished with the Huskies in the top four. Right behind Hinsdale Central were Rolling Meadows and Elk Grove, finishing third and fourth, respectively. Meadows, coached by Vic Avigliano, was led by Elaine Dahl's co-title showing on the side horse. The Grove, coached by Fred Gaines, was paced by Jack Henry's win on still rings and Dave Hadley's victory on the trampoline.

National mark for Trudi

No. 9 — Although only a junior, Prospect's Trudi Rebsamen set a national prep record in the 440 with 56.5 at the state tournament. She also won the 220.

Great grid year for Bison

No. 10 — Buffalo Grove, coached by Grant Blaney, enjoyed the best start ever by a first-year varsity football team. The Bison had an excellent 7-1 record, losing a one-pointer to Hersey. They finished second in the Mid-Suburban's North Division and had the best record in the league overall.

Hersey retires 2nd cup

No. 11 — Hersey capped one of the greatest years ever enjoyed by a school by retiring the Paddock Cup after winning it three straight years. The symbol of varsity sports supremacy in the Mid-Suburban League had only been retired once before by Arlington. It marked a fitting climax for Dick Kinneman, who ended his career as athletic director.

Corzine — All America

No. 12 — Dave Corzine, Hersey's superstar basketball player, capped his prep career by being one of a handful of Illinois cagers named to the All-America team. Corzine was the MSL career scoring leader. The 6-foot-11 center smashed Roger Wood's old mark by enjoying a perfect night, hitting 8-for-8 from the field and 2-for-2 from the foul line.

Falcons in sectional finals

No. 13 — Led by Larry Monroe, the Forest View baseball team advanced farther than any other Mid-Suburban team before in the state tournament. The Falcons, coached by Tom Seidel, lost to Glenbrook North, 1-0, in the sectional finals. North went on to capture the title.

Sloan wins shot put title

No. 14 — Rolling Meadows' John Sloan's toss of 60 feet four inches won the state shot put title. It was the first individual track and field championship for the area since 1969 when Mark Visk of Palatine took the two-mile.

ton in the finals. It marked the first state team crown ever won by a Falcon team.

Morris tops at 126 pounds

No. 17 — Elk Grove's Rick Morris battled his way to the state title in wrestling. The 126-pounder thus became the first Grenadier to win a mat crown.

3 head grid coaches quit

No. 18 — The Mid-Suburban League saw three football coaches step down after many years of service as head men. They were Prospect's Don Williams, Conant's Ralph Losee and Wheeling's Jack Liljeberg.

Morris wins wrestling crown in Wisconsin

Rick Morris, defending Illinois high school wrestling champion, met and defeated the best that Wisconsin had to offer, but his Elk Grove team had little else to cheer about when they came away from the Badger State Holiday Wrestling Tournament in Madison Saturday.

While Morris was capturing the 132-pound crown, the Grenadiers were placing 10th as a unit among the elite 16-team field and the only other Illinois entry — Addison Trail — could do no better than seventh.

Tournament officials are so selective that the outfit which captured last year's tourney title was not invited to participate this time.

A host of super grapplers were on hand, however, and Glen Lee Montemeyer was presented with a first-hand example. Runner-up in the Illinois state finals at 155 pounds in 1973, he was placed in a bracket with no less than eight other undefeated wrestlers and could salvage no better than a fifth place finish.

Another Grove participant, Wayne Stolzman at 165, performed even better ... but at a price. He advanced to the semifinals before losing a bout, then wrestled back into the third place finale but re-injured a knee and had to default.

Morris, meanwhile, so impressed the gathering that he was voted the tournament's most valuable wrestler by participating coaches. He opened with a 4-20 pin over Tom Amstadt of Milwaukee Juneau, then pinned Steve Swanson of Richland Center in 1:26, then belted Jim Fletcher of Oregon 14-3 and topped off the weekend with a 6-2 win over Nick Lawinger of Mineral Point in the finals.

Stolzman pinned in his first bout and followed it up with a wild 15-13 victory over Mike Moody of Sun Prairie. He lost 6-1 in the semifinals, then triumphed 2-1 before defaulting and settling for fourth place.

Montemeyer won twice, 15-2 and 6-5, lost 4-3 and 4-2 decisions and finished up with a 4-3 verdict over Mitch Benson of Jamesville Craig for fifth place.

The only other Elk Grove matman to win a bout was 138-pound John Carpenter. He opened with a 16-4 runaway but was subsequently stopped 7-4 by Tom Meyer of Sun Prairie and not afforded an opportunity to wrestle back.

Four Grens picked up tough opening foes — wrestlers who went on to win titles — and there were no first round wrestlingbacks. Mineral Point eventually emerged as the team champion with Wisconsin Rapids taking second.

At Fair Lanes Bowl

The top four bowlers in recent Palatine Majors action were Al Miller, Bob Stones, Bill Nickel, and Tom Nelson. Nickel rolled a 181-218-178-178, Nelson had a 178-191-189-188, Miller bowled 202-173-180-155, and Stones had 167-215-178-150.

Maine West's Tom Ptach set two meet records and Rolling Meadows' Tom Stahnke earned two school marks last Saturday at the Maine East Sophomore Invitational, won by Glenbrook North which outdistanced Maine West, 78-63.

Ptach, who like Stahnke swims varsity, won and set new standards in 200 and 500 freestyle. His 1:53.84 in the 200 broke the 1:55.96 set two years ago by Glenbrook South's Brad Stetson.

He was superb in the 500, swimming 8:09.07 which bettered the old mark by nine seconds. Hersey's Chris Tague swam 8:18.86 last year, then a record.

Stahnke won 200 individual medley, 2:14.39, and 100 butterfly, 58.58, for new Rolling Meadows records.

Only other local winner was Maine East's Jim O'Connor with 1:11.524 in 100 breaststroke. Pat Boothe of Glenbrook South won 50 and 100 freestyles. His 23.36 in the shorter distance beat the old meet record 23.49 set by Maine North's John Monaghan.

Maine East tied Glenbrook South for third with 43 points. Hersey was fifth, 20, and Rolling Meadows seventh, 15.

With victories in six events, Prospect won the West Leyden Frosh Invitational last Friday, outpacing Downers Grove North, 241-105. Rolling Meadows, 127, Forest View, 116 and Hersey 99, placed sixth-to-eighth.

Elk Grove, participating in the Rolling Meadows Christmas tournament, played Barrington in the first game.

game was all Barrington's as they scored five more times to take a 11-3 decision.

In the second game of the tournament, Elk Grove beat Driscoll, 6-1, in their first meeting of a Metro league team this year.

Elk Grove came out strong the whole game. Officially, Elk Grove had 58 shots on net. Outstanding goal-tending kept Elk Grove from scoring in double figures.

Larry Mitsch scored the first Elk Grove goal assisted by Bob Muff and Boob Brunn. Driscoll tied the game at 1-1 in the last minute of the period. Tony Saltarski scored the second Elk Grove goal assisted by Jim Pecorelli. Joe Uhlarik scored the third goal assisted by Joe Danca. Mike Walsh scored the fourth goal assisted by Tony Saltarski. Larry Mitsch scored the fifth Elk Grove goal assisted by Gary Pratschard and Bob Muff. Joe Danca scored the final Elk Grove goal assisted by Joe Uhlarik and Mark Rodseth.

Suburbs '74: a year for political corruption

Political corruption were popular words in the Northwest suburbs this year. So were indictment, trial and conviction. Light former village and township officials of Wheeling and Hoffman Estates were sent to federal prison; two more Wheeling officials are serving a probation and a suspended sentence. In Schaumburg, municipal records dating back five years were subpoenaed as part of a probe into village government.

U. S. Atty James Thompson's biggest catch was James Stavros, former Wheeling Township Democratic committeeman and behind-the-scenes political mastermind in Wheeling. Stavros, indicted for extortion, conspiracy to commit extortion and filing a false income-tax return, pleaded guilty to the charges and is serving a four-year prison sentence. He was fined $25,000.

STAVROS, THREE former Wheeling officials and two county officials were indicted for extorting more than $300,000 from several developers and Wickes Inc., in return for village zoning approval, building permits and other favors between 1968 and 1973. All but the two county officials pleaded guilty to being part of the major shake down operation. Reports showed that Stavros, who started receiving zoning payoffs as early as 1968, amassed $3.4 million before going to jail.

Others indicted were former Wheeling building director William Bleber, serving a one-year prison sentence; former trustee Michael Valenza, serving a one-year probation after turning chief source of information for the government; and former trustee William Hart, Valenza's business partner who is serving a one-year suspended sentence for his role in the shakedown.

The county officials, Nicholas Phillips of Prospect Heights and Ira Colitz, are awaiting trial.

1974 ALSO SAW six former Hoffman Estates officials sent to prison for accepting a total of $35,000 in bribe money from Kaufman and Broad, largest home builder in the United States. The money was paid via Bernard M. Peskin, former state representative and attorney for the building firm.

The Hoffman Estates officials pleaded guilty; Kaufman and Broad pleaded no contest and was fined $50,000. Peskin, who collected $100,000 from Kaufman and Broad, pleaded not guilty, was convicted and sentenced to prison but has not served because he is appealing the verdict.

Those sent to jail were Roy L. Jenkins, mayor at the time of the bribes in 1968, serving a two-year sentence; Edward F. Finger, first mayor of Hoffman Estates and former member of the planning and zoning commission, sentenced to 18 months, now paroled; Howard J. Noble, trustee, and James L. Sloan, trustee, both sentenced to six months and now paroled; Herbert Gibson, trustee, sentenced to one year, now paroled; and Gerard L. Meyer, sentenced to six months and now paroled.

In June, complete municipal records back to 1969 were subpoenaed in Schaumburg by a federal grand jury. The subpoenas called for all contracts, personnel records, names of village trustees and other officials, building permits, zoning records and minutes of all meetings.

Mother, baby die —and ambulance battle rages on

Tragically struck Elk Grove Township in January, resulting in the death of a mother and unborn child and a controversy that still goes on.

An Elk Grove Township woman, denied ambulance service by the Elk Grove Village Fire Dept., died of a massive blood clot in her lungs while at home. Jean Pettee, 36, was eight months pregnant with her sixth child. Efforts to save the baby failed.

Mrs. Pettee died in her home in unincorporated Rose Meadows subdivision three blocks from a hospital and four blocks from the Elk Grove fire department. Fire Chief Allen Hulett decided to recall the Elk Grove ambulance on the way to the Pettee home when he discovered the family did not contract with Elk Grove for fire protection. He immediately notified the Roseville Fire Dept., six miles away.

Gary Pettee contracted with the Roseville department for $21 a year; contracting with Elk Grove would have cost $12. Repeatedly in the last two years Elk Grove officials had warned residents of the subdivision that service would be refused unless contracted for.

wrapping up '74

Zettek admitted the village board had asked Hulett to "play God" in situations like the Pettee incident. The village board told Hulett not to answer a call not contracted for except in life or death situation. Tapes played after the incident showed Hulett had no indication the Pettee matter was life or death.

Controversy raged over the incident immediately after and hate mail poured in against Hulett from all over the country. The Cook County State's Atty. office investigated the matter and found there were no legal grounds for any criminal charges against village officials.

But the Pettee matter has not been dropped. Pettee filed two lawsuits against the village, each for $6 million. A suit in Federal Court charges violation of civil rights and a suit filed in Cook County Circuit Court charges criminal negligence in the death of Pettee's wife. Both suits still are pending.

The lines, and the lines, and...

REMEMBER THE GAS crisis — the long lines and high prices that plagued drivers in the Northwest suburbs in January and February? Gas rationing was the topic as stations shut down Sundays, limited purchases to $2 and $3 and closed early as supplies ran out. Some stations pumped gas by appointment only. Then in the spring, the lines disappeared. Drivers could get as much gas as they wanted, where they wanted and when they wanted.

10 tons of garbage found

Who can forget knee-deep trash in Des Plaines home?

No one will forget that day in August when Des Plaines police found Wayne Cleghorn standing knee-deep in 10 tons of stinking trash that filled his townhouse on Dover Drive.

The story shocked the Northwest suburbs and the rest of the country.

No one knew then and no one knows now why the 38-year-old meatcutter, his three children and wife who was a nurse lived in two feet of packed down garbage and human waste. When he was fined $80 for creating a public nuisance, all Cleghorn would say was he had a "personal problem."

wrapping up '74

ing gas masks spent 15½ hours and $2,500 cleaning up the rat-and insect-infested trash. The filth, packed solid, filled a 25-cubic-foot garbage truck twice.

For as long as a year residents of the 250 block of Dover Drive had complained to Des Plaines health officials about a stench they thought was sewer gas. Little did they know their neighbor, who had rented the townhouse since 1969, was causing the smell.

Four months after Cleghorn was discovered the townhouse remains sealed. Robert Lubin of the Lubin Management Corp., owner of the townhouse, said his company plans extensive remodeling "almost to the point of rebuilding" of the unit in the spring.

Cost of the remodeling will run into the thousands but Lubin does not plan to pay for it. He thinks Cleghorn is still living somewhere in the Northwest suburbs. "When it comes time for collection, we'll find him," he said.

Culture comes to the suburbs with 'Bather'

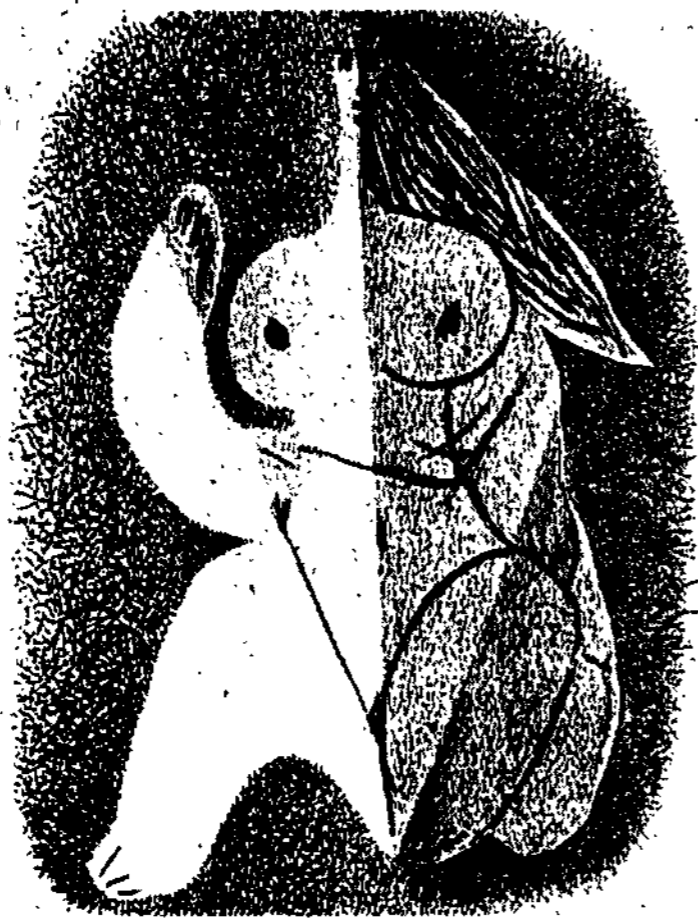

The Northwest suburbs moved up on the cultural scale in 1974 with the announcement that an original outdoor Picasso was coming to Rolling Meadows.

Beauty is in the eye of the beholder, the saying goes. And that is the way it has been in Rolling Meadows since Gould, Inc. announced in February acquisition of Pablo Picasso's "The Bather." Whether you like Picasso's version of a nude female sunbather or not depends on the way you see it. Some have nicknamed her "Big Bertha."

Gould Inc., a Chicago-based firm that manufactures electrical and automotive products, negotiated with the artist for two years before he died to get an original Picasso work of art. "The Bather" is only the second original outdoor Picasso in the Chicago area.

The 30-foot concrete statue, now under construction by a Norwegian artist, will stand before a reflecting pond outside Gould's $30 million world headquarters on Golf Road, east of Ill. Rte. 53.

"I suppose," one critic laughed, "we could always throw a tarp over it and call it a giant snowman!"

CREWS CLEANING UP the "garbage house" in Des Plaines wore gas masks because shoveling through the trash unleashed toxic fumes. Police discovered the garbage, possibly accumulating for as long as six years, after someone called to complain that someone was breaking into the Cleghorn townhouse.

Wheeling rallies to replace loss

Outrage follows bombing of library

Students and staff at Wheeling High School and members of the community were shocked and outraged in June when two youths firebombed the Wheeling High School library, causing $350,000 damage.

Erwin J. Kopecky and James Serowka, both 18, were sentenced to five years' probation and three years in a work-release program through the House of Corrections after pleading guilty to the crime. The teens also had to pay High School Dist. 214 for part of the damage and 22,000 books lost in the fire.

The youths were charged with throwing bricks and Molotov cocktails through the library windows, touching off the fire. Neither ever said publicly why they did it.

Volunteers rallied to help refurbish the library, cleaning off 100,000 smoke-damaged cards in the card catalogue and salvaging magazines and audiovisual equipment. The story ends on a good note: the rebuilt Wheeling High School library reopened in October.

Savage storm batters area

THIS NEARLY COMPLETED two-story house in Elk Grove Village was pushed off its foundation July 14 when a fierce windstorm ripped through the Northwest suburbs. In 35 minutes, the storm lashed through northern Schaumburg Township, Palatine, Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Des Plaines, causing damage and extensive power failures.

Winter saw deaths from rare disease

Reye's Syndrome, a rare childhood disease, made the headlines in February and March in what probably was the saddest local story of the year.

Three Northwest suburban youths from Arlington Heights, Hoffman Estates and Elk Grove Village died from the disease and more were hospitalized. The disease, for which doctors have no cure, hit the entire Chicago area and killed more than 10 children aged 6 months to 18 years.

Northwest suburban hospitals reported "telephone panic" as mothers called about their children home in bed with the flu. Although little is known about Reye's Syndrome, doctors believe it follows a virus such as influenza-B or chickenpox.

Early diagnosis of the disease is the best way to cure it, doctors said. Symptoms include severe stomach pains, persistent vomiting, sleepiness, disorientation and finally, convulsions and coma.

Dems rip through facade of 'Republican' suburbs

The Democrats swept November national, state and county elections in the aftermath of Watergate and made a surprisingly successful showing in the traditionally Republican suburbs.

In the 10th Congressional District, Democrat Abner Mikva beat incumbent Samuel Young by more than 3,000 votes. The vote was a reverse of the 1972 race when Young unseated incumbent Mikva by more than 7,000 votes.

The Northwest suburbs' other Congressional seat went to Republican U.S. Rep. Philip Crane, R-12th, who returned to the House of Representatives for his third full term. But in Cook County, Democrats filled all positions except the six suburban county board seats. And all but one of 21 judicial posts went to Democrats.

Democratic candidates for the Illinois House of Representatives led the ticket in three of five legislative districts in the Northwest suburbs.

State Rep. Richard A. Mugallan, D-Palatine, narrowly outdistanced the two Republican winners to obtain his second term in the 2nd District. In the 5th District, incumbent State Rep. Jack Williams, D-Franklin Park, topped the ticket, followed closely by newcomer Ted Leverenz, D-River Grove.

In the 4th District, State Rep. Aaron Jaffe, D-Skokie, outdistanced State Rep. Robert Juckett, R-Park Ridge, by more than 2,000 votes and State Rep. Eugene F. Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, by 2,957.

In the 1st and 3rd Districts, where all incumbents were reelected, Republicans held their traditional top posts.

Majority rules in city-suburb fight

Regional transit comes to area—by 1%

Although they were not happy about it, the suburbs got a Regional Transportation Authority this year to meet the mass transit needs of the six-county Chicago area.

A 1 per cent margin in the March 19 referendum breathed life into the proposed mass transit organization that would coordinate bus and rail travel in the city and suburbs.

Surviving two legal tests, one reaching the Illinois Supreme Court, the RTA became "official" and eight board members were picked to run it. They set aside most of the expected duties until a ninth, full-time member/chairman could be selected.

wrapping up '74

The rest of the year was filled with executive sessions while the four suburban and four city members tried to work out their political differences and pick a chairman who could carry the required six votes for appointment.

They failed. Instead, the troubled board began to distribute emergency funds in November and December, some of it to the Northwest suburbs. United Motor Coach of Des Plaines got $336,000; the Chicago Transit Authority got $25 million.

CTA chairman Milton Pikarsky remained the primary contender for chairman and the year closed with threats that suburban legislators would ask the Illinois General Assembly to give away the board's power to pick a chairman, granting the appointment to the governor or the legislature itself.

Green Tree Industries

Work therapy for emotionally disturbed

WARMTH AND individual attention are given along with instruction by Marty Parker, director, and the rest

by ELEANOR RIVES

Some people lose themselves in their work.

Others find themselves.

In an old-fashioned white frame house, once a Des Plaines residence, Martin (Marty) M. Parker directs a unique business operation, unique because the employees, all emotionally disturbed persons, not only provide low-cost service to small businesses, but, in doing so, actively become involved in their own therapy.

Green Tree Industries, a sheltered workshop on Forest Hospital grounds, is a beehive of activity. Its "employee-patients" do independent productive work under the supervision of trained hospital personnel. It might be light assembly, parts inspecting or printing. It might be as simple as hand packaging or as complex as putting together the components of a copier machine. One time it was car waxing.

IT ALL DEPENDS on what type of business service Marty is able to solicit. His target is every corporation in the State of Illinois. His method is advertising. His promise is reliability, efficiency and promptness. And that has resulted in 80 per cent repeat business.

Except that it not be boring, the type of work the employee is doing is of little importance. That he is deriving feelings of status, individual worth and satisfaction is of supreme importance. Ninety-five per cent of the people working there are otherwise unemployable at present. Green Trees is their transitional link with the "outside."

Green Trees is staffed by Parker, the director, who has his master's degree in counseling psychology and is currently working with Dr. Morris Aderman on his Ph.D. in industrial psychology; Jerry Clifone, assistant to the director and a social therapist trainee; Shirley Grandt, a staff nurse specializing in psychiatric patients; and Greg Duff, a staff assistant.

SERVING AS employers is only one facet of the role of the staff members at the workshop. They also offer warmth and acceptance in a sheltered social environment. They serve as teachers, first evaluating the employee-patient's potential depending upon his degree of emotional stress, then teaching him a job that is challenging enough to restore his sense of self-worth.

In a parental role, they offer love and individual attention; as counselors, they listen, guide and support. Their three-generation range enables them to be empathetic with all ages, from late adolescents to old people.

Staff members offer friendship in special ways such as social nights — bingo, auctions, games; field trips; the sharing of everyday experiences. As heads of the Green Tree mini-community, they encourage, and get, full participation in the tasks and responsibilities of the shop, from setting up the work, completing it, loading the trucks and cleaning up the mess — even typing out the checks.

EACH EMPLOYEE-PATIENT gets wages commensurate with his productivity, based on the Illinois State Charter for Sheltered Workshops.

Staff members at times must also be mediators, helping to resolve differences among the workers. "These people have had problems with relationships on the outside," said Jerry Clifone. "Now they are working out relationships with each other."

While filling these various roles, staff members never fail to be aware that "Industries" is part of Green Tree's name, and as such it is a bona fide working group.

"Most of these people will become employable," said Jerry. "Nobody's ever here forever!"

THE BUILDING can accommodate a maximum of 40 people at any one time, including the four staff members. Of these, about 23 are outpatients, referred by doctors, mental health organizations, other hospitals, the Illinois State Employment Service, and these patients most often work full days. Another 25 to 30 Forest Hospital patients arrive throughout the day, a small group at a time, and work for short periods. Also included among the workers is a small group of elderly from Golf Pavilion Nursing Home in Des Plaines.

At Green Trees, persons from any walk of life find a reassuring link to help them re-enter the mainstream of society.

"Our employee-patients have included typists, printers, lawyers, people who hold Ph.Ds, even a doctor now and then," said Shirley Grandt.

One man is foreman of a huge corporation now. Three women who were suicidal are now living useful lives.

"SUCCESS IS NOT only helping someone to go back to work," added Jerry, "but maintaining within the shop those who are severely sick. When a person who hasn't spoken a word in six months softly answers 'yes' or 'no,' or smiles for the first time, that's success, too."

"A working patient learns to adjust in three ways," said director Parker. "He adjusts in a social sense through contact with fellow workers, in a cognitive way by learning to internalize the instructions given him, in a physical way by meeting certain limits, such as work hours, rest periods, lunch breaks. There is a real consistency in each of these, and in the whole operation. There has been a nice steady smooth increase in running this business."

THAT IS AN understatement. Since

DEBURRING PLASTIC spools at the rate of about 1,000 a day keeps many hands busy at Green Trees. Work is contracted with Kingston Plastics, Des Plaines. Other customers include Ekco Products.

Marty Parker became director two and a half years ago, activity at Green Tree has increased fourfold. The business has spread from a portion of one floor to the entire house; the staff has increased from two (Marty and Shirley) to four. And the business is on its feet financially, substantially self-supporting, the balance subsidized by Forest Hospital Foundation, a non-profit organization.

James G. Balles of the Illinois State Employment Service heads the nine-person board of directors, which includes Morris B. Squire, president of Forest Hospital.

And Marty Parker is the driving force, combining his extensive education in psychology with experience in both counseling and small business.

"I NEVER WANTED to be a salesman," he said of his business experience.

"But then I discovered that life is being a salesman!"

His enthusiasm spills over as he explores future possibilities for Green Tree Industries. He envisions a garage to train mechanics, small stores such as a bakery, an entire little village.

"There is no limit to what could be done here!" he exclaims.

With expansion, Green Tree Industries could serve more small businesses, could help a great many more emotionally disturbed people. Meanwhile the little white frame house on Wilson Lane hums with activity while those within find friendship, identity, purpose, direction — while re-establishing their sense of identity, self-esteem and individual worth.

For a great many, this might be the strongest link in the chain that leads back to happy, productive lives.

Benefits twofold at Green Trees

Green Tree Industries is an unusual business with double benefits. It benefits its own emotionally-disturbed "employee-patients" because it is an integral part of their over-all therapy plan. It benefits small businesses by giving them a helping hand with packaging, light assembly work, parts inspection, printing and collating.

Because it is a non-profit workshop, its services are low cost.

Because it is flexible, it can assist when there are last minute rush jobs or special orders.

Because it employs small jobs, it frees a company's personnel for more important work.

GREEN TREE INDUSTRIES is a member of the Illinois Small Businessmen's Association, of the Illinois Rehabilitation Association and its national counterpart, and is listed in the Illinois Manufacturer's Directory.

To operate most efficiently for both employees and small businesses, work is solicited throughout the state of Illinois on a contract basis. Representatives of any Illinois companies who feel Green Tree Industries may be able to serve them may discuss the possibilities with Martin M. Parker, director, Green Tree Industries, 555 Wilson Ln., Des Plaines, Ill. 60016. Telephone is 312-827-8811, ext. 397.

Women and children first

Finding runaway parents

by JULIE MARTOCCHIO

Several months ago a reader wrote to this column seeking help in solving a difficult marital problem. Hers was a typical second marriage situation in which the husband was supporting two sets of children, three by a former marriage and two by his marriage to his second wife. Her husband, the woman said, was under great financial strain, barely able to meet support demands plus the cost of maintaining his present home. He had recently named all five children as beneficiaries in his life insurance policy over his present wife's vigorous objections. She then threatened to divorce him.

I cautioned her to take it easy, pointing out two problems that might hit her simultaneously. She was unskilled and could not fit into the job market, and she would have the responsibility of caring for her two children. I asked her to consider among other things that an additional burden would be placed on her husband who then would have the added expense of paying for a place to live. Three households! He might lose heart, take off for parts unknown, leaving all the children, spouse and ex-spouse to fend for themselves or seek help from public aid. I suggested that she first develop a skill, then employment or even, if she still loved her husband, try to help him work out his financial problems before considering a divorce.

I DO NOT KNOW if she heeded my suggestions. Apparently they were too late for another woman who divorced her husband because she had a similar problem.

"What can I do now?" she asked. "I have an order for child support but can't find my husband. I think he's skipped town. I understand his first wife doesn't know where he is either. He hasn't paid her or me anything for the last six months. Her children are 15 and 17, old enough to start supporting themselves, but my four range in age from 5 to 9."

My ounce of prevention may have failed, but I think I can suggest a pound of cure. Something can be done. In spite of all the criticism leveled against inadequate court procedures, we can appreciate the fact that conditions in the domestic relations area are looking a great deal better.

Contrary to the way it was years ago, we now have the Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act which every state has adopted in some form or another. A wife (or ex-wife) may have her lawyer go to court in her own home state no matter where her husband might be living and complain of his failure to pay. The court then gets in touch with the proper officials where the man resides and they track him down.

Like everything else, the law isn't perfect. It can't, for instance, track down a man who has changed his name or occupation, or comb every state to find an errant husband.

Moral obligations and legal ones cannot always be separated and enforced. But the law tries.

How can a runaway parent be found? One point in favor of our computerized space age is that we have a whole string of numbers in addition to our name. Every person who works must have a Social Security number which can be found on almost every document needed to function in our complex world. Federal and state tax returns, drivers' licenses, savings account and credit applications, insurance records all contain a person's Social Security number.

In addition there are employer reports (withholding taxes, for one) to keep track of an individual.

There is another remedy available to a person's lawyer in tracking down a runaway parent who is reluctant to pay. Because of federal statute certain sections of the Social Security Act, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare or the Department of Labor has the authority to release information relating to anyone employed or even a self-employed person. These disclosures, however, may be made only under certain limited conditions.

It would be helpful to know as much about a husband's habits, work skills and even his favorite state, in the event he decides to leave home and shrug off his responsibilities. The more a woman knows about her husband, the sooner she is likely to find him.

(Readers are invited to submit questions regarding legal problems of women and children. Names and facts that would identify the writer are withheld on request. Attorney Martocchio's column is to inform and not advise. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Padlock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

Discard listing correct?

General Mills has declared a moratorium on redemption of Betty Crocker coupons for organizations. Spokesmen for the company said that clubs registered with their office have been notified. Special projects, already approved by the General Mills redemption center, will be honored.

Clubs listed in the Discard Depot as collectors of Betty Crocker coupons will be dropped unless The Herald is notified. Persons seeking further information may call 394-2300, extension 278.

Organizations are also asked to notify The Herald of any other corrections in the Discard Depot, which runs each Monday in Suburban Living.

OFFICE FORMS, letterheads, envelopes, brochures, business cards are turned out fast and efficiently — and at low cost — by Green Tree Industries' printer, shown here at the offset press. Staff nurse Shirley Grandt watches as he prints information forms on heavy stock at the rate of 500 every 15 to 20 minutes.

Wed in Christmas setting

Christmas greenery and red candles decorated the altar for the Dec. 28 wedding of Thomas C. McGuire of Schaumburg and Patti Blevins of Kingston, Okla. The 6 p.m. candlelight service was held in First United Methodist Church, Ada, Okla., and the reception was in the church fellowship hall where a 15-foot Christmas tree carried out the holiday decor.

Thomas, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. McGuire, 114 S. Westover Ln., is a graduate of Conant High School and East Central University, Ada. He received his master's degree in accounting from Oklahoma State University and is with the accounting firm of Peat, Marwick and Mitchell in Dallas, Tex. Patti graduated from East Central with a degree in business administration.

DAUGHTER OF Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Blevins, Patti chose a gown of candlelight organza with sheer overlay for the double ring service. The gown was trimmed with peau d'ange Chantilly lace which covered the bodice and formed panels on the skirt and flowed into a chapel train.

On the bodice of her Victorian gown Patti wore a euby and pearl pin from her grandmother. A headpiece of peau d'ange held her chapel veil and she carried white baby shoes and bridal breath over her great-grandmother's Bible which was covered in lace and pearls.

Susan Gaines, Wewoka, Okla., was maid of honor, and the bride's sister-in-law, Janis Blevins, Moore, Okla., Pam Creekmore, Ada; and the bride's cousin, Linda Sisk, Fort Worth, Tex., were bridesmaids. Their sheer floral gowns over burgundy were in burgundy, green and pink, and they carried hurricane candles trimmed in holly and winter greenery with burgundy streamers.

Michael Minkoff, Atlanta, Ga., was best man, and groomsmen were the groom's brother, Robert, Lawton, Okla., and Billy Bryan and Sam Rogers, Ada. Ushers were Brad Biddy and Alan Ross, Ada.

After a week's honeymoon in southern California, the newlyweds will be residing in Dallas.

Chicken Paprika a family favorite; good with rice

Dear Dorothy: I've been looking for a good recipe for Chicken Paprika. Any in your file? —William Berens

This one has been a family favorite over the years. Clean a three- or three-and-a-half-pound chicken and cut into pieces. Dry, then shake in a bag into which you've put a quarter-cup of flour, one teaspoon of paprika and one teaspoon of salt. Brown in a heavy skillet, using either margarine or chicken fat. Then put in a heavy roaster and add one and one-half cups of hot water. I've always added a piece of garlic which has been stuck in with two toothpicks (to be able to pluck out later).

Cover and cook either on top of the stove or in the oven. Taste for seasoning. After taking the chicken out, add two heaping tablespoons of sour cream to the gravy. This is especially good served with rice.

Dear Dorothy: I sat on a bedspread and got some of that soft, gushy putty that children play with on both the cotton bedspread and my polyester slacks.

Can you tell me how I go about getting this stuff off? —Mrs. Jack Grant

The regular way to get this stuff off most things is to scrape off as much as possible with the dull edge of a knife, then dissolve the remainder with solvent like lighter fluid or amyl acetate. The charts do not mention anything but cotton, but the same treatment ought to work on both bedspread and slacks.

Dear Dorothy: I have a set of glasses that collect film with use, and it's been almost impossible to remove it with washing or scouring. I found that by putting a tablespoon or two of one of the enzyme-active cleaners in the glass, filling it with warm water and letting it stand for two days, the glass comes out "clean as a whistle." —I. Morrow

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 230, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

Warranty bill has good, bad points

The long-awaited Consumer Product Warranty bill and its attendant provisions concerning the Federal Trade Commission was sent to President Ford just before Congress adjourned in December. By the time this column goes to press, it is expected that the President will have signed the bill.

Basically, the legislation will require manufacturers to label their products as having either "full" or "limited" warranties. To offer a "full" warranty, manufacturers would have to meet certain standards set forth in the law — primarily, they would have to offer to repair, replace or refund, within a reasonable time and without charge, if their product proves defective during the warranty period.

The legislation also affirms the FTC's authority to seek economic relief for consumers victimized by a fraud and its right to go directly into court to seek injunctions, subpoenas or consumer redress. It no longer must depend upon the Justice Department to represent it in company if the item purchased is such instances.

THE BAD NEWS in the legislation, however, is that it throws up a lot of additional red tape for the FTC in its rule-making capacity. Now, before the agency can issue rules governing the conduct of any industry, it must follow a detailed blueprint of procedures drawn up by the Congress and reportedly more complicated than the already formidable procedures currently applying.

Still a third piece of legislation recently approved will allow consumers

The consumer

by Monica Wilch Perin

to withhold payment from a credit card company if the item purchased is unsatisfactory and if the retailer has refused to rectify the problem.

Further details on all of the above will be presented in this column as they become available. Each of these pieces of legislation could spell dramatic changes for the good of consumers — but they could also contain serious weaknesses. I will reserve judgment on that score until copies of the new laws are available for study.

BIKE SAFETY: While the Consumer Product Safety Commission has postponed the effective date of its new safety requirements for bicycle manufacturers, two states have passed their own safety requirement which becomes effective today.

New York and Rhode Island now require that all new bicycle tires sold in the two states be constructed with a strip of retro-reflective material in the sidewalls around the circumference of the tire.

The material, which was developed by the 3M Co. and is vulcanized right into the tires, creates circles of light when auto headlights shine on a bicycle's wheels at night.

The legislation was passed in hopes of curbing the rising number of bicycle-motor vehicle accidents, in which poor visibility of the bike is often at fault. Even with the various reflectors and lights now used on the frames of bikes, the two-wheeled vehicles are often not visible from the side. Moreover, the reflectors do not provide a motorist with adequate identification of what he is observing.

The reflective tires, according to 3M, clearly identify a bicycle as a bicycle, either in motion or at a standstill, from all angles.

Holiday trip to city worth the hassle

Treat yourself to a trip downtown during this beautiful holiday season.
 A drive down the magnificent Mile with its delicately-lit trees along Michigan Avenue and the store windows trimmed in professional holiday splendor is a real treat, especially for the kids if you bring them.

If the weather is mild enough, you can take a casual stroll through Grant Park over to the lakefront and watch the big old Lake Michigan shrug off winter as if it were a bad joke.

The chance to see "Christmas Around the World" — that fabulous display of Christmas trees decorated in the native style of various European lands at the Museum of Science and Industry — makes the hassle of heavy traffic almost worth suffering.

IF YOU GO INTO downtown Chicago, you might want to take in the glitter after dark, when chances of a fender bender are minimized. The annual Christmas flower shows at Lincoln Park Conservatory (Stockton Drive near Fullerton) and at Garfield Park are open until 9 p.m. daily until Epiphany (Jan. 5).

Along with the flame red, coral pink and pure white poinsettias, there are Christmas peppers, Jerusalem cherries, bearded firethorn plants, cyclamen and other colorful flowers for flower-lovers to visually savor at the conservatory.

Mother of the Year sought for Illinois

The search is now in progress for the outstanding mother who will represent Illinois at the conference of all 50 state mothers when they meet in New York in May and one is named National Mother of the Year.
 Nomination blanks may be obtained from Mrs. Homer W. Alvey, 303 Peoria St., Lincoln, Ill., 62656. Entries close Feb. 1. Eligible are women of achievement who are active members of their church or synagogue and whose youngest child is at least 15 years of age. Entrants must also be sponsored by an organization.

As a tropical plant freak, I can never get enough of the jungle gardens at Lincoln Park. I'm always expecting a python to drop down on me from one of the Indian fish-tail palms overhead.

And visiting the conservatory after dark is especially offbeat. Last Friday when I was there, I was "positive" I heard Sabu snoring under the ferny jungle monsters.

The 50-foot rubber tree and some of the giant palms look as if they are about to raise the glass roof — maybe you'll be there when it happens — but don't count on it!

LIKE A GIANT walk-in terrarium, the Garden of Eden or a space capsule to another planet, the conservatory is a horticultural experience.

The exotic birds-nest ferns, whose upright fronds are so arranged as to form a perfect nest, and the amazing staghorn ferns, which resemble antlers, are two of the "don't-miss" specimens in the fernery. I like these beauties so much, they are gems in my own collection of house plants (grown under glass).

One last suggestion for enjoying the beauty of the holiday season. Some of the prettiest flower spectaculars can be found in local churches. Expensively decorated altars and sanctuaries abound with all manner of flowering poinsettias creatively arranged. One creche I saw was done up in a desert scene, complete with an "oasis" of yucca, rubber plants and dracaena.

Hoping you'll get a chance to get out and enjoy Chicago at Christmas, I wish you a flowery future and every blessing in the New Year!

BOUNTY ON A BUDGET

Coping with today's inflation means reviving some of the recipes created by ingenious Colonial homemakers. Early cooks created wholesome, nutritious dishes for their families from available foods. They transformed leftover potatoes into steaming, savory soup or potato cakes and "stretched" meat with flavorful stews and sauces.

Today's appealing budget recipes are based on adaptations of the innovative Colonial recipes. Spinach-Topped Samplers, Meat 'n Potatoes Ring and COUNTRYFIED Meatball Casserole begin with ground beef extended with old fashioned oats. Turkey gets a face-lift in Vegetable Gobble-Ups. Oatmeal dumplings dot ham-based Dill 'n Dumplings soup, and raisins and caraway seed enhance Sausage Balls in Sauerkraut Nest.

SPINACH-TOPPED SAMPLERS

Beef Cups:

- 1 lb. ground beef
- 1 cup quick or old fashioned oats, uncooked
- 1/4 cup catsup
- 1/4 cup grated Cheddar cheese
- 1 1/2 teaspoons salt
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- One 16-oz. can red kidney beans, well drained

Vegetable Top:

- One 10-oz. pkg. frozen chopped spinach
- 1 cup chopped celery
- 2 teaspoons grated onion
- 1/4 cup water
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 1/2 teaspoons vinegar

Heat oven to moderate (350 degrees). For beef cups combine beef, oats, catsup, cheese, salt and pepper in bowl; mix well. Add beans; mix through. Divide mixture and pack into six 5-inch aluminum pot pie pans. Make "well" in center of each with bowl of spoon. Bake in preheated oven (350 degrees) 20 to 25 minutes.

For vegetable top, place spinach, celery, onion, water and salt in saucepan. Bring to boil. Reduce to simmer; cover and cook 8 to 10 minutes, stirring occasionally to separate spinach. Drain.

To serve, place vegetables in "well" of beef cups. Sprinkle vegetables with about 1/4 teaspoon vinegar per serving, if desired. Makes 6 servings.

Note: If pot pie pans are not available, shape meat mixture to form a shell in 9-inch pie plate.

MEAT 'N POTATOES RING

One 16-oz. can tomatoes

- 1 1/2 lb. ground beef
- 1 cup quick or old fashioned oats, uncooked

1 cup chopped onion

- 1 tablespoon parsley flakes
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper

Heat oven to moderate (350 degrees). Drain tomatoes reserving 1 cup of the juice. Halve or quarter tomatoes and place in bottom of 6 1/2-cup ring mold; reserve any extra tomatoes for meat mixture.

Combine remaining ingredients plus reserved juice and tomatoes; mix well. Pack in ring mold on top of tomatoes. Bake in preheated oven (350 degrees) 40 to 45 minutes. Let stand 5 minutes before unmolding. Drain if necessary. Turn out onto serving platter and fill center of ring with hot, mashed potatoes. Top potatoes with butter. Makes 8 servings.

Note: Meat loaf may also be baked in 9x5-inch loaf pan. Increase baking time to 45 to 50 minutes.

COUNTRYFIED MEATBALL CASSEROLE

- 1 lb ground beef
- 1 cup quick or old fashioned oats, uncooked
- 1 egg
- 1/2 cup finely chopped onion
- 1 tablespoon chili powder

- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon garlic powder
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 1 8-oz. pkg. noodles, cooked and drained
- 2 10 1/2-oz. cans tomato soup
- 1/2 cup water

Heat oven to moderate (375 degrees). Combine ground beef, oats, egg, onion, chili powder, salt, garlic powder and pepper in bowl; mix well. Shape to form 18 meatballs. Brown meatballs in skillet.

Place noodles in 2-qt. casserole. Combine tomato soup and water; stir into noodles. Add meatballs and mix thoroughly. Sprinkle with additional chili powder, if desired. Cover and bake in preheated oven (375 degrees) 35 to 40 minutes. Makes 8 servings.

VEGETABLE GOBBLE-UPS

- 2 1/2 cups finely chopped cooked turkey
- 1 cup quick or old fashioned oats, uncooked
- 1/2 cup nonfat dry milk solids
- 1 16-oz. can cut green beans, well drained
- 1 cup whole kernel corn, well drained
- 1/2 cup chopped celery
- 1 tablespoon minced onion
- 1/2 cup mayonnaise
- 1/2 cup water
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon liquid red pepper seasoning

Heat oven to moderate (350 degrees). Place all ingredients in large bowl; mix well. Shape to form 12 logs about 4 inches long. Place in ungreased 15x10-inch jelly roll pan. Bake in preheated oven (350 degrees) 20 to 25 minutes or until lightly browned. Garnish with mayonnaise, paprika and celery leaves, if desired. Makes 6 servings.

DILL 'N DUMPLINGS SOUP

Soup:

- 8 cups water
- 1 cup dried navy beans
- 2 lb. ham bone (part meat)
- 2 cups diagonally cut carrots
- 1 cup coarsely chopped onion
- 1 cup cubed turnips
- 1/2 teaspoon prepared mustard
- 1/4 teaspoon dill weed
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper

Dumplings:

- 1 1/2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
- 1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 cup quick or old fashioned oats, uncooked
- 1 cup milk
- 1 1/2 teaspoons liquid or melted shortening

For soup, place water in 4-quart kettle. Add beans; bring to boil. Remove from heat and let stand 1 hour. Add ham bone. Cover and cook over low heat 1 hour. Remove ham bone and trim. Add trimmed ham, carrots, onions, turnips, mustard, dill weed and pepper. Bring to boil.

For dumplings, sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Stir in oats. Add milk and shortening; stir just until moistened. Drop dumplings by slightly rounded teaspoonfuls onto boiling soup. Reduce heat to low and cook uncovered 10 minutes. Cover and continue cooking 10 minutes. Sprinkle with fresh chopped parsley. Makes 8 servings.

SAUSAGE BALLS IN SAUERKRAUT NEST

- 1 lb. pork sausage
- 1 cup quick or old fashioned oats, uncooked
- 1 egg
- 1/2 cup dark seedless raisins
- 1/4 teaspoon caraway seed
- 2 16-oz. cans sauerkraut
- 1/2 cup firmly packed brown sugar

Heat oven to moderate (350 degrees). Place sausage, oats, egg, raisins and caraway seed in bowl; mix thoroughly. Shape to form 18 sausage balls. Place in oven-proof pan and bake in preheated oven (350 degrees) 30 to 35 minutes.

Combine sauerkraut and brown sugar in small saucepan. Cover and simmer 35 minutes, stirring occasionally. To serve, make a ring of sauerkraut on platter or in serving dish; place sausage balls in center of ring. Makes 6 servings.

Recipes to brighten new year menus

by LOIS SEILER

Usher in the new year with some bell ringers designed to brighten family meals. Mrs. Charles Triphahn of Des Plaines offers several recipes featuring bacon — one of her favorite flavoring ingredients.

Judy Triphahn often incorporates bacon into her appetizers, entrees and vegetables. It adds an interesting and distinctive taste to each, she said.

When making Bacon Cheese Puffs, a family favorite, for company, she always doubles the recipe so there are extras for sons Jeff, 13, and Scott, 11, to snack on.

These appetizers are made from a mixture of sharp Cheddar cheese, butter, flour and salt seasoned with crisp bacon bits. The batter is formed into small balls and chilled or frozen before baking.

Judy likes to keep a supply on hand in the freezer. They keep well for a couple of months and need only be popped into the oven for ten minutes before serving. They are similar to a soft cookie in texture with an appealing cheese and bacon flavor.

FOR THE ENTREE, skinned and deboned chicken breasts are wrapped in bacon, placed over a layer of chipped beef in a casserole and baked in a rich sauce from cream of chicken and celery soups.

This dish is prepared a day ahead as it must be refrigerated overnight. The quantity is easily increased by adding more chicken and soup. Lots of gravy develops during the baking period, which Judy serves over chicken rice mix.

As accompaniments she suggests fresh green beans cooked with bacon and onion, a tossed salad and hot rolls.

For dessert, Judy recommends her husband Chuck's favorite, Chocolate Angel Pie. She has found this to be popular with most men because it is rich yet light.

The pie has a meringue shell, which can be prepared the day before, and a filling made with German sweet chocolate and whipped cream. Nuts are used both in the meringue and as a topping for the pie. Although elegant in appearance, Judy calls it a simple combination that is quite easy to prepare and always a success.

As president of the Junior Woman's Club of Des Plaines and director of Des Plaines Community Chest, she finds the pie ideal for club meetings. It is also nice for bridge parties, which is another of Judy's interests.

BACON CHEESE PUFFS

4 strips bacon
1 5-ounce jar Old English sharp cheddar cheese
1/2 stick butter or margarine
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup flour
Cut bacon into tiny pieces. Fry crisp and drain.

Thoroughly cream butter and cheese. Add salt and flour and mix well. Stir in bacon. Place in refrigerator to firm dough.

Form into small balls, about 3/4-inch in diameter. Place on greased baking sheet. Chill thoroughly about 2 hours before baking, or freeze. Bake about ten minutes at 400 degrees. Watch carefully and remove before they turn brown. Makes approximately 30 to 35.

CHICKEN IN CREAM SOUP
6 to 8 slices thin-sliced chipped beef
8 slices bacon
4 chicken breasts, skinned, boned and split in half to make 8 pieces

1 can cream of chicken soup

1 can cream of celery soup

Grease a 7 by 11-inch pan or 8-inch square pan and lay chipped beef on bottom. Roll up each breast and wrap bacon around it. Lay on top of beef.

Mix soups together and spoon over top of chicken. Cover pan with foil and refrigerate overnight. Bake for three hours, covered, at 275 degrees. If necessary, spoon off any excess grease before serving. Serves 4 to 6. Serve with Chicken Rice a Roni.

BEANS WITH BACON

3/4 to 1 pound fresh green beans
6 to 8 pieces bacon
1/4 medium-size onion, chopped fine
Cut bacon into very small pieces; fry and drain.

Add bacon and onion to fresh green beans and cook in water until beans are tender, about a half hour. Drain and serve.

CHOCOLATE ANGEL PIE

Crust:

2 egg whites
1/8 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon cream of tartar
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 cup finely-chopped walnuts or pecans Beat egg whites with salt and cream of tartar until foamy. Add sugar two tablespoons at a time, beating well after each addition. Then continue beating to very stiff peaks. Fold in vanilla and nuts.

Spoon into lightly-greased 8 or 9-inch pie pan to form a nest-like shell, building up sides 1/2-inch above edge of pan. Bake in a 300 degree oven, 40 to 50 minutes until lightly browned. (Can make the day ahead, but do not fill until day of serving.)

Filling:

1 4-ounce bar Bakers German Sweet Chocolate
3 tablespoons water
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup whipping cream
Stir chocolate in water over low heat until melted. Cool until thickened. Blend in vanilla.

Whip cream; fold in chocolate mixture. Pile into meringue shell. Sprinkle chopped nuts over filling or garnish with chocolate curls. Chill at least two hours. Serves 6 to 8.

JUDY TRIPHAPHN beats egg whites to make a meringue crust for a rich Chocolate Angel Pie. She prepares the filling from German sweet chocolate and whipped cream. Nuts add texture to the crust and filling.

Kuchen is breakfast treat

Apples are readily available the year around, and they're good eating in a variety of ways. They make a special breakfast treat for the proverbial "early-to-rise" and even for slugabeds in Easy Apple Kuchen.

Easy Apple Kuchen is based on frozen bread dough that is already mixed and kneaded and readily available in the frozen food case of leading food stores.

Serve Easy Apple Kuchen with golden brown sausages and steamed fresh asparagus for a hearty breakfast or brunch.

EASY APPLE KUCHEN

1 one-pound loaf frozen white bread dough
1 egg, separated
6 or 7 cooking apples
1 1/2 cups sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 cup sour cream
1 cup corn syrup

2 tablespoons butter

The night before, remove the bread dough from the freezer and let it thaw, well-wrapped, in the refrigerator overnight.

In the morning, slice the bread dough crosswise into 12 equal slices. Place the slices side by side in a lightly greased 12 by 8 inch pan. Brush them with lightly beaten egg white and let rise until doubled in size.

Peel the apples and slice them thin. Cover the entire surface of the bread dough with overlapping rows of sliced apple. Mix the sugar and cinnamon well; sprinkle the mixture over the apples.

Mix the remaining egg white and yolk with sour cream and pour evenly over apples, smoothing with the back of a spoon. Pour corn syrup over all and dot the top generously with butter.

Bake at 350 degrees for 30 to 35 minutes.

Back to budgeting with good taste

Pennywise and time-saving. Who could ask for anything more in a main dish on busy days when budget is the word of the moment?

Two favorite foods, frankfurters and cottage cheese, meet with noodles in a saucy dish that's both quick and easy for the homemaker. Frankfurters are sliced into coin-sized circles and simmered in a zesty sauce. Cottage cheese is mixed right in with noodles for a protein boost. Though it looks like a casserole, it's all prepared right on top of the range.

Building a meal around this main dish offers no problems. Just assemble some assorted greens and/or vegetables for a tossed salad. Serve with French bread and butter, a pitcher of milk and some brownies or peppermint ice cream with chocolate sauce.

BARBECUED FRANKS 'N NOODLES

- 3/4 cup chopped onion
- 3/4 cup chopped celery
- 1/2 cup chopped green pepper
- 1/2 cup butter
- 1 cup catsup
- 1/3 cup chili sauce
- 3 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1 tablespoon soy sauce
- 1 pound frankfurters, sliced
- 4 cups noodles, cooked, drained
- 1 1/2 cups cottage cheese, at room temperature

Saute onion, celery and green pepper in butter 5 minutes. Add catsup, chili sauce, lemon juice and soy sauce. Cover; simmer 10 minutes. Add frankfurters; simmer 15 minutes. Combine noodles and cottage cheese. Cover; heat to serving temperature over low heat, stirring frequently. Spoon noodle mixture on serving platter; top with barbecued frankfurters. 6-8 servings.

ANOTHER QUICKLY prepared dish uses frankfurters, noodles, Cheddar cheese and tomato soup. It is milder in flavor but certain to please, in addition to providing another money-saving recipe.

FRANKFURTER SKILLET SUPPER

- 3/4 cup chopped onion
- 1 pound frankfurters, sliced
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 2 1/2 cups uncooked noodles
- 1 10 1/2-ounce can condensed tomato soup
- 1 cup milk
- 1 cup (4 oz.) shredded Cheddar cheese
- Chopped parsley

Saute onion and frankfurters in butter in 10-inch skillet 5 minutes. Layer noodles over frankfurters. Pour combined soup and milk over noodles. Bring to boil. Cover; simmer 25-30 minutes or until noodles are tender. Top with cheese; heat until cheese begins to melt. Sprinkle with parsley. 6 servings.

Using sugar substitutes

Faced with the increasing cost of sugar, many homemakers are looking for ways to conserve sugar and to compare costs with other sweeteners.

Irene Downey, University of Illinois Extension foods specialist, points out that the use of sweeteners other than sugar does not guarantee a savings in money. But, a knowledge of both weight and volume measures will help you compare costs.

For quick calculation, a pound of granulated white sugar contains 2 cups (actually, it averages close to 2 1/4 cups). A pound of corn syrup measures 2 cups; a pound of honey, about 1 1/3 cups; and a pound of molasses, about 1 1/2 cups.

If you wish to use honey, molasses or corn syrup in baking, you will get best results from especially developed recipes. If, however, you wish to try substitutions in your favorite recipes for baked goods, here are some suggested guidelines:

—Molasses, honey, or corn syrup may be substituted for all the sugar in any recipe that calls for a small ratio of sugar to other ingredients. This group includes most breads, rolls, and muffins.

—In recipes that call for a high ratio of sugar to other ingredients (most cakes and cookies), you need to reduce the amount of liquid in the recipe if you substitute molasses, honey, or corn syrup. Miss Downey recommends that you reduce the liquid ingredients one-fourth cup for each cup of molasses, honey, or corn syrup used. For example, if you substitute 1/2 cup honey for 1/2 cup sugar, reduce the liquid in the recipe by two tablespoons.

You will be more likely to have a successful product if you substitute for only half the sugar in the recipe. Sweetening ingredients vary in sweetening power, have distinct flavors which may affect other flavoring ingredients in the product, and differ from sugar in their effect on browning.

Besides using sweeteners, you might consider these ways to cut down sugar consumption in your household:

—Use canned fruit juices for sweetening fruits and for making gelatin desserts, puddings, and beverages.

—Use fresh and dried fruits without adding sugar.

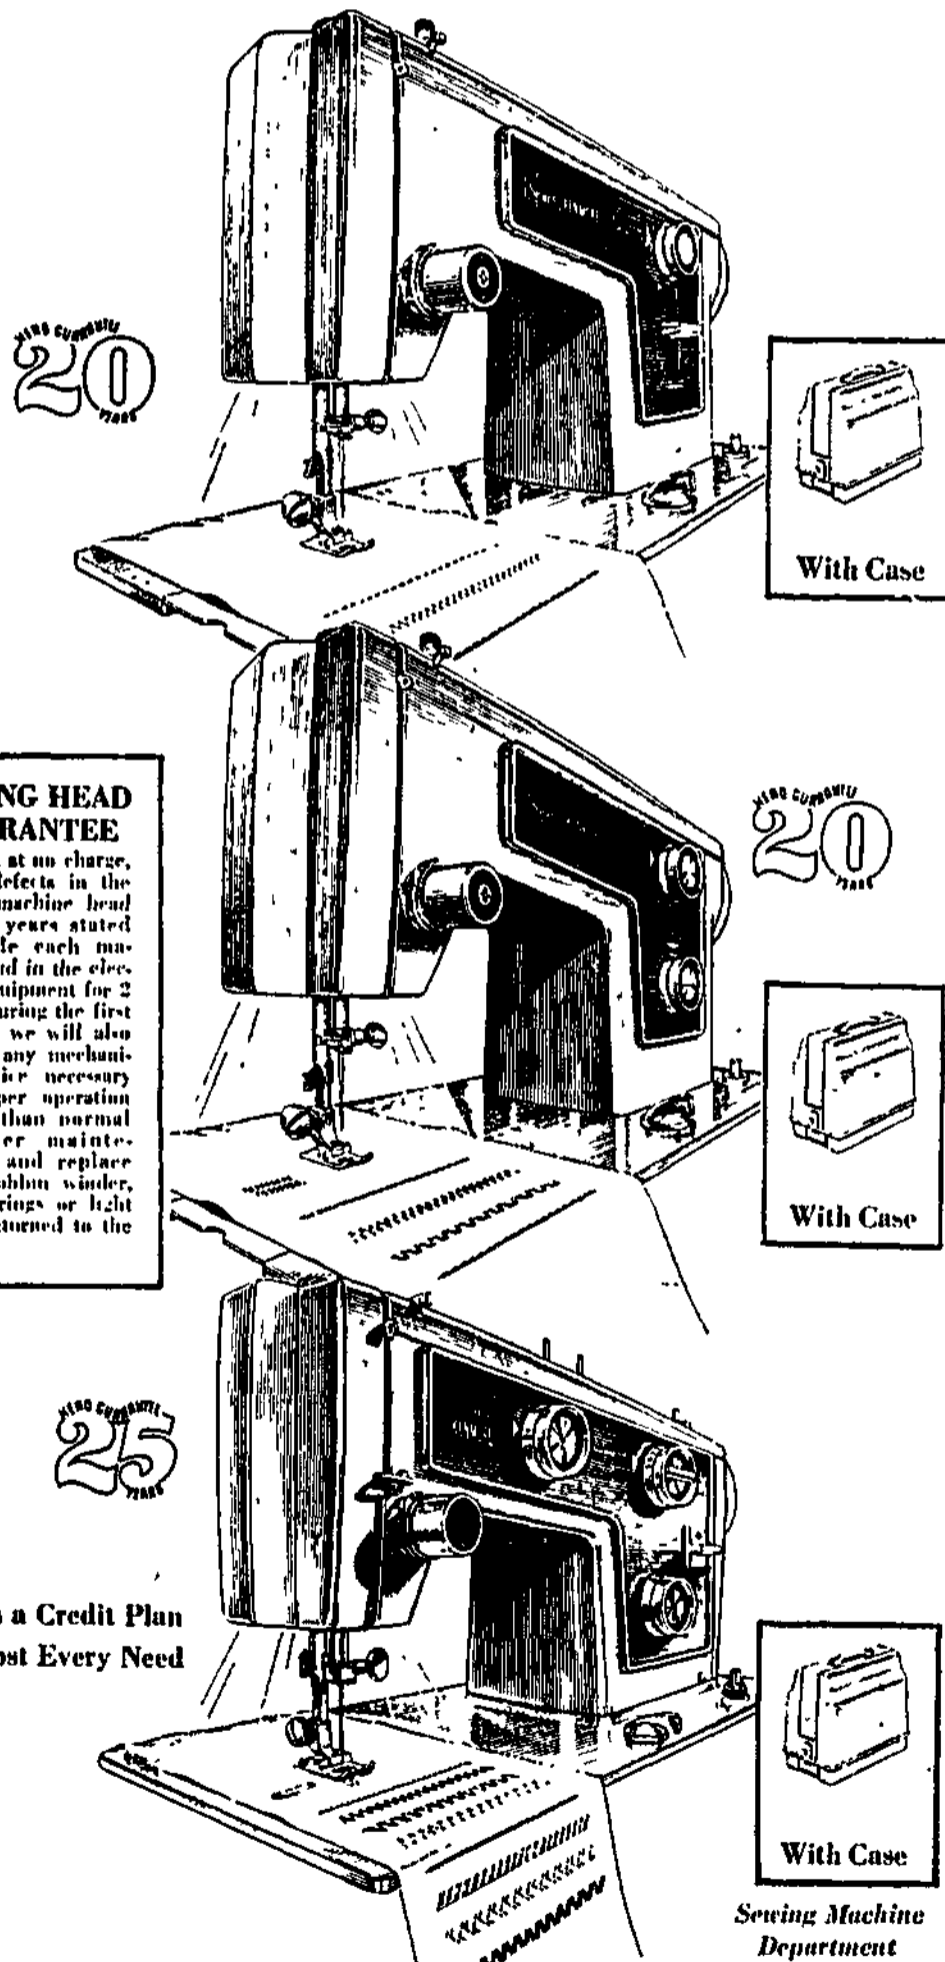

—Always use a little salt to help bring out the sweetness of a food.

—Use fruit instead of rich sweets for dessert. Or use milk-based desserts such as custards and puddings. Although they require sugar, the amounts are generally less than those needed for rich cakes and pies.

Miss Downey suggests that a change to a less sweet diet could be a bonus for your body's nutritional status as well as for your pocketbook. Many Americans could probably improve their diets by reducing sugar consumption.

Easy beef stew for cheap meal

Cooking made simple — and hopefully less expensive — is one order of the day. Beef stew packages combine ingredients for a hearty beef stew, potatoes, carrots, turnips and onion in individual foil squares. These are closed securely and baked. Serving is simplified and there are few dishes to wash. Each beef stew package may be frozen for reheating later without a loss of moisture thus, the ingredients do not dry out. This is a good idea for a busy housewife, a working wife who enjoys entertaining informally or an older couple who like to eat well but don't want to take too much time in the kitchen preparing food or cleaning up.

BEEF STEW PACKAGES

- 3 large potatoes
- 6 carrots
- 6 turnips (optional)
- 12 small boiling onions
- 2 pounds lean beef stew
- Salt
- Pepper
- Dill weed
- 1 (8-ounce) can tomato sauce

Paro vegetables. Quarter potatoes, halve carrots and turnips. Arrange meat and vegetables on 6 (12-inch) squares heavy aluminum foil. Season with salt, pepper and dill weed. Top with tomato sauce. Close foil securely. Place on shallow baking pan. Bake in 350-degree oven 1 1/2 hours. Serve in foil packages. Makes 6 servings.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:
A X Y D L B A A X R
is LONG FELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Yesterday's Cryptquote: THEN WITHIN MY BOSOM SOFTLY THIS I HEARD: EACH HEART HOLDS THE SECRET; KINDNESS IS THE WORD.—JOHN BOYLE O'REILLY

"Reading about Sally getting up and eating eggs for breakfast in a 20-year-old health book just isn't going to cut it anymore," said Ray Steinert.

Since last January, the department has been experimenting with an approach to nutrition education that has been found

Most food prices expected to rise

Consumers can expect food prices to continue rising at an annual rate of 15 per cent through the first half of next year, partly because supplies have been reduced by this year's poor crops, an Agriculture Department economist predicted recently.

But the food picture for 1975 as a whole depends heavily on whether farm crops make a hoped-for recovery next year, USDA official J. Dawson Ahalt said in a speech prepared for delivery to the department's annual Outlook Conference.

He said in an interview that good crops could produce a 1975 grocery bill averaging less than 10 per cent above 1974 — but another poor crop could push the annual average more than 15 per cent above this year.

Grocery store food prices for 1974 as a whole are currently expected to average about 15 per cent above 1973 following a 16.3 per cent increase last year.

Ahalt said next year's price increases will be due to a combination of higher raw farm product prices as well as "further advances" in food marketing costs, which accounted for more than 80 per cent of the total 1974 increase in retail food prices.

Cooking hints

Start the day with an energy-laden breakfast and you'll be better able to cope. There are many ways to do it: add cottage cheese to scrambled eggs or melt a cheese slice on toast. If you're having poached egg on toast, melt Swiss cheese over that and serve with a butter-grilled pineapple ring.

These are days for "making your own." That includes salad dressing which is very good if you use an envelope of your favorite salad dressing mix and allow it to stand five minutes in 1/3 cup of milk. Meanwhile, beat 1 cup cottage cheese until smooth, then whip in milk mixture. Fold in 2 cups dairy sour cream. Cover and chill until time to use. Tell the folks it's a specialty of the house!

Oven-ready refrigerator biscuits make a feast out of the most humble supper. Give the biscuits a homemade touch by dipping in golden, melted butter, then sprinkle them with sesame, poppy or celery seeds. Bake according to package directions and serve hot, of course.

If tomato juice is one of your favorite tonics, you'll like it even better dressed up like this with a topper: Mix two teaspoons grated lemon peel and 1/8 teaspoon onion salt with 1/2 cup of yogurt. Serve atop chilled tomato juice for a flavor lift.

Just don't eat right, the USDA, through the years, has tried to remedy the situation, at least in the school lunchroom.

The USDA not only establishes its "type A" lunchroom menu but also determines how much of each food is to be served each youngster, and then provides some commodities for preparing the lunches.

But Steinert said serving nutritious foods and getting youngsters to eat them were two different things. Such foods as broccoli and even apricots wound up in the garbage can.

The new approach to teaching nutrition in the classroom begins by throwing away the health books. Mrs. Glenda Uhrmacher, project director, said they really afforded little more than oral reading and memorization practice anyway.

The new idea is to make food "fun and exciting," she added.

An initial list of 30 highly nutritious foods was put together and served in lunchrooms with particular emphasis on foods discarded.

touch them, dissect them, eat them raw and finally cook them.

At the same time, information about various foods was presented.

"The children were learning not only about proper diet but also about social studies, mathematics, language arts and reading," said Mrs. Uhrmacher.

When the foods were served once more in the lunchroom, the result was less waste and a better diet.

Will the approach work for foods such as spinach?

Mrs. Uhrmacher said she really didn't know.

"We've done such horrible things to spinach that we've given the food a bad name."

She said there is one problem with the new approach to nutrition education: getting teachers to go along with it. "It is still in the back of many minds that learning has to hurt a little bit."

4 convicted in Watergate coverup

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal court jury Wednesday convicted former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, Nixon White House aides H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman, and campaign lawyer Robert C. Mardian for conspiracy in the cover-up of the Watergate scandal.

After a three-month trial and exactly 15 hours of secret deliberations, the jury returned a guilty verdict against four of former President Richard M. Nixon's most trusted aides in the nation's greatest political scandal.

A fifth defendant, attorney Kenneth W. Parkinson, was acquitted.

U.S. DISTRICT Judge John J. Sirica released Mitchell, Haldeman, Ehrlichman and Mardian on personal bond pending a pre-sentencing report by probation officers.

The four stood silently as the jury filed into Sirica's courtroom at 3 p.m. CST on a quiet New Year's Day in Washington and jury foreman John A. Hoffar, a retired U.S. Park Police sergeant and registered Republican, handed over a thick brown envelope.

The court clerk asked if the jurors had reached a verdict. "Yes, they have," Hoffar responded.

The defendants showed no emotion as the verdicts were read before the hushed courtroom. Mitchell turned and whispered something to his lawyers as the clerk intoned "guilty . . . guilty . . . guilty . . . guilty . . . guilty."

LATER, MITCHELL said he would immediately file an appeal, for which he said he had "fifty" grounds to sustain his claim of innocence.

Among the Haldeman family, only Susan Haldeman, a law student who had remained seated close to her father throughout the trial, lost her composure. She burst into tears as she left the courtroom.

Long after Sirica and the dozen jurors had left the room, Mardian, a former assistant attorney general under Mitchell, sat alone at the defense table with his head buried in his hands. He finally left, totally distraught, in his wife's arms.

"I feel great — a new lease on life," exclaimed Parkinson, who had been indicted for conspiracy and obstruction of justice. He formerly was a lawyer for the Committee for Re-Election of the President in 1972.

MITCHELL, WHO had resigned as Nixon's campaign manager on June 30, 1972, two weeks after the fateful break-in at Democratic national headquarters at the Watergate, was convicted of obstruction of justice, conspiracy and three counts of lying to a federal grand jury and the Senate Watergate Committee.

Mitchell and the other three were convicted of conspiracy in the cover-up of the scandal, and all but Mardian also were found guilty of obstruction of justice.

Haldeman, former Nixon White House chief of staff, also was convicted of five counts of lying to the Watergate Committee. Ehrlichman, former White House domestic affairs adviser, also was convicted on two counts of lying to the Watergate grand jury.

There was no immediate reaction from San Clemente, Calif., where Nixon — who resigned the presidency in disgrace on Aug. 9 — was recuperating in seclusion from a major illness that brought him to the brink of death after he left the White House.

THE JURORS, sequestered for three months, had not been told of Nixon's illness.

Both Haldeman and Ehrlichman resigned from Nixon's staff on April 30, 1973, as the Watergate revelations began to engulf the White House. Nixon accepted their resignations with regret, calling them "two of the greatest public servants" he had ever known.

All the former Nixon aides who were convicted could be sentenced to lengthy prison terms under the maximum penalties prescribed for their offenses.

For instance, Mitchell, Haldeman and Ehrlichman each could be sentenced to 10 years in prison and $15,000 in fines as the maximum penalty for conspiracy and obstruction of justice.

Of the four, only Mitchell seemed relaxed.

"Do I have any reaction?" he said, puffing on his pipe as he repeated a reporter's question. "Can't you guess?"

Then he quipped he might "go to the

New political party announces a full slate

by JOE FRANZ

CAP won't support slate in April village election

The Citizens Action Program, a political group in Wheeling, announced Tuesday it has decided not to slate candidates for the upcoming village board election.

The surprise announcement was made by Trustee William Hein, who heads the group. It came about two hours after Hein told a Herald reporter that a slate would be named by late Tuesday.

"CAP is not running a slate because it is a nonpolitical, nonpartisan organization," Hein said. "CAP is not backing any party and its members can back anybody they want to in the election."

WHILE HEIN WAS denying that CAP is a political party, the news came as a surprise to William Rogers, a possible candidate for trustee.

"That's not what I hear," he said. "They have been actively seeking candidates to run in the next election."

Hein admitted CAP members have caucused for numerous hours in the last week, but he said they decided it was in the group's best interests not to become involved in politics. Sources told The Herald, however, that CAP decided to abandon the slate because it was unable to find an acceptable fourth candidate.

CAP was formed in November 1973 as a citizens lobby, but the group soon took on political overtones. Although Hein and other members deny there is a connection, CAP has been linked by its rivals to Wheeling political boss James Stavros, who is serving four years in a federal prison for extortion and income tax evasion.

WILLIAM HEIN

Stavros, former Wheeling Township Democratic committeeman, was among six present and former Wheeling and county officials indicted by a federal grand jury last January. Four of the six have pleaded guilty and two are awaiting trial.

A new political party has cropped up in Wheeling and announced plans to run a full slate of candidates in the April 15 village board election.

The new group, the Wheeling Representative Party, Tuesday announced its slate which consists of one village official and three newcomers to Wheeling politics.

The candidates are: zoning board member Neil H. Brant, 45, of 65 Birch Tr.; Kenneth R. Brady, 33, of 62 Brian Ln.; Robert E. Clark, 49, of 519 Isa Dr.; and Roger Powers, 29, of 1509 Clearwater Ln.

Brant, the group's spokesman, said the party is preparing a platform and will release it soon. "The platform is not ready yet and I don't want to release it with incomplete or misleading information," he said.

THE NEW POLITICAL party, Brant said, has been in the making for about two months and interviewed a number of persons before choosing its slate.

Brant, a village resident since 1966, has served on the zoning board since 1970. He is a self-employed insurance man.

Clark, a plant superintendent for Premier Engraving Co. Chicago, has lived in Wheeling for 18 years and said he is running so he "can represent all the neighborhoods in the village."

"I feel this has been lacking in the past and I'd like to do something about it," Clark said. "I feel I owe the village something and should get involved."

CLARK IS SEEKING the two-year term on the village board while the other candidates are running for four-year terms.

Brady, a self-employed carpenter and contractor, and Powers, who is employed by an insurance company, could not be reached for comment. Powers recently represented a group of homeowners who wrote a letter praising the police department.

In the meantime, three of the four incumbent village board members remain mum on their plans for the next election. Trustee Ronald Bruhn, who has said he will not seek reelection, is the only board member to announce his plans.

Trustee Edward Berger said he still is considering the possibility of running for

Blood drive planned this month

The Wheeling Blood Plan is tentatively scheduling a blood drive for later this month.

Donald Dominick, chairman of the blood plan, which is sponsored by the Wheeling Jaycees, said a firm date for the drive probably will be set later this week. The blood drives usually are conducted at Wheeling High School.

Last year the blood plan received 460 donations, far below the village quota of 700 in the Beverly Blood Bank's cooperative blood replacement program.

Officials of the blood plan said this year the program will be backed by the North Suburban Blood Center in Northbrook, which they say will be able to better serve Wheeling because of its nearby location.

The annual donation requirements of the blood center's program are the same as the Beverly Blood Bank. Under both programs the entire village is eligible for free blood replacement if 4 per cent of its residents donates a pint of blood each year.

Should the village fall short of its quota, those who have donated and members of their immediate families are guaranteed free blood replacement.

Donors must be 18 to 66 years old and weigh at least 110 pounds. A person can donate blood every eight weeks, to a maximum of five times a year.

Fire causes $30,000 damage

Trust fund to help homeless family

WHEELING FIREMEN clean up after a fire gutted the home of the Arthur Frey family Dec. 20. A trust fund has been set up for the family by Elk Grove Township Dist. 59, which employs Mrs. Frey as a teacher.

Christmas may have been dismal but the new year is looking brighter for the Arthur Frey family whose home was gutted by fire Dec. 20.

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59, which employs Catherine Frey as a teacher at Devonshire School, Des Plaines, has set up a trust fund for the family, which lost most of its possessions when an early afternoon fire struck its Wheeling home.

Arthur Perry, assistant superintendent in Dist. 59, said, "Although there is insurance to partially cover the loss there has been a considerable burden placed on the family — especially considering the time of year it occurred."

"In response to this situation we are establishing a benefit fund at the Bank of Elk Grove where people who wish to assist the family may make a contribution directly through the bank," he said.

THE FIRE started while Mrs. Frey and her daughter Mary were at Devonshire for the last day of school before winter vacation.

The fire gutted the kitchen and living room of the home, 923 Twilight Ln., and almost reached the bedrooms by the time firefighters arrived. Damage was estimated at $30,000 with heavy smoke and heat damage to the unburned portions of the house.

Wheeling Fire Chief Bernie Koeppen said the fire started in a stove.

Frey is a recruiting officer for the Navy in the Palatine recruiting office.

The family is staying with relatives in Des Plaines.

Two men arrested for burglary tools

Wheeling police arrested two Chicago men Sunday for possession of burglary tools after the men were seen allegedly going from car to car in a parking lot at 90 N. Wolf Rd. about 4:20 a.m.

Arrested were George E. LeFever, 20, of 1827 W. Hermitage Ave., and George R. Tibor Jr., 21, of 3729 N. Janssen Ave. Bond was set at $2,000 for each man and both are to appear Feb. 7 in the Arlington Heights branch of Circuit Court.

Police said they found various tools, including an awl, socket wrench, hatchet, razor blades, flashlights, hammers, knives and pliers. Both men told police they were self-employed carpet layers.

Police said an occupant of the apartment building saw the men acting suspiciously in the lot and called police.

Wheeling needs crossing guards

Two school crossing guards are needed by the Wheeling Police Dept.

Residents wishing to be hired as guards, at $3 an hour, should apply at the police station, 233 W. Dundee Rd.

Guards are needed for about four hours each school day at the intersection of Schoenbeck and Anthony roads and for about two hours each schoolday at the intersection of Elmhurst and Dennis roads.

One great remedy for the high cost and low food value of most snacks — the nutritious bagel.

It's our prescription for a preservative-free, protein-packed snack or meal. Our bagels are baked just the way "Dr." Lender's father did back in the old country. With all natural ingredients, high gluten flour and plenty of vitamins and minerals.

They're frozen, so you'll taste the same crunchy crust and tender chewy center at Sunday brunch or for a night-time nibble. Or anytime in between. Pick up "Dr." Lender's little white bag this week. Pay a little housecall of your own at your grocer's frozen food section.

INSTALLING NEW LIGHTS in the stairwells and tackling major cleaning projects kept the custodial staff busy at Forest View High School while students took a two-week winter vacation. It was all work and little play not only for custodians but also for administrators, who waded through paperwork in preparation for the next school year.

Time to 'wash, wax, repair, replace'

School chiefs, custodians work while pupils vacation

by DOROTHY OLIVER

While you're up to your eyebrows in holiday partying, school custodians are up to their elbows in soapsuds and school administrators have had it "up to here" with paperwork.

The traditional two-week winter break, "salvation" for students, is just another couple of weeks of work for some of the people who staff area elementary and high schools.

For the custodial staff, it's a time to wash, wax, repair and replace. "We don't have that three-month summer vacation anymore to tear the whole building apart, clean it and get it back together again because of the length of summer school," said Gary Tjarks, assistant principal at Forest View High School.

WINTER VACATION is two weeks of catching up, tackling major projects — "lots of scrubbing and waxing, refinishing the gym floors, giving a general cleaning to major areas," Tjarks said.

"We save the big jobs for this time," he said. "Some of the areas in the school are used so much you can't get into them without being disruptive when the kids are here. Those are the same areas that need it the most."

Custodians are on duty 24 hours a day at Forest View but still find it hard to keep up with daily cleaning, much less major projects. "We have so much glass in this building we just can't keep it clean," Tjarks said. "I could put one man on it full time and he still wouldn't get it all done."

During vacation, Forest View is getting all new lights in the stairwell, a sink for the band room and the heater in the dishwasher is being rebuilt.

Some of the cars in the near empty parking lots in front of schools belong to administrators — principals, assistant principals, superintendents and other staffers.

LEO HUNDT, a Forest View assistant principal, said he and many others in charge of instructional services, are wading through paper trying to plan scheduling and registration for next fall. "It would be simple if we just offered English 1, 2, 3 and 4. But we offer so much to the students it is very complex," he said.

Although the academic halls are relatively quiet, some parts of the schools are noisier than ever. Girls' and boys' athletic teams fill the gymnasium, some choral and band directors bring the kids back early for practice and several high schools are in the midst of play rehearsals.

Still, it is peaceful while the students are gone. "Every so often one of the little neighborhood kids comes in to take a look around," Tjarks said. "It's kind of nice having someone want to come here who doesn't have to. But they get into so many things we have to hustle them out."

"We tell them to come back when they're high school age."

Homeless family to get aid from fund set up by school

Christmas may have been dismal but the new year is looking brighter for the Arthur Frey family whose home was gutted by fire Dec. 20.

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59, which employs Catherine Frey as a teacher at Devonshire School, Des Plaines, has set up a trust fund for the family, which lost most of its possessions when an early afternoon fire struck its Wheeling home.

Arthur Perry, assistant superintendent in Dist. 59, said, "Although there is insurance to partially cover the loss there has been a considerable burden placed on the family — especially considering the time of year it occurred.

"In response to this situation we are establishing a benefit fund at the Bank of Elk Grove where people who wish to assist the family may make a contribution directly through the bank," he said.

THE FIRE started while Mrs. Frey and her daughter Mary were at Devonshire for the last day of school before winter vacation.

The fire gutted the kitchen and living room of the home, 923 Twilight Ln., and almost reached the bedrooms by the time firefighters arrived. Damage was estimated at $30,000 with heavy smoke and heat damage to the unburned portions of the house.

Wheeling Fire Chief Bernie Koeppen said the fire started in a stove.

Frey is a recruiting officer for the Navy in the Palatine recruiting office.

The family is staying with relatives in Des Plaines.

Burglars hit northeast area of Mount Prospect

Mount Prospect police are urging residents of the northeast section of the village to be on the alert for suspicious persons and vehicles due to a series of burglaries during the past five days.

More than a half dozen burglaries were discovered in the area since Saturday, Sgt. Patrick Hallihan said. In most cases, but not all, the burglars have struck while the homeowners are on vacation.

In one of two burglaries reported Tuesday by police, a neighbor said she saw a car in front of the burglarized house in the 1800 block of Park Drive at 11:10 p.m. Monday and two men coming from the rear of the house. The men were carrying two white bags — possibly pillow cases — police were told.

THE SECOND reported burglary occurred in the 1500 block of Onelda Lane. In each case, police said they did not know what had been stolen from the homes. Police are withholding exact locations of the burglaries.

Earlier reported burglaries have occurred at the Robert Frost School, 1805 Aspen Dr., in the 1500 block of Mura Lane and in the 1300 block of Peachtree Lane.

"We feel they are being committed by the same individuals," Hallihan said.

Hallihan urged residents of the area to call the police immediately if they see any suspicious persons, particularly men, in the area or if they notice cars being driven in a suspicious manner. He especially warned residents to be on the alert for persons loitering around homes where the owners are known to be either on vacation or away at that time.

New political party announces a full slate

by JOE FRANZ

A new political party has cropped up in Wheeling and announced plans to run a full slate of candidates in the April 15 village board election.

The new group, the Wheeling Representative Party, Tuesday announced its slate which consists of one village official and three newcomers to Wheeling politics.

Neil H. Brant

and Roger Powers, 29, of 1509 Clearwater Ln.

Brant, the group's spokesman, said the party is preparing a platform and will release it soon. "The platform is not ready yet and I don't want to release it with incomplete or misleading information," he said.

THE NEW POLITICAL party, Brant said, has been in the making for about two months and interviewed a number of persons before choosing its slate.

Brant, a village resident since 1966, has served on the zoning board since 1970. He is a self-employed insurance man.

Clark, a plant superintendent for Premier Engraving Co. Chicago, has lived in Wheeling for 18 years and said he is running so he "can represent all the neighborhoods in the village."

"I feel this has been lacking in the past and I'd like to do something about it," Clark said. "I feel I owe the village something and should get involved."

CLARK IS SEEKING the two-year term on the village board while the other candidates are running for four-year terms.

Brady, a self-employed carpenter and contractor, and Powers, who is employed by an insurance company, could not be reached for comment. Powers recently represented a group of homeowners who wrote a letter praising the police department.

In the meantime, three of the four incumbent village board members remain mum on their plans for the next election. Trustee Ronald Bruhn, who has said he will not seek reelection, is the only board member to announce his plans.

Trustee Edward Berger said he still is considering the possibility of running for reelection, and that his decision will depend largely on who else is seeking election.

"Naturally, I'd like to take a little rest, but that will depend," he said. "I'm not really too impressed with those running and unless I see something better I will consider running again."

TRUSTEE JOHN Koeppen said he too is undecided about seeking reelection, although he has taken out election petitions at the village hall. He said he probably will not make a decision until the end of January.

Trustee Albert Lang said he has discussed the possibility of running on a slate, but said he has made no decision and probably will not for at least a week. He refused to name his possible running mates.

Sources, however, told The Herald Tuesday that Lang, Berger and Koeppen are considering running on a slate with William Rogers, chairman of the environmental commission. Rogers was unsuccessful in gaining a spot on the Wheeling Improvement Party slate two weeks ago.

Residents who wish to run for the village board can pick up petitions at the Wheeling Municipal Building, 255 W. Dundee Rd. The election petitions must be filed between Jan. 6 and Feb. 10.

CAP won't support slate in April village election

The Citizens Action Program, a political group in Wheeling, announced Tuesday it has decided not to slate candidates for the upcoming village board election.

The surprise announcement was made by Trustee William Hein, who heads the group. It came about two hours after Hein told a Herald reporter that a slate would be named by late Tuesday.

"CAP is not running a slate because it is a nonpolitical, nonpartisan organization," Hein said. "CAP is not backing any party and its members can back anybody they want to in the election."

WHILE HEIN WAS denying that CAP is a political party, the news came as a surprise to William Rogers, a possible candidate for trustee.

"That's not what I hear," he said. "They have been actively seeking candidates to run in the next election."

Hein admitted CAP members have caucused for numerous hours in the last week, but he said they decided it was in the group's best interests not to become involved in politics. Sources told The Herald, however, that CAP decided to abandon the slate because it was unable to find an acceptable fourth candidate.

CAP was formed in November 1973 as a citizens lobby, but the group soon took on political overtones. Although Hein and other members deny there is a connection, CAP has been linked by its rivals to Wheeling political boss James Stavros, who is serving four years in a federal prison for extortion and income tax evasion.

WILLIAM HEIN

Stavros, former Wheeling Township Democratic committeeman, was among six present and former Wheeling and county officials indicted by a federal grand jury last January. Four of the six have pleaded guilty and two are awaiting trial.

Youth shot twice, drivers report windows hit by BBs

Arlington Heights police blame parents who gave Christmas BB guns to their children for a rash of incidents involving youngsters shooting air rifles at passing cars, and at each other.

At least two Arlington Heights motorists have reported their car windows shot out this week, police said. In both cases the cars were traveling along Euclid Avenue.

A 9-year-old Arlington Heights boy was shot once in the head and again in the shoulder by another youth while the two were shooting air rifles in a field south of Dundee Road.

Firing a BB or pellet gun in the village is as illegal as the discharge of any other cartridge-loading firearm, said Arlington Heights Police Capt. Jack Aldrich. The only exceptions are on police-approved indoor target ranges.

"If they use them out of doors, they're asking for trouble. And if the parents give them out as Christmas presents, then they're asking for trouble," Aldrich said.

"If a kid gets a BB gun he's going to shoot it. And what's he going to shoot it at? Cars, birds, windows and people," he said.

SUSAN GLAWE, 810 N. Drury Ln., told police a pellet or BB shattered the vent window on the passenger side of her car earlier this week as she was driving along Euclid Avenue near Waterman Avenue.

A second Arlington Heights woman, Lisa Kaskie, 228 S. Kennicott Dr., said the passenger window in her car was hit by a pellet Monday night on Euclid near Forrest Avenue.

In both cases, police checked the area, but failed to find the gun-toting youth.

The 9-year-old boy told police he was shot by an unidentified youth late Sunday afternoon while shooting in a field south of Dundee Road just east of Betty Lane in unincorporated Cook County. The boy was treated and released at Northwest Community Hospital.

IT DOESN'T look like much yet, but village officials say the first phase of the Plaza Verde Shopping Center including an Eagle Food and Osco Drug store will be open for business next May. Some 38 stores are planned for the shopping complex near the Villa Verde apartments, Dundee and Arlington Heights roads.

4 convicted in Watergate coverup

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal court jury Wednesday convicted former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, Nixon White House aides H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman, and campaign lawyer Robert C. Mardian for conspiracy in the cover-up of the Watergate scandal.

After a three-month trial and exactly 15 hours of secret deliberations, the jury returned a guilty verdict against four of former President Richard M. Nixon's most trusted aides in the nation's greatest political scandal.

A fifth defendant, attorney Kenneth W. Parkinson, was acquitted.

U.S. DISTRICT Judge John J. Sirica released Mitchell, Haldeman, Ehrlichman and Mardian on personal bond pending a pre-sentencing report by probation officers.

The four stood silently as the jury filed into Sirica's courtroom at 3 p.m. CST on a quiet New Year's Day in Washington and jury foreman John A. Hoffer, a retired U.S. Park Police sergeant and registered Republican, handed over a thick brown envelope.

The court clerk asked if the jurors had reached a verdict. "Yes, they have," Hoffer responded.

The defendants showed no emotion as the verdicts were read before the hushed courtroom. Mitchell turned and whispered something to his lawyers as the clerk intoned "guilty... guilty... guilty... guilty... guilty... guilty."

LATER, MITCHELL said he would immediately file an appeal, for which he said he had "fifty" grounds to sustain his claim of innocence.

Among the Haldeman family, only Susan Haldeman, a law student who had remained seated close to her father throughout the trial, lost her composure. She burst into tears as she left the courtroom.

sistant attorney general under Mitchell, sat alone at the defense table with his head buried in his hands. He finally left, totally distraught, in his wife's arms.

"I feel great — a new lease on life," exclaimed Parkinson, who had been indicted for conspiracy and obstruction of justice. He formerly was a lawyer for the Committee for Re-Election of the President in 1972.

MITCHELL, WHO had resigned as Nixon's campaign manager on June 30, 1972, two weeks after the fateful break-in at Democratic national headquarters at the Watergate, was convicted of obstruction of justice, conspiracy and three counts of lying to a federal grand jury and the Senate Watergate Committee.

Mitchell and the other three were convicted of conspiracy in the cover-up of the scandal, and all but Mardian also were found guilty of obstruction of justice.

Haldeman, former Nixon White House chief of staff, also was convicted of five counts of lying to the Watergate Committee. Ehrlichman, former White House domestic affairs adviser, also was convicted on two counts of lying to the Watergate grand jury.

There was no immediate reaction from San Clemente, Calif., where Nixon — who resigned the presidency in disgrace on Aug. 9 — was recuperating in seclusion from a major illness that brought him to the brink of death after he left the White House.

THE JURORS, sequestered for three months, had not been told of Nixon's illness.

Both Haldeman and Ehrlichman resigned from Nixon's staff on April 30, 1973, as the Watergate revelations began to engulf the White House. Nixon accepted their resignations with regret, calling them "two of the greatest public servants" he had ever known.

All the former Nixon aides who were convicted could be sentenced to lengthy prison terms under the maximum penalties prescribed for their offenses.

For instance, Mitchell, Haldeman and Ehrlichman each could be sentenced to 10 years in prison and $15,000 in fines as the maximum penalty for conspiracy and obstruction of justice.

Of the four, only Mitchell seemed relaxed.

"Do I have any reaction?" he said, puffing on his pipe as he repeated a reporter's question. "Can't you guess?"

Then he quipped he might "go to the

Village crews barred from inspections

by JERRY THOMAS

Centex Homes Corp. has barred Elk Grove Village officials from accompanying inspectors hired by the firm when they inspect possibly faulty furnaces in the village.

The firm told Building Comr. Thomas Rottenbacher that the inspections being planned for some 1,700 homes are "none of our (Elk Grove's) business."

"In fact they told an inspector to 'go to hell,' when he pressed them on the issue," Rottenbacher said.

"I disagree and maintain safe furnaces are certainly this department's business and will continue to attempt to work with the builder in his inspections of the 1,700 suspect furnaces," Rottenbacher said.

Robert Franz, assistant village manager, said, "If the building commissioner is adamant that our inspectors should be in on furnace inspections as observers with the Centex-hired inspection teams, we will support him." The village manager and other administrators met to discuss the issue late Tuesday.

CENTEX HOMES CORP. hired Western Heating and Air Conditioning of Maywood to conduct an inspection and defective heat exchanger replacement program which began Monday.

The program was initiated after independent and village studies determined furnace heat exchangers in homes built by Centex between 1962 and 1971 were failing prematurely.

Rottenbacher planned to send along village inspectors on Monday's inspections. However, the builder refused to say where they were being held.

"We want to know what they are going to do. I realize Centex does not have to obtain village permits to inspect or replace defective parts, but we want to know how they are going to go about it," Rottenbacher said.

The commissioner said, "I'm at a loss to explain why the builder would mind our help; frankly I don't see any disadvantage to our village men going along on inspections as observers."

"I BELIEVE it would help us later when those same residents call the village building department for the information," he added.

Rottenbacher said he was contacted by one resident whose furnace was inspected by the Western heating inspection team Monday.

"The inspection team told him he had a hole in his heat exchanger, advised him to turn it down low and said another crew would be back in a week to replace the defective part. He was panicked, and asked our village inspector to check the furnace also, so we did," Rottenbacher said. Rottenbacher disagrees with Centex's system of inspecting furnaces and delaying repair work when a defective system is found.

Centex officials again were not available for comment.

New post office for Bicentennial

U. S. Postal Service authorities estimate that a new post office will be built in Elk Grove Village by 1976.

A centrally located site for the facility has been picked and postal administrators are in the process of having the site appraised for purchase, said Walter Dyer, public information officer of the central region of the Postal Service.

Dyer said he expected the site to be purchased within the next six months and the building to be constructed in the next year.

Dyer said after the new post office is completed, the present post office in the Grove Shopping Center on Arlington Heights Road will be closed.

The new facility is expected to be a full-service office, capable of handling Elk Grove Village mail directly, but it is to be under the administrative control of the Arlington Heights Post Office.

The Elk Grove Assn. of Industry and Commerce began calling for the construction of a new post office in 1973 because of what Assn. Executive Vice President E. Stanley Klyber described as "a critical need for space."

To alleviate some of the overcrowding at the Grove Shopping Center office, a carrier annex was opened last summer at 786 Arlington Heights Rd. The annex offers no services to the public, but gives carriers more room to sort mail for their routes.

2 park board incumbents unopposed

It appears the April 15 Elk Grove Park Board election may be an uncontested race for incumbents Sheri Shapiro and David von Schaumburg.

Mrs. Shapiro and von Schaumburg are the only ones who have picked up petitions to participate in the election. The first day of filing petitions is Jan. 13 and the deadline is Jan. 27.

Mrs. Shapiro, the newest member of the park board, was appointed last August to succeed Jack Ramey, who resigned. She said she will seek a six-year term.

A two-year term will be sought by von Schaumburg, who was appointed last June to fill the vacancy on the board created when Comr. Martin Durkin resigned.

A charter member of the park board, von Schaumburg was first elected in 1966. He chose not to run for reelection in 1973, but applied for the seat vacated by Durkin.

Petitions of candidacy are available at the park district administration building, 499 Blesterfield Rd. Office hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and 9 a.m. to noon Saturday.

INSTALLING NEW LIGHTS in the stairwells and tackling major cleaning projects kept the custodial staff busy at Forest View High School while students took a two-week winter vacation. It was all work and little play not only for custodians but also for administrators, who waded through paperwork in preparation for the next school year.

Time to 'wash, wax, repair, replace'

School chiefs, custodians work while pupils vacation

by DOROTHY OLIVER

While you're up to your eyebrows in holiday partying, school custodians are up to their elbows in soapsuds and school administrators have had it "up to here" with paperwork.

The traditional two-week winter break, "salvation" for students, is just another couple of weeks of work for some of the people who staff area elementary and high schools.

For the custodial staff, it's a time to wash, wax, repair and replace. "We don't have that three-month summer vacation anymore to tear the whole building apart, clean it and get it back together again because of the length of summer school," said Gary Tjarks, assistant principal at Forest View High School.

WINTER VACATION is two weeks of catching up, tackling major projects — "lots of scrubbing and waxing, refinishing the gym floors, giving a general cleaning to major areas," Tjarks said.

"We save the big jobs for this time," he said. "Some of the areas in the school are used so much you can't get into them without being disruptive when the kids are here. Those are the same areas that need it the most."

Custodians are on duty 24 hours a day at Forest View but still find it hard to keep up with daily cleaning, much less major projects. "We have so much glass in this building we just can't keep it clean," Tjarks said. "I could put one man on it full time and he still wouldn't get it all done."

During vacation, Forest View is getting all new lights in the stairwell, a sink for the band room and the heater in the dishwasher is being rebuilt.

Some of the cars in the near empty parking lots in front of schools belong to administrators — principals, assistant principals, superintendents and other staffers.

LEO HUNDT, a Forest View assistant principal, said he and many others in charge of instructional services, are wading through paper trying to plan scheduling and registration for next fall. "It would be simple if we just offered English 1, 2, 3 and 4. But we offer so much to the students it is very complex," he said.

Although the academic halls are relatively quiet, some parts of the schools are noisier than ever. Girls' and boys' athletic teams fill the gymnasium, some choral and band directors bring the kids back early for practice and several high schools are in the midst of play rehearsals.

Still, it is peaceful while the students are gone. "Every so often one of the little neighborhood kids comes in to take a look around," Tjarks said. "It's kind of nice having someone want to come here who doesn't have to. But they get into so many things we have to hustle them out."

"We tell them to come back when they're high school age."

WHEELING FIREMEN clean up after a fire gutted the home of the Arthur Frey family Dec. 20. A trust fund has been set up for the family by Elk Grove Township Dist. 59, which employs Mrs. Frey as a teacher.

Trust fund established for family

Christmas may have been dismal but the new year is looking brighter for the Arthur Frey family whose home was gutted by fire Dec. 20.

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59, which employs Catherine Frey as a teacher at Devonshire School, Des Plaines, has set up a trust fund for the family, which lost most of its possessions when an early afternoon fire struck its Wheeling home.

Arthur Perry, assistant superintendent in Dist. 59, said, "Although there is insurance to partially cover the loss there has been a considerable burden placed on the family — especially considering the time of year it occurred."

"In response to this situation we are establishing a benefit fund at the Bank of Elk Grove where people who wish to assist the family may make a contribution directly through the bank," he said.

THE FIRE started while Mrs. Frey and her daughter Mary were at Devonshire for the last day of school before winter vacation.

The fire gutted the kitchen and living room of the home, 923 Twilight Ln., and almost reached the bedrooms by the time firefighters arrived. Damage was estimated at $30,000 with heavy smoke and heat damage to the unburned portions of the house.

Library dilemma—books for teen-agers

by JILL BETTNER

Too old for toys, too young for dates, the junior high school youngster is a mystery to librarians.

In the years between 12 and 15, interests may range from sports and rock music to politics and space exploration, making it tough for librarians to provide enough different kinds of reading material to suit varied tastes.

To make the job a little easier, Elk Grove Village librarians recently conducted a survey to find out what students in the sixth, seventh and eighth grades like to read.

IN THE SURVEYS, distributed through local junior high schools, youngsters were invited to become amateur book critics by writing short reviews of their favorite works.

The reviews will be put together in a book list and published as a newsletter, similar to "The Bookworm" which includes reviews of children's books written by younger students.

Librarians also will use the information obtained in the survey to expand the library's young adult book collection, said Mary Clark, head librarian.

"We want to measure the results of the survey against the young adult collection to see how accurately what is on our shelves reflects the interests of junior high school students," Miss Clark said. "I think many times, adults get preconceived notions of what young adults like and then they're pulled up short when they find out the kids are way ahead of them."

A GLANCE THROUGH the reviews shows some of the problems encountered by librarians who must try to provide reading materials spanning not only a wide spectrum of interests, but levels of reading ability as well.

Seventh graders, for example, picked as some of their favorite books "Off My Chest," by Jim Brown, former professional football player, "The Call of the Wild" by Jack London, "A Horse Called Mystery" by Marjorie Reynolds, "Grapes of Wrath" by John Steinbeck and "America" by Allistair Cooke.

The reading tastes of students in the other two grades are equally as far-reaching. One sixth grader said he loved the book "The Flying Tigers" about World War II flying aces, while another raved over Dr. Seuss's story of "The Grinch Who Stole Christmas."

Louisa May Alcott books are big with eighth-grade girls, but so are the adventures of the Hobbits in the series by J. R. R. Tolkien.

MISS CLARK SAID depending on the response to the list of book reviews to be published, the library may consider sponsoring a literary magazine for junior high school students.

"The book list will be sort of a trial balloon to determine if there is sufficient interest to discuss the idea of putting together a regular literary magazine," she said.

If junior high students seem enthusiastic about the idea of publishing a magazine, Miss Clark said she would envision the library cooperating with local schools to compile book reviews, essays and art work for the publication.

Mikva picks up support in fight on airport noise

U.S. Rep.-elect Abner J. Mikva, D-10th, has begun lining up support for a proposal to give local communities some say in regulations designed to limit aircraft noise near major airports.

Mikva said he has talked with Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Bohrer and Park Ridge Mayor Martin Butler about a proposal to create a board composed of local representatives to set regulations for aircraft noise.

He said he met with U.S. Rep.-elect Henry Hyde, R-6th, to discuss the proposal. Hyde's west suburban district also borders O'Hare Airport.

MIKVA SAID he intends to meet with other local officials in the near future and plans to attempt to enlist bipartisan support from other congressmen from throughout the country whose districts are affected by large airports.

Under Mikva's plan an airport noise-pollution-control board would be created for every airport whenever 60 per cent of the persons living in the airport's noise impact area are not residents of the city which owns the airport.

"Chicago is far enough away from O'Hare to escape the worst of the noise," Mikva said. He noted that Congress should act on this issue because most airports receive federal funds.

THE PROPOSAL would allow the local board to set the regulations and any challenges to the rules would have to go before the Federal Aviation Administration or the Civil Aeronautics Board and could only be overruled if the rule had an adverse effect of safety or was commercially impractical.

Mikva said if his legislative proposal is approved many regulations and plans now being recommended by aircraft noise abatement groups could be developed.

He suggested regulations might be developed to govern landing procedures, runway use, and curfews on airport operations similar to those in effect at Washington National Airport by the local boards.

IT WILL TAKE a lot of work to get this greenhouse Park back in working order for programs which are the building is missing, Park Director Thomas scheduled to begin this fall. Although the glass in Cooper said the greenhouse is structurally sound.

Parks hope to use old greenhouse

The Mount Prospect Park District hopes to be able to use the greenhouse at Friendship Park, near Algonquin Road and Janice Street, for school and park programs next fall.

But first the park district must renovate the building. Park Director Thomas W. Cooper said this means the district must figure out what improvements are needed. He said the district is looking for someone who is knowledgeable about greenhouses so the district can prepare a project and go to bid with it.

Although Cooper admitted the building looks rundown, he said people familiar with greenhouses have told him it is "substantial."

"We need to renovate it, scrape the supports and put the glass back in," Cooper said, saying proper maintenance never has been done on the greenhouse.

The work is expected to cost more than $2,500, so the park district will have to go to bid on the project. Cooper, however, said he does not have any idea what the project actually will cost.

Although the district has owned the greenhouse property since 1970, the former owner only recently vacated the building and adjacent house. He was renting the property from the district.

COOPER SAID HE plans to explore the possibility of allowing High School Dist. 214 and the University of Illinois to use the greenhouse. A meeting is set for Jan. 7 with the two school groups.

Park board members will review plans for renovating the greenhouse before any work is done. Cooper said he expects work on the project to be done in the spring and summer months, with the building ready for operation when next winter's cold weather sets in again.

BABE THIBAUT, Elk Grove Park District employee, is busy this week carving and painting signs for some of the newer parks in the community.

Boy, 9, shot twice

Motorists report windows hit by BBs

Arlington Heights police blame parents who gave Christmas BB guns to their children for a rash of incidents involving youngsters shooting air rifles at passing cars, and at each other.

At least two Arlington Heights motorists have reported their car windows shot at this week, police said. In both cases the cars were traveling along Euclid Avenue.

A 9-year-old Arlington Heights boy was shot once in the head and again in the shoulder by another youth while the two were shooting air rifles in a field south of Dundee Road.

Firing a BB or pellet gun in the village is as illegal as the discharge of any other cartridge-loading firearm, said Arlington Heights Police Capt. Jack Aldrich. The only exceptions are on police-approved indoor target ranges.

"If they use them out of doors, they're asking for trouble. And if the parents give them out as Christmas presents, then they're asking for trouble," Aldrich said.

"If a kid gets a BB gun he's going to shoot it. And what's he going to shoot it at? Cars, birds, windows and people," he said.

SUSAN GLAWE, 810 N. Drury Ln., told police a pellet or BB shattered the vent window on the passenger side of her car earlier this week as she was driving along Euclid Avenue near Waterman Avenue.

A second Arlington Heights woman, Lisa Kaskie, 226 S. Kennicott Dr., said the passenger window in her car was hit by a pellet Monday night on Euclid near Forrest Avenue.

In both cases, police checked the area, but failed to find the gun-toting youth.

The 9-year-old boy told police he was shot by an unidentified youth late Sunday afternoon while shooting in a field south of Dundee Road just east of Betty Lane in unincorporated Cook County. The boy was treated and released at Northwest Community Hospital.

4 convicted in Watergate coverup

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal court jury Wednesday convicted former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, Nixon White House aide H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman, and campaign lawyer Robert C. Mardian for conspiracy in the cover-up of the Watergate scandal.

After a three-month trial and exactly 15 hours of secret deliberations, the jury returned a guilty verdict against four of former President Richard M. Nixon's most trusted aides in the nation's greatest political scandal.

A fifth defendant, attorney Kenneth W. Parkinson, was acquitted.

U.S. DISTRICT Judge John J. Sirica released Mitchell, Haldeman, Ehrlichman and Mardian on personal bond pending a pre-sentencing report by probation officers.

The four stood silently as the jury filed into Sirica's courtroom at 3 p.m. CST on a quiet New Year's Day in Washington and jury foreman John A. Hoffar, a retired U.S. Park Police sergeant and registered Republican, handed over a thick brown envelope.

The court clerk asked if the jurors had reached a verdict. "Yes, they have," Hoffar responded.

The defendants showed no emotion as the verdicts were read before the hushed courtroom. Mitchell turned and whispered something to his lawyers as the clerk intoned "guilty... guilty... guilty... guilty... guilty."

LATER, MITCHELL said he would immediately file an appeal, for which he said he had "fifty" grounds to sustain his claim of innocence.

Among the Haldeman family, only Susan Haldeman, a law student who had remained seated close to her father throughout the trial, lost her composure. She burst into tears as she left the courtroom.

sistant attorney general under Mitchell, sat alone at the defense table with his head buried in his hands. He finally left, totally distraught, in his wife's arms.

"I feel great — a new lease on life," exclaimed Parkinson, who had been indicted for conspiracy and obstruction of justice. He formerly was a lawyer for the Committee for Re-Election of the President in 1972.

MITCHELL, WHO had resigned as Nixon's campaign manager on June 30, 1972, two weeks after the fateful break-in at Democratic national headquarters at the Watergate, was convicted of obstruction of justice, conspiracy and three counts of lying to a federal grand jury and the Senate Watergate Committee.

Mitchell and the other three were convicted of conspiracy in the cover-up of the scandal, and all but Mardian also were found guilty of obstruction of justice.

Haldeman, former Nixon White House chief of staff, also was convicted of five counts of lying to the Watergate Committee. Ehrlichman, former White House domestic affairs adviser, also was convicted on two counts of lying to the Watergate grand jury.

There was no immediate reaction from San Clemente, Calif., where Nixon — who resigned the presidency in disgrace on Aug. 9 — was recuperating in seclusion from a major illness that brought him to the brink of death after he left the White House.

THE JURORS, sequestered for three months, had not been told of Nixon's illness.

Both Haldeman and Ehrlichman resigned from Nixon's staff on April 30, 1973, as the Watergate revelations began to engulf the White House. Nixon accepted their resignations with regret, calling them "two of the greatest public servants" he had ever known.

All the former Nixon aides who were convicted could be sentenced to lengthy prison terms under the maximum penalties prescribed for their offenses.

For instance, Mitchell, Haldeman and Ehrlichman each could be sentenced to 10 years in prison and $15,000 in fines as the maximum penalty for conspiracy and obstruction of justice.

Of the four, only Mitchell seemed relaxed.

"Do I have any reaction?" he said, puffing on his pipe as he repeated a reporter's question. "Can't you guess?"

Then he quipped he might "go to the

60% decline in building fees reported

The slumping state of the construction industry has led to a drop of almost 60 per cent in building permit fees in Hoffman Estates.

Figures on building permit fees collected through November show only $64,500 in the village coffers compared to $148,700 which the village had expected for the same period. The figure is about 57 per cent below the village's estimates.

A total $200,000 has been estimated in the building permit revenue for fiscal 1974, budget figures show. The total accounts for about 11 per cent of the village's estimated $1,808,125 total income for the fiscal year which ends April 30.

"THEY'RE DOWN, DOWN, down," Village Mgr. George Longmeyer said of the fees. He blamed the inflationary economy and lengthy strike by cement truck drivers last summer as chief factors behind the decline.

Rising costs for goods, services and wages have had a crippling effect on the building trade industry nationally.

"We were looking at residential development," Longmeyer said of the village's building prospects for 1974. He said progress on a number of residential projects suffered this year, in turn reducing the number of building permits sought.

"Westbury should have been much farther along," he said. "Partridge Hill should have been much farther along." Westbury, the 407-acre, 4,000-unit project planned in the north section of the village, has only begun its model home construction, with models expected to open next month.

PARTRIDGE HILL, a townhouse development on 33 acres south of Bode Road near Barrington Road, also completed model construction.

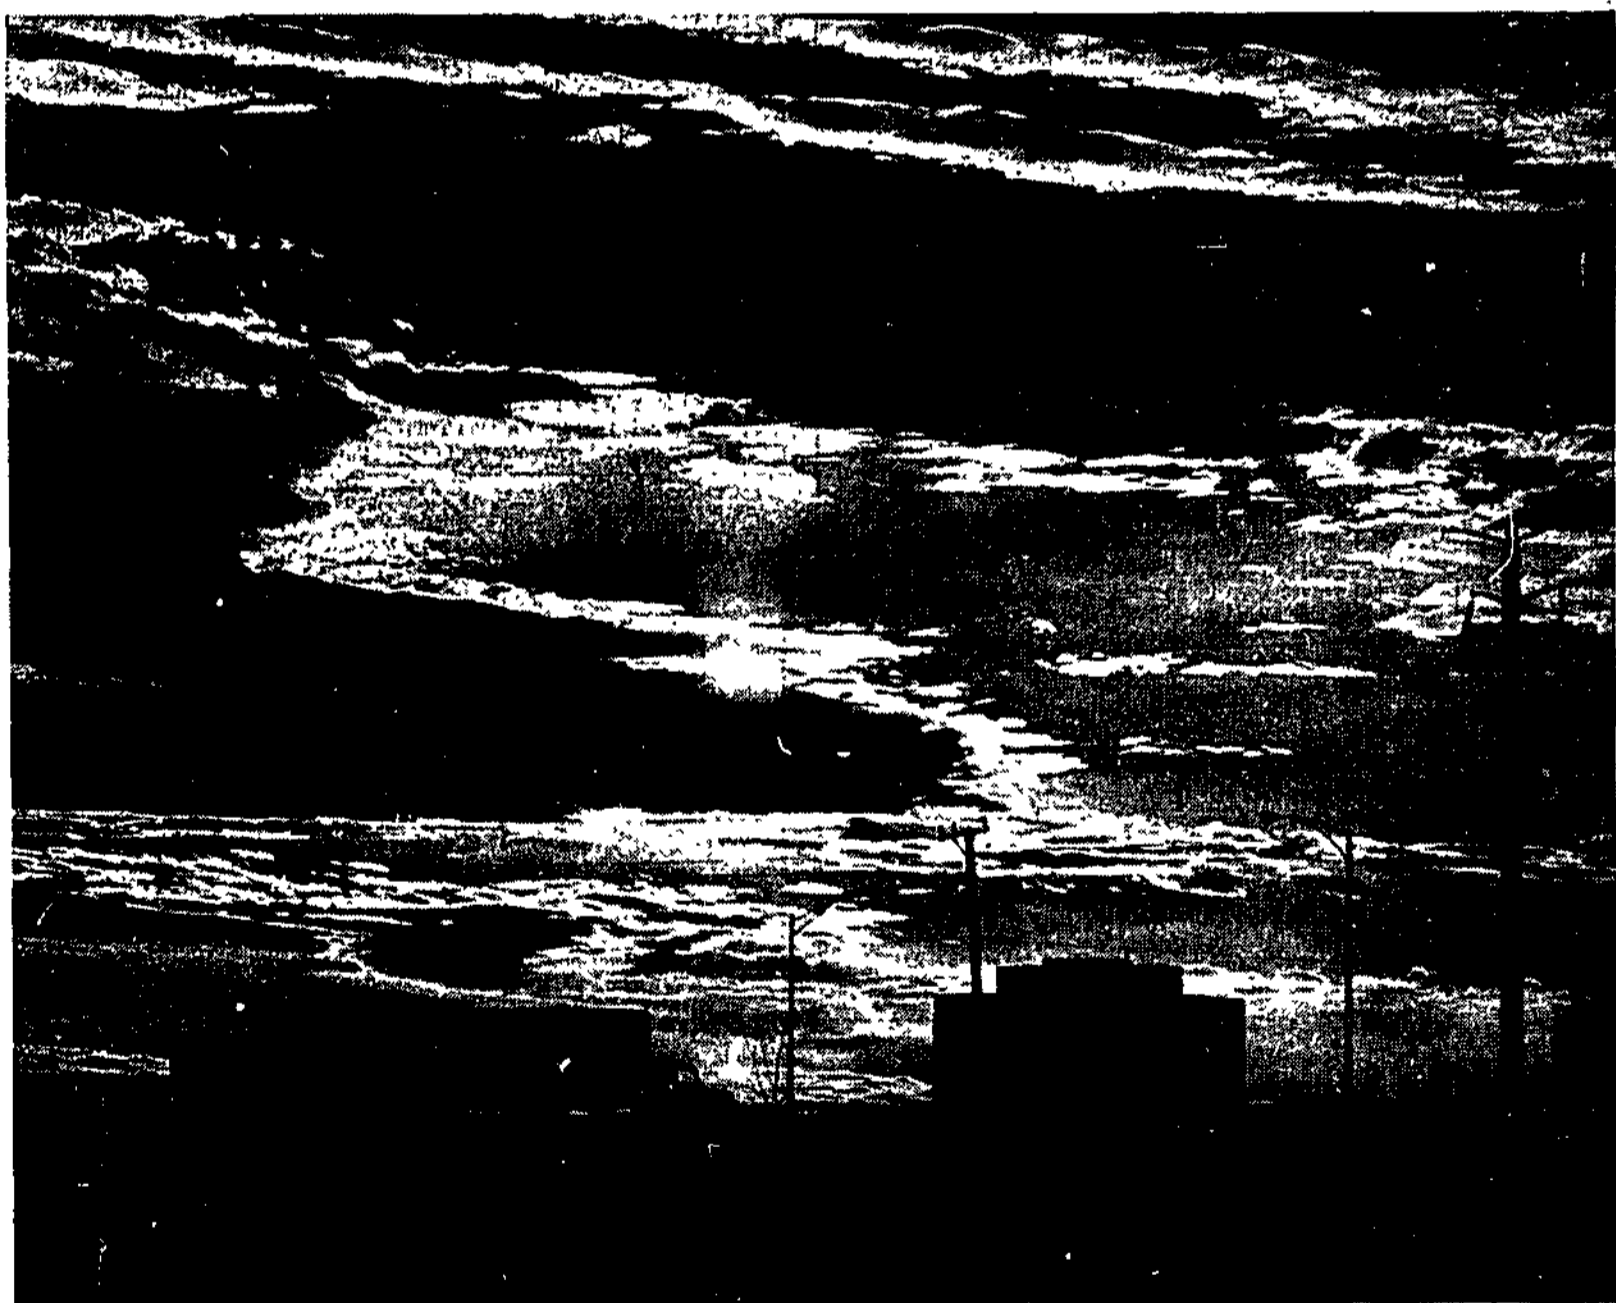

Longmeyer said other construction, including further development in the Barrington Square complex, Moon Lake Village complex and of the Muldcon Inc. property lying between the Northwest Tollway, Higgins Road, Barrington Square and the Highlands subdivision, had also been anticipated.

Longmeyer said figures for the first nine months of the year showed only $50,800 collected in building permit fees. For the month of September alone, only $5,200 was taken in, substantially below the $30,500 which had been estimated in budget predictions.

Funds derived from building fee revenue in part go into the village's general fund, and declining funds necessitate cutting corners on village expenses, Longmeyer added.

"When revenue goes down, we have to

More than authorized 5%

State charges added to utilities tax

by TONI GINETTI

A municipal tax on utilities that Hoffman Estates residents will begin paying this month will cost somewhat more than the 5 per cent authorized by the village.

The tax, which is to be collected for two years to offset the deficit in the village fire department budget, will collect for the village 5 cents on every dollar charged to residents on telephone, natural gas and electric bills. Officials originally estimated that the new tax will cost the average resident between $25 and $50 per year.

But the cost to customers will be higher because of collection charges and some additional state levies that are applied when municipalities institute the tax.

The charge on telephone bills will be about 8 per cent a telephone company spokesman said and about 6 per cent on gas bills, according to estimations.

THE FIRST TIME residents will see the tax will likely be on telephone bills which will be mailed Jan. 9. The tax will amount to about 8 per cent on phone bills because of several charges which the state adds when a municipal tax is adopted.

"It would seem it would be in that ballpark," Village Mgr. George Longmeyer said of the 8 per cent charge. "It gets really complicated with the phone company because there is a message tax involved."

Bell spokesman Howard Hammer said additional charges on the 5 per cent phone tax include a percentage to Bell for collecting and administering the tax, a percentage to the state for a message tax which is charged when a municipality institutes its own tax, and an additional percentage for the message tax when the municipal tax is higher than 3 per cent.

Longmeyer said that after discussing the state messenger tax Tuesday with Village Pres. Virginia Hayter they questioned whether the state message tax can be fairly applied.

IT APPEARS that the state is taxing the resident because the village is taxing the resident. The state, however, is giving no service in return, he added. Longmeyer said his office will investigate the legitimacy of the tax.

He also said the additional charges on the utility service are not figured against the gross bill; they are figured against the tax levied by the village.

An example he said, is that a $10 phone bill would be taxed 50 cents by the vil-

INSTALLING NEW LIGHTS in the stairwells and tackling major cleaning projects kept the custodial staff busy at Forest View High School while students took a two-week winter vacation. It was all

work and little play not only for custodians but also for administrators, who waded through paperwork in preparation for the next school year.

Time to 'wash, wax, repair, replace'

School chiefs, custodians work while pupils vacation

by DOROTHY OLIVER

While you're up to your eyeballs in holiday partying, school custodians are up to their elbows in soapsuds and school administrators have had it "up to here" with paperwork.

The traditional two-week winter break, "salvation" for students, is just another couple of weeks of work for some of the people who staff area elementary and high schools.

For the custodial staff, it's a time to wash, wax, repair and replace. "We don't have that three-month summer vacation anymore to tear the whole building apart, clean it and get it back together again because of the length of summer school," said Gary Tjarks, assistant principal at Forest View High School.

WINTER VACATION is two weeks of catching up, tackling major projects — "lots of scrubbing and waxing, refinishing the gym floors, giving a general cleaning to major areas," Tjarks said.

"We save the big jobs for this time," he said. "Some of the areas in the school are used so much you can't get into them without being disruptive when the kids are here. Those are the same areas that need it the most."

Custodians are on duty 24 hours a day at Forest View but still find it hard to keep up with daily cleaning, much less major projects. "We have so much glass in this building we just can't keep it clean," Tjarks said. "I could put one man on it full time and he still wouldn't get it all done."

During vacation, Forest View is getting all new lights in the stairwell, a sink for the band room and the heater in the dishwasher is being rebuilt.

Some of the cars in the near empty parking lots in front of schools belong to administrators — principals, assistant principals, superintendents and other staffers.

LEO HUNDT, a Forest View assistant principal, said he and many others in charge of instructional services, are wading through paper trying to plan scheduling and registration for next fall. "It would be simple if we just offered English 1, 2, 3 and 4. But we offer so much to the students it is very complex," he said.

Although the academic halls are relatively quiet, some parts of the schools are noisier than ever. Girls' and boys' athletic teams fill the gymnasium, some choral and band directors bring the kids back early for practice and several high schools are in the midst of play rehearsals.

Still, it is peaceful while the students are gone. "Every so often one of the little neighborhood kids comes in to take a look around," Tjarks said. "It's kind of nice having someone want to come here who doesn't have to. But they get into so many things we have to hustle them out."

"We tell them to come back when they're high school age."

Roselle man, 36, charged with posing as cop

A Roselle man was charged with impersonating a police officer early Tuesday after he summoned Schaumburg police to the Schaumburg Green apartment complex on Wise Road west of Roselle Road.

Daniel Frye, 36, of 23W445 Bryn Mawr, also was charged with unlawful use of a weapon and possession of a firearm without a firearm owners identification card.

Police said they received a telephone call at about 3:15 a.m. from a man who identified himself as a Roselle policeman and requested assistance to inquire about the welfare of a woman living at 1220 Cambria Ln.

Two patrolmen met Frye in the parking lot, and he told police he was worried about a woman resident, police said. Frye denied that he was a policeman, and patrolmen checked the apartment in question, but no one was home, authorities said.

Police said they found a pair of handcuffs on Frye's belt and a .38-cal. revolver under the front seat of his car.

Frye was released after posting $1,000 bond pending an appearance Jan. 29 in the Schaumburg branch of Circuit Court.

Building-permit fees decline almost 60%

(Continued from Page 1) control expenses," he said. He predicted however, that the fees could recover before the fiscal year ends, depending upon the state of the economy next spring.

"WE COULD EASILY pick up a substantial portion of it next spring," he said. "It's possible by May 1 we would be only 10 or 15 per cent down instead of 60 per cent. We'll know more by next spring. It depends on the money situation next year."

He said construction in the Westbury area and other residential developments is expected to increase next year and could therefore hike the building permit fee fund. Construction on a planned K Mart shopping center near Gannon Drive between Higgins and Golf roads also could begin next year.

"It will pick up next spring (when the building season begins)," Longmeyer said, "but by how much will depend on the state of the economy and the developers."

Gas bills, which also will carry the local tax, will charge customers a total 5.73 per cent, said Dick Leider, Northern Illinois Gas Co. district superintendent. The additional charge, as with the phone company, is authorized by the state to compensate the company for collecting and distributing the tax, Leider said.

Other federal and state taxes are not listed on gas bills, Leider said.

THE FIRST gas customers to see the tax will be those who receive bills at the end of the month, Leider said. First 1975 billings for village customers are scheduled to be sent Jan. 30, Feb. 3, Feb. 20 and March 3, he said.

The tax is expected to generate some $300,000 for the village. The funds are needed to pay for the fire department's deficit, which is expected to be about $325,000 by April 30, 1976.

In authorizing the tax, village officials said the levy would be the best method to

Some state charges added to utilities tax

(Continued from Page 1) lage. The percentages the utilities would charge for administration and the state would charge for the message tax are figured on the 50 cents, not the $10.

IN ARLINGTON HEIGHTS, where a 5 per cent utility tax is also levied, the total local tax on phone bills is 8 per cent although the village technically levied only a 5 per cent tax.

Hammer said the Hoffman Estates total rate probably will be about equal to the Arlington Heights rate.

The local tax will be charged against regular monthly service charges, additional units billed and any long-distance calls made within Illinois. Long distance calls outside Illinois will not be charged.

Additional federal and state taxes will not be included in figuring the local tax, Longmeyer said.

HAMMER SAID long distance calls within the state made in December will be taxed because their billing will appear this month.

A customer whose phone bill is $20 will likely pay about $1.60 in local taxes under the new levy.

Additional charges of 2 per cent in state tax and 7 per cent in federal tax will also continue to appear on phone bills. However, Hammer said the 7 per cent federal tax will be 1 per cent lower than the 1974 charge because the federal tax is being decreased yearly toward eventual elimination.

$330,896 collected—but no site for a cultural center

About $330,896 has been collected during the past seven years for a cultural center in Schaumburg.

The location of the center has not yet been determined, but it appears likely the center will be included in the proposed $250 million "metro center" on Golf Road at Ill. Rte. 53, north of the Woodfield Shopping Center.

Village officials originally planned to build the center on land adjoining the civic center on Schaumburg Road. The $1.1 million civic center was completed early last year but the cultural center has taken a back seat in recent years and has been discussed as "phase two" of construction planned on the site.

The question of changing the cultural center site came up in August when Woodfield 76 developers asked the village to consider building the facility in their 104-acre "metro center," Woodfield 76, for which developers are now asking annexation and

"metro district" zoning, would be completed over the next 20 years as a residential, commercial and recreational complex.

The $330,896 raised for the cultural center is from $100 per unit "voluntary" donations from developers of apartments, condominium apartments and townhouses as a condition of zoning.

WHEN THE FUND was established in 1968, Village Pres. Robert O. Atcher predicted the village could "in short order" collect about $1 million if apartment plans then under consideration materialized. The funds are being kept in interest-bearing accounts at the LaSalle National Bank and Roselle State Bank.

Principals in the Woodfield 76 development team have promised Schaumburg a site in the complex but have not specified it would be vacant land, raising the possibility of a cultural center in a high-rise building in the "metro center."

Marshall Bennett, of Bennett and Kahnweiler Associates, Chicago real estate brokers, the Pritzker family, owners of the Hyatt hotel chain, and Union Oil Co. of California are developers of the planned "metro center."

JACK PRITZKER, a member of the prominent family, has served as chairman of Schaumburg's cultural center commission since 1969, though the commission has not held a public meeting since late 1971.

Pritzker, Bennett and Lambert are also affiliated with other land holdings in Schaumburg, including Schaumburg-Centex Industrial Park.

Schaumburg officials have not given their final approval of either annexation or zoning for Woodfield 76. A public hearing on the annexation petition will be Jan. 21 at 8 p.m. at Civic Center.

Zoning board members voted several months ago to recommend approval of "planned metro district" zoning for the property.

Village takes over services

Firemen's union hopeful of recognition

by STIRLING MORITA

Hope is running high among Hoffman Estates firefighters that their union may finally win recognition now that the village officially has assumed control of fire services in the community.

Members of Local 2061, International Assn. of Firefighters, AFL-CIO, have, for about two years, sought recognition of the union from the board of trustees of the Hoffman Estates Fire Protection District, but were rebuffed. Fire services were transferred Monday from the fire district to the village in a six-minute Circuit Court hearing after two years of study and planning.

"The optimism is rather high," said Richard Cordova, Local 2061 president, adding that the village has given recognition to the other employees' unions. "That was the only way for the department to go, with the village."

He added that the union pushed hard for a village department because of the village's attitude toward unions appeared friendlier than the fire district's.

VILLAGE PRES. Virginia Hayter declined comment on whether the board will give recognition to the local. But when it was noted that the police union, Fraternal Order of Police, conducts wage negotiations with village officials, she replied, "You could judge us on our past history."

Cordova said the union will meet Thursday in a policy committee meeting to determine what the firefighters status is as far as the village is concerned and how to present the union to village officials.

"We will definitely ask to meet with the village trustees," Cordova said. "At the present, we're just looking for recognition and understanding between the two of us."

He explained that when union members talked to village officials before, the officials were noncommittal in their comments about the union because the firefighters were not officially under the authority of the municipality.

CORDOVA SAID the firefighters also will discuss the village rules and regulations pertaining to them.

The local union was formed in mid-1971, but fire district trustees never formally acknowledged its existence. Union representatives and trustees huddled several times in the past, but the union matter was never resolved.

At several district meetings, union spokesmen requested to be heard and present petitions for union recognition. The trustees accepted the petitions at a meeting in August 1973 and said they would have to study the issue further. They responded with "no comment" last February when firefighters inquired about the status of the petitions.

The fire district and the union were locked in controversy before. In 1972, the fire district lost a lawsuit involving the dismissal of a firefighter who was a union member. Firefighter David Carlson was returned to his job after a Circuit Court judge ruled Carlson was fired because of his union activities.

ROOST nominating petitions filed for 3

Nominating petitions for the Republican Organization of Schaumburg Township (ROOST) slate of candidates for the Hoffman Estates Village Board have been filed.

The petitions were filed with the village clerk Saturday, the deadline for organized parties to submit the papers necessary to qualify for staling on the April 15 village ballot.

The candidates are incumbent Trustee William Cowin, 274 Bode Rd.; plan commission member William Palmer, 333 Baxter Ln.; and Jeanne M. Pavoy, 124 Firestone Dr. They were slated by a party convention Dec. 15.

The township Democratic organization will not back a slate in the election.

Only one other candidate, William Doolley, 104 Gentry Ct., has taken out a petition to run as an independent. Petitions for independent candidates may be filed from Jan. 6 to Feb. 10.

SCOPP, SUP pick up petitions

Representatives of Schaumburg Citizens for Planned Progress and Schaumburg United Party have obtained nominating petitions for the April village election, a spokesman for Schaumburg Clerk Sandy Carsello has said.

SCOPP petitions were picked up by Mary Lyons, 130 Hickory Ln., the spokesman said. Mrs. Lyons is a member of the eight-person SCOPP steering committee. No information concerning the identity of the SUP member who took out party nominating petitions was available from the clerk's office.

Local parties and independent candidates must file nominating petitions with the village clerk between Jan. 6 and Feb. 10 to qualify for placement on the April 15 ballot.

4 convicted in Watergate coverup

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal court jury Wednesday convicted former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, Nixon White House aides H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman, and campaign lawyer Robert C. Mardian for conspiracy in the cover-up of the Watergate scandal.

After a three-month trial and exactly 15 hours of secret deliberations, the jury returned a guilty verdict against four of former President Richard M. Nixon's most trusted aides in the nation's greatest political scandal.

A fifth defendant, attorney Kenneth W. Parkinson, was acquitted.

U.S. DISTRICT Judge John J. Sirica released Mitchell, Haldeman, Ehrlichman and Mardian on personal bond pending a pre-sentencing report by probation officers.

The four stood silently as the jury filed into Sirica's courtroom at 3 p.m. CST on a quiet New Year's Day in Washington and jury foreman John A. Hoffer, a retired U.S. Park Police sergeant and registered Republican, handed over a thick brown envelope.

The court clerk asked if the jurors had reached a verdict. "Yes, they have," Hoffer responded.

The defendants showed no emotion as the verdicts were read before the hushed courtroom. Mitchell turned and whispered something to his lawyers as the clerk intoned "guilty... guilty... guilty... guilty... guilty."

LATER, MITCHELL said he would immediately file an appeal, for which he said he had "fifty" grounds to sustain his claim of innocence.

Among the Haldeman family, only Susan Haldeman, a law student who had remained seated close to her father throughout the trial, lost her composure. She burst into tears as she left the courtroom.

sistant attorney general under Mitchell, sat alone at the defense table with his head buried in his hands. He finally left, totally distraught, in his wife's arms.

"I feel great — a new lease on life," exclaimed Parkinson, who had been indicted for conspiracy and obstruction of justice. He formerly was a lawyer for the Committee for Re-Election of the President in 1972.

MITCHELL, WHO had resigned as Nixon's campaign manager on June 30, 1972, two weeks after the fateful break-in at Democratic national headquarters at the Watergate, was convicted of obstruction of justice, conspiracy and three counts of lying to a federal grand jury and the Senate Watergate Committee.

Mitchell and the other three were convicted of conspiracy in the cover-up of the scandal, and all but Mardian also were found guilty of obstruction of justice.

Haldeman, former Nixon White House chief of staff, also was convicted of five counts of lying to the Watergate Committee. Ehrlichman, former White House domestic affairs adviser, also was convicted on two counts of lying to the Watergate grand jury.

There was no immediate reaction from San Clemente, Calif., where Nixon — who resigned the presidency in disgrace on Aug. 9 — was recuperating in seclusion from a major illness that brought him to the brink of death after he left the White House.

THE JURORS, sequestered for three months, had not been told of Nixon's illness.

Both Haldeman and Ehrlichman resigned from Nixon's staff on April 30, 1973, as the Watergate revelations began to engulf the White House. Nixon accepted their resignations with regret, calling them "two of the greatest public servants" he had ever known.

All the former Nixon aides who were convicted could be sentenced to lengthy prison terms under the maximum penalties prescribed for their offenses.

For instance, Mitchell, Haldeman and Ehrlichman each could be sentenced to 10 years in prison and $15,000 in fines as the maximum penalty for conspiracy and obstruction of justice.

Of the four, only Mitchell seemed relaxed.

"Do I have any reaction?" he said, puffing on his pipe as he repeated a reporter's question. "Can't you guess?"

Then he quipped he might "go to the

Inflation may outstrip city worker raises

Salary increases for Rolling Meadows employees in 1975 are not expected to keep pace with the increase in the cost of living.

City Mgr. James Watson said Tuesday the raises probably will come up for city council discussion soon after the U.S. Labor Dept. Bureau of Labor Statistics releases figures on the Consumer Price Index increase for 1974. The report should be out by mid-January, said Watson.

In the past, Rolling Meadows has increased employee salaries by a percentage equal or close to the annual hike in the index. "It usually comes out pretty close — within one or two percentage points," said Watson.

BUT RUNAWAY INFLATION during 1974 may make it impossible for the city to keep pace in employee wages.

"I'm sure there's going to have to be some sort of compromise percentage," said Watson, adding he is certain "the cost of living index has gone up more than 10 per cent."

Although the report for the year ending Tuesday has not been prepared yet, the bureau said a 12.1 per cent national increase was listed for the 12 months ending Nov. 30.

The cost of living increase recorded by the bureau during 1973 was 8.8 per cent for the nation, and 8.5 per cent for Chicago. Rolling Meadows employees received across-the-board pay raises of 8 per cent when the current fiscal year started May 1, 1974. They also receive "step" increases on the anniversary dates of their employment. These generally average about five per cent, said treasurer Robert B. Cole.

COLE PREDICTED that the city will continue to use "step" increases to recognize employees for length of service, but he also sounded a warning that public monies may not be able to meet inflationary trends.

"The real tough nut is going to be how to deal with the cost of living," Cole said.

Watson now is preparing a rough draft of the city budget for the 1975-76 fiscal year, which will start in May. Salaries are among the largest expenditures the city makes each year, and salary increases will be a primary factor in determining how much money will be available for capital expenditures, equipment purchases, supplies and other outlays.

Student from Brazil needs 'home' here

A home for a 16-year-old student from Brazil is needed, said James Dodds, chairman of the Youth Exchange program of the Arlington Heights Rotary Club.

The club expects to have the opportunity to send two local students abroad next year, in exchange for providing a home for one student, starting in early January.

Parents interested in learning details are asked to contact Dodds at 259-7000 during the business day.

Another day ends: the sun sets over the Northwest Tollway near Woodfield Plaza in Schaumburg.

The youth class, for fourth through 12th grades, will meet Saturdays at a cost of $43 for equipment and transportation from the sports complex.

Women can learn to ski during two different daytime sessions Wednesdays. The $40 fee includes equipment and ski lift ticket. Couples can take to the slopes Friday nights at three different times at a cost of $80 for equipment and ski lift tickets.

INSTALLING NEW LIGHTS in the stairwells and tackling major cleaning projects kept the custodial staff busy at Forest View High School while students took a two-week winter vacation. It was all work and little play not only for custodians but also for administrators, who waded through paperwork in preparation for the next school year.

Time to 'wash, wax, repair, replace'

School chiefs, custodians work while pupils vacation

by DOROTHY OLIVER

While you're up to your eyebrows in holiday partying, school custodians are up to their elbows in soapsuds and school administrators have had it "up to here" with paperwork.

The traditional two-week winter break, "salvation" for students, is just another couple of weeks of work for some of the people who staff area elementary and high schools.

For the custodial staff, it's a time to wash, wax, repair and replace. "We don't have that three-month summer vacation anymore to tear the whole building apart, clean it and get it back together again because of the length of summer school," said Gary Tjarks, assistant principal at Forest View High School.

WINTER VACATION is two weeks of catching up, tackling major projects — "lots of scrubbing and waxing, refinishing the gym floors, giving a general cleaning to major areas," Tjarks said.

"We save the big jobs for this time," he said. "Some of the areas in the school are used so much you can't get into them without being disruptive when the kids are here. Those are the same areas that need it the most."

Custodians are on duty 24 hours a day at Forest View but still find it hard to keep up with daily cleaning, much less major projects. "We have so much glass in this building we just can't keep it clean," Tjarks said. "I could put one man on it full time and he still wouldn't get it all done."

During vacation, Forest View is getting all new lights in the stairwell, a sink for the band room and the heater in the dishwasher is being rebuilt.

Some of the cars in the near empty parking lots in front of schools belong to administrators — principals, assistant principals, superintendents and other staffers.

LEO HUNDT, a Forest View assistant principal, said he and many others in charge of instructional services, are wading through paper trying to plan scheduling and registration for next fall. "It would be simple if we just offered English 1, 2, 3 and 4. But we offer so much to the students it is very complex," he said.

Although the academic halls are relatively quiet, some parts of the schools are noisier than ever. Girls' and boys' athletic teams fill the gymnasium, some choral and band directors bring the kids back early for practice and several high schools are in the midst of play rehearsals.

Still, it is peaceful while the students are gone. "Every so often one of the little neighborhood kids comes in to take a look around," Tjarks said. "It's kind of nice having someone want to come here who doesn't have to. But they get into so many things we have to hustle them out."

"We tell them to come back when they're high school age."

Boy, 9, shot twice

Motorists report windows hit by BBs

Arlington Heights police blame parents who gave Christmas BB guns to their children for a rash of incidents involving youngsters shooting air rifles at passing cars, and at each other.

At least two Arlington Heights motorists have reported their car windows shot out this week, police said. In both cases the cars were traveling along Euclid Avenue.

A 9-year-old Arlington Heights boy was shot once in the head and again in the shoulder by another youth while the two were shooting air rifles in a field south of Dundee Road.

Firing a BB or pellet gun in the village is as illegal as the discharge of any other cartridge-loading firearm, said Arlington Heights Police Capt. Jack Aldrich. The only exceptions are on police-approved indoor target ranges.

"If they use them out of doors, they're asking for trouble. And if the parents give them out as Christmas presents, then they're asking for trouble," Aldrich said.

"If a kid gets a BB gun he's going to shoot it. And what's he going to shoot it at? Cars, birds, windows and people," he said.

SUSAN GLAWE, 810 N. Drury Ln., told police a pellet or BB shattered the vent window on the passenger side of her car earlier this week as she was driving along Euclid Avenue near Waterman Avenue.

A second Arlington Heights woman, Lisa Kaskie, 228 S. Kennicott Dr., said the passenger window in her car was hit by a pellet Monday night on Euclid near Forrest Avenue.

In both cases, police checked the area, but failed to find the gun-toting youth.

The 9-year-old boy told police he was shot by an unidentified youth late Sunday afternoon while shooting in a field south of Dundee Road just east of Betty Lane in unincorporated Cook County. The boy was treated and released at Northwest Community Hospital.

2 charged with taking tape decks

Two Palatine men caught stealing tape decks from cars in the Rolling Meadows Theater parking lots, 3295 Kirchoff Rd., Tuesday have been charged with burglary.

Gary P. Landt, 20, of 730 N. Hicks Rd., Palatine, and Raymond C. Mroczkowski, 18, of Rural Box 260, Rand Rd., Palatine, were charged by Rolling Meadows Patrolman Terry Rudolph with three counts each of thefts from automobiles. One count of burglarizing autos also was placed against each man by Mount Prospect police, and charges also were pending with the Palatine Police Dept., Rolling Meadows Chief Lewis R. Case said.

Police said radios, tape players, stereo phonograph speakers and more than 80 tape recordings were found in the auto Landt and Mroczkowski were using. The Mount Prospect thefts allegedly occurred in the Thunderbird Bowl parking lot on Rand Road, and the lot of the Randhurst Cinema, Rand and Elmhurst roads.

Although Mount Prospect police identified items believed taken from three separate autos, they charged the pair only in one case, on advice from an assistant Cook County state's attorney. Palatine police also identified items believed taken from autos in a movie theater lot there and plan to file charges against the men today.

Landt and Mroczkowski are to answer the Mount Prospect charges Jan. 8 in Mount Prospect branch of Circuit Court, and the Rolling Meadows charges Jan. 28 in Arlington Heights.

The Buehler YMCA was founded in 1968 and opened the new facilities in Palatine in October 1973.

Fire causes $30,000 damage

Trust fund to help homeless family

Christmas may have been dismal but the new year is looking brighter for the Arthur Frey family whose home was gutted by fire Dec. 20.

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59, which employs Catherine Frey as a teacher at Devonshire School, Des Plaines, has set up a trust fund for the family, which lost most of its possessions when an early afternoon fire struck its Wheeling home.

Arthur Perry, assistant superintendent in Dist. 59, said, "Although there is insurance to partially cover the loss there has been a considerable burden placed on the family — especially considering the time of year it occurred."

"In response to this situation we are establishing a benefit fund at the Bank of Elk Grove where people who wish to assist the family may make a contribution directly through the bank," he said.

THE FIRE started while Mrs. Frey and her daughter Mary were at Devonshire for the last day of school before winter vacation.

The fire gutted the kitchen and living room of the home, 223 Twilight Ln., and almost reached the bedrooms by the time firefighters arrived. Damage was estimated at $30,000 with heavy smoke and heat damage to the unburned portions of the house.

Wheeling Fire Chief Bernie Koeppen said the fire started in a stove. Frey is a recruiting officer for the Navy in the Palatine recruiting office.

The family is staying with relatives in Des Plaines.

Board proposed to set rules

Mikva backed in airport noise fight

U.S. Rep.-elect Abner J. Mikva, D-10th, has begun lining up support for a proposal to give local communities some say in regulations designed to limit aircraft noise near major airports.

Mikva said he has talked with Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrel and Park Ridge Mayor Martin Butler about a proposal to create a board composed of local representatives to set regulations for aircraft noise.

He said he met with U.S. Rep.-elect Henry Hyde, R-6th, to discuss the proposal. Hyde's west suburban district also borders O'Hare Airport.

MIKVA SAID he intends to meet with other local officials in the near future and plans to attempt to enlist bipartisan support from other congressmen from throughout the country whose districts are affected by large airports.

Under Mikva's plan an airport noise-pollution-control board would be created for every airport whenever 60 per cent of the persons living in the airport's noise impact area are not residents of the city which owns the airport.

"Chicago is far enough away from O'Hare to escape the worst of the noise," Mikva said. He noted that Congress should act on this issue because most airports receive federal funds.

THE PROPOSAL would allow the local board to set the regulations and any challenges to the rules would have to go before the Federal Aviation Administration or the Civil Aeronautics Board and could only be overruled if the rule had an adverse affect of safety or was commercially impractical.

Mikva said if his legislative proposal is approved many regulations and plans now being recommended by aircraft noise abatement groups could be developed.

He suggested regulations might be developed to govern landing procedures, runway use, and curfews on airport operations similar to those in effect at Washington National Airport by the local boards.

WHEELING FIREMEN clean up after a fire gutted the home of the Arthur Frey family Dec. 20. A trust fund has been set up for the family by Elk Grove Township Dist. 59, which employs Mrs. Frey as a teacher.

Evelyn Stenzel joins race for park board seat

Evelyn Stenzel will seek election to the Salt Creek Park District board of commissioners in the April 1 election.

Miss Stenzel, 703 S. Warren, Palatine, is the daughter of Johannes Stenzel, one of the founders of the Salt Creek Park District and the board's first president. She is director of the Dawn Gate School, a Montessori school in Palatine and member of the Palatine Zoning Board of Appeals.

Miss Stenzel, who has lived in the park district since its organization, is running for one of the two board openings because she would like to see additional representation from the Arlington Crest subdivision in the district, she said. The board's present treasurer, Walter Pappeler, is from Arlington Crest.

"I feel that Arlington Crest should be represented. With the district's natural geography, Arlington Crest needs another representative on the park board," said Miss Stenzel, president of the Arlington Crest Civic Assn.

MISS STENZEL said she is especially interested in seeing the park district's master plan followed. The first draft of the master plan, detailing the district's needs for the next five years, has been approved by the board and is now being reviewed by the Northeastern Illinois Plan Commission.

Also running for the park board is Patrick Grealish, 31, the present vice president. Grealish, a project coordinator for Diesel Construction Co., Chicago, has been a board member for six years. He also has served as president and treasurer of the board.

Grealish is the only incumbent up for election in April. The other vacancy was created by the resignation of Robert Marconi in August. Marconi resigned after moving from the district. Board members chose not to fill his seat by appointment because of the April election.

Anyone wishing to run for one of the two six-year terms may pick up petitions at the Salt Creek Park District office, 530 S. Williams, Palatine. They must be filed with no less than 25 signatures between Jan. 13 and Jan. 27 at the park office.

4 convicted in Watergate coverup

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal court jury Wednesday convicted former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, Nixon White House aides H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman, and campaign lawyer Robert C. Mardian for conspiracy in the cover-up of the Watergate scandal.

After a three-month trial and exactly 15 hours of secret deliberations, the jury returned a guilty verdict against four of former President Richard M. Nixon's most trusted aides in the nation's greatest political scandal.

A fifth defendant, attorney Kenneth W. Parkinson, was acquitted.

U.S. DISTRICT Judge John J. Sirica released Mitchell, Haldeman, Ehrlichman and Mardian on personal bond pending a pre-sentencing report by probation officers.

The four stood silently as the jury filed into Sirica's courtroom at 3 p.m. CST on a quiet New Year's Day in Washington and jury foreman John A. Hoffar, a retired U.S. Park Police sergeant and registered Republican, handed over a thick brown envelope.

The court clerk asked if the jurors had reached a verdict. "Yes, they have," Hoffar responded.

The defendants showed no emotion as the verdicts were read before the hushed courtroom. Mitchell turned and whispered something to his lawyers as the clerk intoned "guilty . . . guilty . . . guilty . . . guilty . . . guilty."

LATER, MITCHELL said he would immediately file an appeal, for which he said he had "fifty" grounds to sustain his claim of innocence.

Among the Haldeman family, only Susan Haldeman, a law student who had remained seated close to her father throughout the trial, lost her composure. She burst into tears as she left the courtroom.

sistant attorney general under Mitchell, sat alone at the defense table with his head buried in his hands. He finally left, totally distraught, in his wife's arms.

"I feel great — a new lease on life," exclaimed Parkinson, who had been indicted for conspiracy and obstruction of justice. He formerly was a lawyer for the Committee for Re-Election of the President in 1972.

MITCHELL, WHO had resigned as Nixon's campaign manager on June 30, 1972, two weeks after the fateful break-in at Democratic national headquarters at the Watergate, was convicted of obstruction of justice, conspiracy and three counts of lying to a federal grand jury and the Senate Watergate Committee.

Mitchell and the other three were convicted of conspiracy in the cover-up of the scandal, and all but Mardian also were found guilty of obstruction of justice.

Haldeman, former Nixon White House chief of staff, also was convicted of five counts of lying to the Watergate Committee. Ehrlichman, former White House domestic affairs adviser, also was convicted on two counts of lying to the Watergate grand jury.

There was no immediate reaction from San Clemente, Calif., where Nixon — who resigned the presidency in disgrace on Aug. 9 — was recuperating in seclusion from a major illness that brought him to the brink of death after he left the White House.

THE JURORS, sequestered for three months, had not been told of Nixon's illness.

Both Haldeman and Ehrlichman resigned from Nixon's staff on April 30, 1973, as the Watergate revelations began to engulf the White House. Nixon accepted their resignations with regret, calling them "two of the greatest public servants" he had ever known.

All the former Nixon aides who were convicted could be sentenced to lengthy prison terms under the maximum penalties prescribed for their offenses.

For instance, Mitchell, Haldeman and Ehrlichman each could be sentenced to 10 years in prison and $15,000 in fines as the maximum penalty for conspiracy and obstruction of justice.

Of the four, only Mitchell seemed relaxed.

"Do I have any reaction?" he said, puffing on his pipe as he repeated a reporter's question. "Can't you guess?"

Then he quipped he might "go to the

Park districts complete plan for merger

The merger of the Palatine Park District and Palatine Rural Park District has been finalized, forming a district which will serve 43,000 residents with more than 355 acres of park land.

Commissioners of the Palatine Park District unanimously approved the merger Monday. Rural park board commissioners approved the merger last week.

The surviving Palatine Park District will conduct its first meeting as a merged district Jan. 14 at 7:30 p.m. at the Palatine Hills Golf Course. James Jones, president of the combined park board, said the new board will consider the business of both park districts "without hesitation."

The combined park board will oversee the construction of the first rural park development at Home Avenue and Oak Street which will include a swimming pool, four lighted tennis courts, an outdoor ice rink and a baseball diamond.

THE COMBINED park board will have five commissioners, including one representing the rural park district. Thomas Patten, president of the rural park board, will serve on the merged park board until 1977. Jones and Paul W. Jensen will serve on the new board until 1979. Robert Dellamaria will serve until 1977. Walden Degner will serve on the new board until April when his seat will be up for election.

Degner has indicated he will seek re-election to the combined board in April for a six-year term. Jones said he knows of no other candidates for the fifth seat on the new board.

Candidates for commissioners on the Palatine Park District can begin filing petitions Jan. 13 for the April 15 election. Petitions with a minimum of 25 signatures must be returned by Jan. 27.

Petitions for the merged Palatine Park District board are available at the park district administrative offices, 262 E. Palatine Rd. Petitions can be returned to the office Monday through Friday, from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Jan. 13-27.

DEGNER HAS SERVED on the Palatine Park Board for six years. Commissioners of the rural park district have expressed no interest in running for the fifth seat on the merged park board in April.

All of the rural park commissioners will serve on a special planning and development committee of the Palatine Park District that will recommend and oversee the combined board's use of the rural district's present funds to develop park and recreation facilities in the rural areas.

The special committee will be in attendance at each park board meeting "to insure clear and continued communications between members of both boards," Jones said.

365 acres with no design plan

Village OKs Plum Grove Hills annex

The 365-acre Plum Grove Hills development, southwest of Palatine, will be allowed to annex to the village with provisions for high density but no design plans.

The Palatine Village Board voted 5-2 Monday to direct the Palatine Plan Commission to consider a land-use concept for the property that would outline density and building heights but not require design plans.

Trustee Bryan P. Coughlin Jr. strongly objected to allowing the property to be annexed with only a land-use concept. Coughlin argued for requiring L. F. Draper and Associates, developers of the property, to submit a planned unit development proposal with their annexation petition. This would require the developer to outline density, building heights, parking, open space, landscaping, roads and provide architectural renderings.

"If we give up density now we aren't going to have any bargaining power (in considering future development plans for the 365 acres)," said Coughlin. He was joined by Trustee Fred H. Zajonc in opposing the annexation of the property with only a land-use concept.

TRUSTEE Robert J. Guss favored the land-use concept for annexation and later making the developer adhere to a proposed new planned unit development ordinance.

"I would hate to see it (the development) escape from the Village of Palatine and go elsewhere," said Guss, arguing that this would allow the village to gain control of the development of the property. He said residents of the development would use Palatine services regardless of the municipality in which they were located and Palatine should receive the benefits in tax dollars.

"You'll destroy the master plan by reacting to developers," said Coughlin. Coughlin said once the density had been approved in a land-use concept the village would have a difficult time rejecting any development plans that adhered to the approved density.

The plan commission has been holding hearings on the Plum Grove Hills development since September but recently requested more direction from the board on the type of plan it wanted.

THE LAND-USE concept now before the plan commission calls for construction of 1,874 housing units including single-family homes, apartments and townhouses, four commercial developments totaling 35 acres, a 10-acre school site and open space for development by the Palatine Park District.

INSTALLING NEW LIGHTS in the stairwells and tackling major cleaning projects kept the custodial staff busy at Forest View High School while students took a two-week winter vacation. It was all work and little play not only for custodians but also for administrators, who waded through paperwork in preparation for the next school year.

Time to 'wash, wax, repair, replace'

School chiefs, custodians work while pupils vacation

by DOROTHY OLIVER

While you're up to your eyebrows in holiday partying, school custodians are up to their elbows in soap and water and school administrators have had it "up to here" with paperwork.

The traditional two-week winter break, "salvation" for students, is just another couple of weeks of work for some of the people who staff area elementary and high schools.

For the custodial staff, it's a time to wash, wax, repair and replace. "We don't have that three-month summer vacation anymore to tear the whole building apart, clean it and get it back together again because of the length of summer school," said Gary Tjarks, assistant principal at Forest View High School.

WINTER VACATION is two weeks of catching up, tackling major projects — "lots of scrubbing and waxing, refinishing the gym floors, giving a general cleaning to major areas," Tjarks said.

"We save the big jobs for this time," he said. "Some of the areas in the school are used so much you can't get into them without being disruptive when the kids are here. Those are the same areas that need it the most."

Custodians are on duty 24 hours a day at Forest View but still find it hard to keep up with daily cleaning, much less major projects. "We have so much glass in this building we just can't keep it clean," Tjarks said. "I could put one man on it full time and he still wouldn't get it all done."

During vacation, Forest View is getting all new lights in the stairwell, a sink for the band room and the heater in the dishwasher is being rebuilt.

Some of the cars in the near empty parking lots in front of schools belong to administrators — principals, assistant principals, superintendents and other staffers.

LEO HUNDT, a Forest View assistant principal, said he and many others in charge of instructional services, are wading through paper trying to plan scheduling and registration for next fall. "It would be simple if we just offered English 1, 2, 3 and 4. But we offer so much to the students it is very complex," he said.

Although the academic halls are relatively quiet, some parts of the schools are noisier than ever. Girls' and boys' athletic teams fill the gymnasium, some choral and band directors bring the kids back early for practice and several high schools are in the midst of play rehearsals.

Still, it is peaceful while the students are gone. "Every so often one of the little neighborhood kids comes in to take a look around," Tjarks said. "It's kind of nice having someone want to come here who doesn't have to. But they get into so many things we have to hustle them out."

"We tell them to come back when they're high school age."

Boy, 9, shot twice

Motorists report windows hit by BBs

Arlington Heights police blame parents who gave Christmas BB guns to their children for a rash of incidents involving youngsters shooting air rifles at passing cars, and at each other.

At least two Arlington Heights motorists have reported their car windows shot out this week, police said. In both cases the cars were traveling along Euclid Avenue.

A 9-year-old Arlington Heights boy was shot once in the head and again in the shoulder by another youth while the two were shooting air rifles in a field south of Dundee Road.

Firing a BB or pellet gun in the village is as illegal as the discharge of any other cartridge-loading firearm, said Arlington Heights Police Capt. Jack Aldrich. The only exceptions are on police-approved indoor target ranges.

"If they use them out of doors, they're asking for trouble. And if the parents give them out as Christmas presents, then they're asking for trouble," Aldrich said.

"If a kid gets a BB gun he's going to shoot it. And what's he going to shoot it at? Cars, birds, windows and people," he said.

SUSAN GLAWE, 810 N. Drury Ln., told police a pellet or BB shattered the vent window on the passenger side of her car earlier this week as she was driving along Euclid Avenue near Waterman Avenue.

A second Arlington Heights woman, Lisa Kaskie, 236 S. Kennicott Dr., said the passenger window in her car was hit by a pellet Monday night on Euclid near Forrest Avenue.

In both cases, police checked the area, but failed to find the gun-toting youth.

The 9-year-old boy told police he was shot by an unidentified youth late Sunday afternoon while shooting in a field south of Dundee Road just east of Betty Lane in unincorporated Cook County. The boy was treated and released at Northwest Community Hospital.

2 charged with taking tape decks

Two Palatine men caught stealing tape decks from cars in the Rolling Meadows Theater parking lot, 3295 Kirchoff Rd., Tuesday have been charged with burglary.

Gary P. Landt, 20, of 730 N. Hicks Rd., Palatine, and Raymond C. Mroczkowski, 10, of Rural Box 260, Rand Rd., Palatine, were charged by Rolling Meadows Patrolman Terry Rudolph with three counts each of thefts from automobiles. One count of burglarizing autos also was placed against each man by Mount Prospect police, and charges also were pending with the Palatine Police Dept., Rolling Meadows Chief Lewis R. Case said.

Police said radios, tape players, stereo phonograph speakers and more than 80 tape recordings were found in the auto Landt and Mroczkowski were using. The Mount Prospect thefts allegedly occurred in the Thunderbird Bowl parking lot on Rand Road, and the lot of the Randhurst Cinema, Rand and Elmhurst roads.

Although Mount Prospect police identified items believed taken from three separate autos, they charged the pair only in one case, on advice from an assistant Cook County state's attorney. Palatine police also identified items believed taken from autos in a movie theater lot there and plan to file charges against the men today.

Landt and Mroczkowski are to answer the Mount Prospect charges Jan. 8 in Mount Prospect branch of Circuit Court, and the Rolling Meadows charges Jan. 28 in Arlington Heights.

Buehler Y to host open house Jan. 19

The Buehler YMCA in Palatine will host a variety of events Jan. 19 in conjunction with National YMCA week.

Area residents will be able to tour the Buehler YMCA facilities at Northwest Highway and Countryside Drive during an open house from 1 to 5 p.m.

Three events that will be free to the public between 1 and 5 p.m. are a master swim meet involving adults from Chicago area YMCAs, a major racquetball tournament and a youth gymnastics event.

The Buehler YMCA also has requested suburban churches to declare Jan. 19 as YMCA Sunday in their sermons, said Herman Hertog, executive director.

The Buehler YMCA was founded in 1933 and opened the new facilities in Palatine in October 1973.

Best is new pastor of Assembly of God

The Rev. Larry Best of Taylorville, Ill., has been appointed pastor of the Palatine First Assembly of God, 200 Home Ave., Palatine.

He will be installed in special services on Sunday at 10:30 a.m. at the church.

Best, his wife Becky, and their four children will live at 1015 N. Illinois Ave., Arlington Heights.

He obtained a bible degree from Central Bible College in Springfield and has served as the pastor of two other congregations in the past five years.

Village board wrapup*Law may settle confusion about addresses

The confusion about addresses on a 2½-mile stretch of Baldwin Road — or is it Northwest Highway — may be cleared up by the Palatine Village Board.

An ordinance officially changing the name of the stretch of road between Hicks and Quentin roads to Northwest Highway is being drawn up at the direction of the streets and traffic committee.

Persons on the north side of the road currently use a Baldwin Road address and those on the south side a Northwest Highway address. This has created several problems in deliveries.

The name of a one-half-mile stretch of the extension of Colfax Street between Quentin Road and Northwest Highway will also be changed. The stretch is now referred to as Old Northwest Highway but will be changed to Colfax Street.

Fireman age limit lowered

The age requirement for Palatine's volunteer firemen has been lowered from 21 to 19.

Village Atty. Bradley Glass has been directed by the board to research the legality of lowering the age requirement for full-time firemen from 21 to 19 under home rule powers. At the present time firemen must be 21 to qualify for the state pension plan.

Attorney fees increased

A $5 hike in attorney fees raising the hourly rate to $50 an hour has been approved by the village board.

In addition to the hourly rate, Village Atty. Bradley Glass of Littlejohn, Glass and McCarthy, receives an annual retainer of $750.

Mardi Gras to be 'wet'

St. Theresa's Mardi Gras won't be a dry affair this year.

The village board has approved the issuance of a two-day liquor license to the church and will waive the license fee. The Mardi Gras will be Feb. 7 and 8 in the St. Theresa School Hall, 445 N. Benton St.

Recommendations approved

The village board adopted several recommendations from the streets and traffic committee Monday.

- They included:
- The closing of Robertson Street east of Hicks Road.
- A speed limit of 25 miles per hour on Dorset Avenue west of Cedar Street.
- Posting of yield signs on Stuart Lane for Dorset Avenue.

Business licenses extended

The expiration date of business licenses in Palatine has been extended a month to Feb. 1.

The extension was approved by the board Monday to give the board time to review and adopt recommended changes in the business license fees. The proposed changes in the business license fees will be reviewed by the administration, finance and legislation committee of the board Jan. 13 and are expected to be adopted the same day.

The proposed change in business license fees is expected to raise a minimum of $60,000 more for the village next year.

Resignations accepted

The resignations of Charles Vargo and Edward Howarth from the Citizens Clean Streams and Flood Committee have been accepted by the board.

Letter of commendation will be given to Vargo and Howarth.

WHEELING FIREMEN clean up after a fire gutted the home of the Arthur Frey family Dec. 20. A trust fund has been set up for the family by Elk Grove Township Dist. 59, which employs Mrs. Frey as a teacher.

Fire causes $30,000 damage*Homeless family to get aid from fund set up by school

Christmas may have been dismal but the new year is looking brighter for the Arthur Frey family whose home was gutted by fire Dec. 20.

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59, which employs Catherine Frey as a teacher at Devonshire School, Des Plaines, has set up a trust fund for the family, which lost most of its possessions when an early afternoon fire struck its Wheeling home.

Arthur Perry, assistant superintendent in Dist. 59, said, "Although there is insurance to partially cover the loss there has been a considerable burden placed on the family — especially considering the time of year it occurred."

"In response to this situation we are establishing a benefit fund at the Bank of Elk Grove where people who wish to assist the family may make a contribution directly through the bank," he said.

THE FIRE started while Mrs. Frey and her daughter Mary were at Devonshire for the last day of school before winter vacation.

The fire gutted the kitchen and living room of the home, 923 Twilight Ln., and almost reached the bedrooms by the time firefighters arrived. Damage was estimated at $30,000 with heavy smoke and heat damage to the unburned portions of the house.

Wheeling Fire Chief Bernie Koeppen said the fire started in a stove. Frey is a recruiting officer for the Navy in the Palatine recruiting office. The family is staying with relatives in Des Plaines.

Sunshine Company to present concert

The Sunshine Company, a musical group of 600 high school students, will present a free concert at 8 p.m. Jan. 18 at St. Thomas of Villanova Church, 1138 E. Anderson Dr., Palatine.

The students are members of the vocal and instrumental group that originates from the South Park Bible Church on Park Ridge.

The group of high school musicians, from the Northwest suburbs, have presented concerts at Orchestra Hall in Chicago and at Wheaton College, and have recorded several albums.

Parent workshops begin next week

The Bridge Youth Service in Palatine will offer a second series of Parent Education Workshops starting next week to assist parents in understanding and communicating with their children.

The free workshop sessions will be from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Wednesdays, Jan. 8-29, at The Bridge offices, 434½ E. Northwest Hwy.

Parents can register for the workshops by calling the coordinator and Bridge counselor, Cyndie Sherly, 358-7490. The Bridge offered its first series in Parent Education Workshops in November which were attended by 18 parents of junior high and high school students.

"Each of the parents was open with the group and talked freely about the problems they have with their children. Each of them discovered something new about themselves and their kids," Mrs. Sherly said.

Mrs. Sherly said parents were able to realize that their own children were like most teenagers, and that "their problems weren't really any different from anyone else's."

The parent group was able to discuss and apply new solutions to problems they had with their kids. Parents were better able to cope with drugs, discipline, school and peer problems that their children were having, "and were in a better position to help their kids," she said.

4 convicted in Watergate coverup

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal court jury Wednesday convicted former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, Nixon White House aides H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman, and campaign lawyer Robert C. Mardian for conspiracy in the cover-up of the Watergate scandal.

After a three-month trial and exactly 15 hours of secret deliberations, the jury returned a guilty verdict against four of former President Richard M. Nixon's most trusted aides in the nation's greatest political scandal.

A fifth defendant, attorney Kenneth W. Parkinson, was acquitted.

U.S. DISTRICT Judge John J. Sirica released Mitchell, Haldeman, Ehrlichman and Mardian on personal bond pending a pre-sentencing report by probation officers.

The four stood silently as the jury filed into Sirica's courtroom at 3 p.m. CST on a quiet New Year's Day in Washington and jury foreman John A. Hoffar, a retired U.S. Park Police sergeant and registered Republican, handed over a thick brown envelope.

The court clerk asked if the jurors had reached a verdict. "Yes, they have," Hoffar responded.

The defendants showed no emotion as the verdicts were read before the hushed courtroom. Mitchell turned and whispered something to his lawyers as the clerk intoned "guilty... guilty... guilty... guilty... guilty."

LATER, MITCHELL said he would immediately file an appeal, for which he said he had "flimsy" grounds to sustain his claim of innocence.

Among the Haldeman family, only Susan Haldeman, a law student who had remained seated close to her father throughout the trial, lost her composure. She burst into tears as she left the courtroom.

sistant attorney general under Mitchell, sat alone at the defense table with his head buried in his hands. He finally left, totally distraught, in his wife's arms.

"I feel great — a new lease on life," exclaimed Parkinson, who had been indicted for conspiracy and obstruction of justice. He formerly was a lawyer for the Committee for Re-Election of the President in 1972.

MITCHELL, WHO had resigned as Nixon's campaign manager on June 30, 1972, two weeks after the fateful break-in at Democratic national headquarters at the Watergate, was convicted of obstruction of justice, conspiracy and three counts of lying to a federal grand jury and the Senate Watergate Committee.

Mitchell and the other three were convicted of conspiracy in the cover-up of the scandal, and all but Mardian also were found guilty of obstruction of justice.

Haldeman, former Nixon White House chief of staff, also was convicted of five counts of lying to the Watergate Committee. Ehrlichman, former White House domestic affairs adviser, also was convicted on two counts of lying to the Watergate grand jury.

There was no immediate reaction from San Clemente, Calif., where Nixon — who resigned the presidency in disgrace on Aug. 9 — was recuperating in seclusion from a major illness that brought him to the brink of death after he left the White House.

THE JURORS, sequestered for three months, had not been told of Nixon's illness.

Both Haldeman and Ehrlichman resigned from Nixon's staff on April 30, 1973, as the Watergate revelations began to engulf the White House. Nixon accepted their resignations with regret, calling them "two of the greatest public servants" he had ever known.

All the former Nixon aides who were convicted could be sentenced to lengthy prison terms under the maximum penalties prescribed for their offenses.

For instance, Mitchell, Haldeman and Ehrlichman each could be sentenced to 10 years in prison and $15,000 in fines as the maximum penalty for conspiracy and obstruction of justice.

Of the four, only Mitchell seemed relaxed.

"Do I have any reaction?" he said, puffing on his pipe as he repeated a reporter's question. "Can't you guess?"

Then he quipped he might "go to the

Finance panel head won't run again

by LYNN ASINOF

Trustee Kenneth V. Scholten, chairman of the finance committee, has decided not to seek reelection to the Mount Prospect Village Board.

"The 20 hours a week have become a luxury I cannot afford anymore," Scholten said in announcing his decision Tuesday not to seek a second term. "I really enjoy serving on the board, but my job and my family deserve more of my time. And I must eat before I do anything else."

Scholten, however, said the decision does not mean he will disappear from public life. He said he would probably accept a less demanding volunteer position with the village if a post were offered. Noting that he is only 30 years old, Scholten said if things work out he eventually might seek public office. He was elected to the village board in 1971.

MAYOR ROBERT D. Teichert said he also expects Scholten to remain active in the village. "It's not a swan song for Ken," Teichert said, praising the trustee for his hard work and involvement. "He is young enough so that he can come back."

Scholten, a credit analyst for Walter E. Heller and Co., is the first of five trustees to say he will not be a candidate in the April village elections. He said the decision was made last week while on vacation in South Dakota.

"It gave me a lot of time to reflect on it," Scholten said, noting he has been weighing the problem for several months. "This was a very difficult decision to make."

George B. Anderson is now the only trustee who has not announced his plans, and he has scheduled a press conference Friday.

TRUSTEES Marie L. Caylor and O. T. Gustus are running on a slate with Edward G. Wells, a 30-year-old attorney. Trustee Richard N. Hendricks will seek reelection for a four-year term as an independent.

Scholten said he plans to support Mrs. Caylor, Gustus, Anderson and Wells in the upcoming election. He said he expects Anderson to seek a second term, saying, "I wouldn't think he would be having a press conference to say he is not going to run."

At the same time, Scholten urged other residents to throw their hats in the ring. "I just feel there are a lot of people in the community who should serve," he said. "I think more people should run for public office."

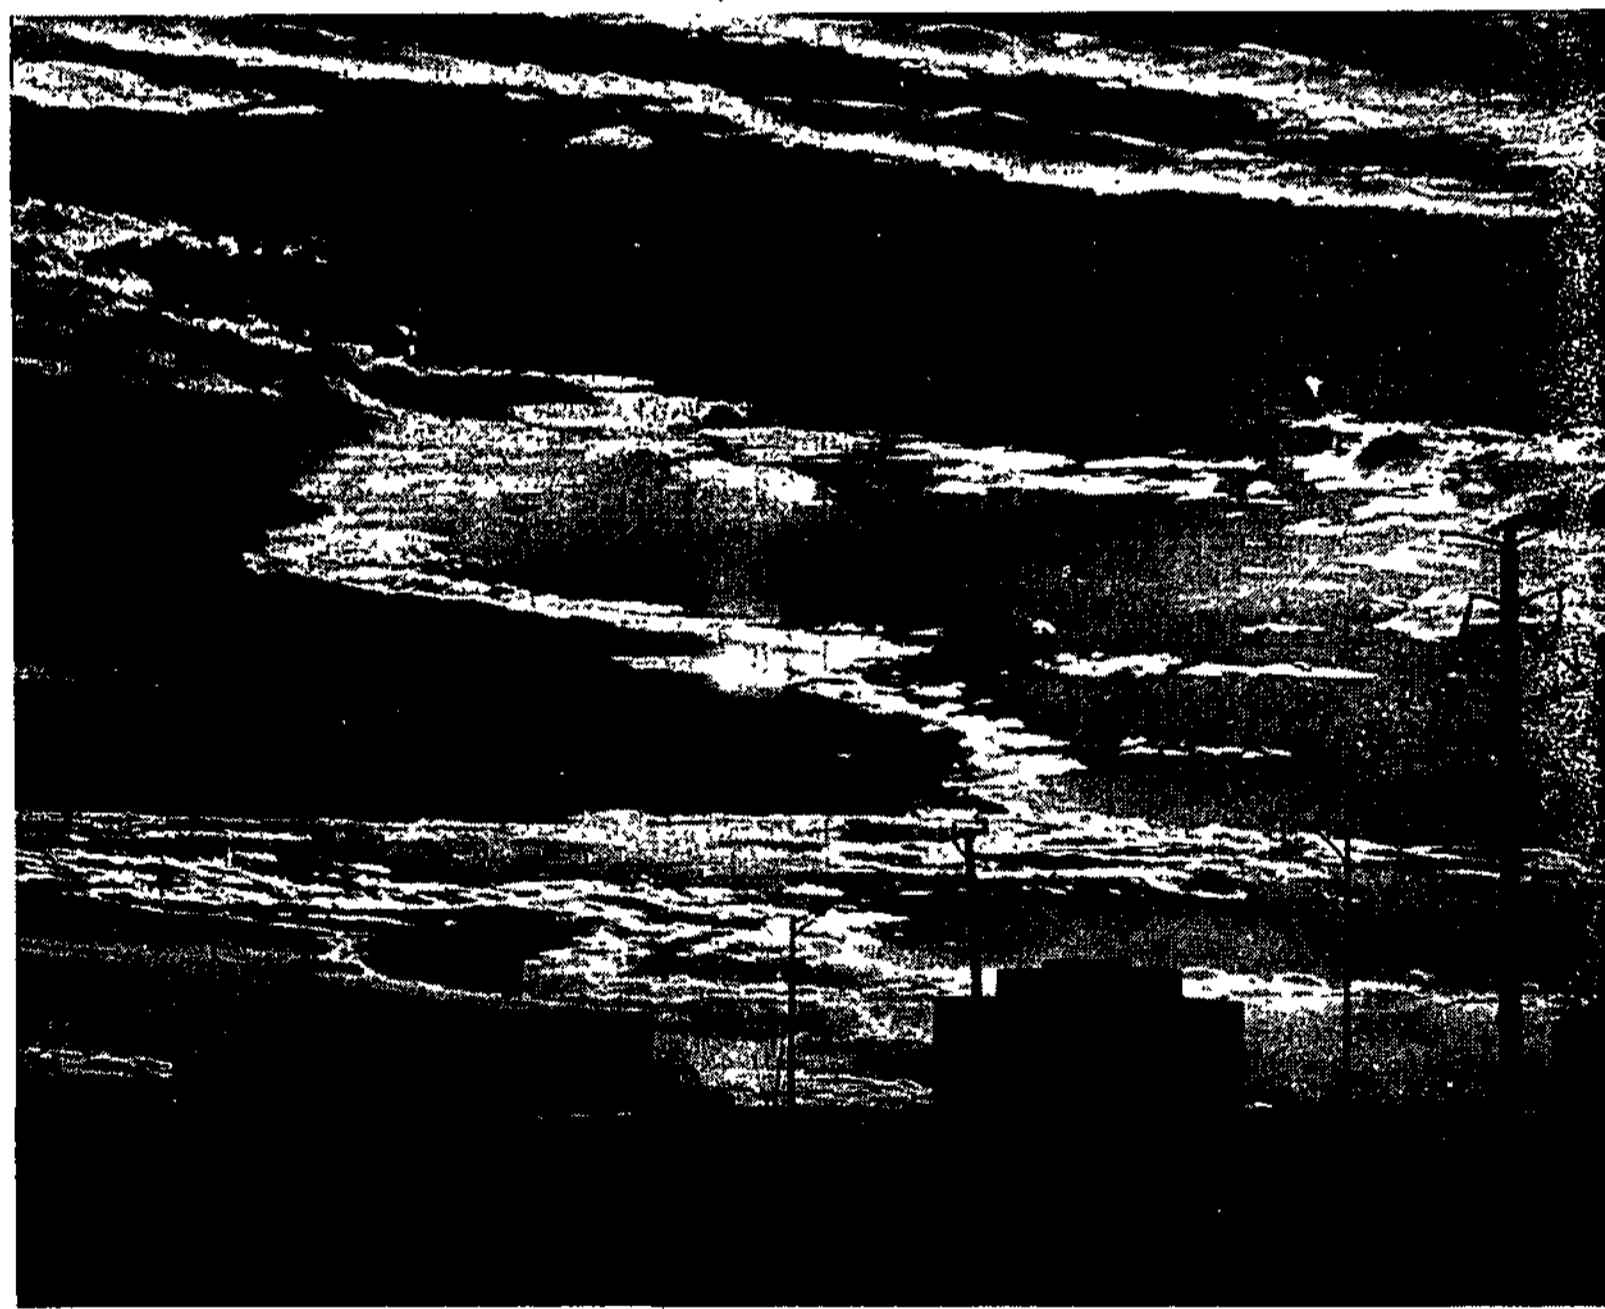

Noting that many people complain about village government, he said these people should test their ideas by putting them before the public in a village election.

TEICHERT said Scholten is "an unsung hero in the community" because he has not been given credit for many of the projects he initiated. The mayor said Scholten had a direct hand in developing the blood donor program, Prospectus, and the senior citizen programs.

"The good situation we are in tax-wise with a sound tax base and our 'AA' rating (a financial appraisal of the village by creditors) has to go back to Ken's handling of the finance committee," Teichert said.

Teichert said Scholten will be badly missed on the board because of the amount of work and study he has put into developing issues.

"He's a tough one to lose," Teichert said. "I had hoped he could be dissuaded."

Burglars hit northeast area of Mount Prospect

Mount Prospect police are urging residents of the northeast section of the village to be on the alert for suspicious persons and vehicles due to a series of burglaries during the past five days.

More than a half dozen burglaries were discovered in the area since Saturday, Sgt. Patrick Hallihan said. In most cases, but not all, the burglars have struck while the homeowners are on vacation.

In one of two burglaries reported Tuesday by police, a neighbor said she saw a car in front of the burglarized house in the 1800 block of Park Drive at 11:10 p.m. Monday and two men coming from the rear of the house. The men were carrying two white bags — possibly pillow cases — police were told.

THE SECOND reported burglary occurred in the 1500 block of Oneida Lane. In each case, police said they did not know what had been stolen from the homes. Police are withholding exact locations of the burglaries.

Earlier reported burglaries have occurred at the Robert Frost School, 1805 Aspen Dr., in the 1500 block of Mura Lane and in the 1300 block of Peachtree Lane.

"We feel they are being committed by the same individuals," Hallihan said.

Hallihan urged residents of the area to call the police immediately if they see any suspicious persons, particularly men, in the area or if they notice cars being driven in a suspicious manner.

INSTALLING NEW LIGHTS in the stairwells and tackling major cleaning projects kept the custodial staff busy at Forest View High School while students took a two-week winter vacation. It was all work and little play not only for custodians but also for administrators, who waded through paperwork in preparation for the next school year.

Time to 'wash, wax, repair, replace'

School chiefs, custodians work while pupils vacation

by DOROTHY OLIVER

While you're up to your eyebrows in holiday partying, school custodians are up to their elbows in soap and water and school administrators have had it "up to here" with paperwork.

The traditional two-week winter break, "salvation" for students, is just another couple of weeks of work for some of the people who staff area elementary and high schools.

For the custodial staff, it's a time to wash, wax, repair and replace. "We don't have that three-month summer vacation anymore to tear the whole building apart, clean it and get it back together again because of the length of summer school," said Gary Tjarks, assistant principal at Forest View High School.

WINTER VACATION is two weeks of catching up, tackling major projects — "lots of scrubbing and waxing, refinishing the gym floors, giving a general cleaning to major areas," Tjarks said.

"We save the big jobs for this time," he said. "Some of the areas in the school are used so much you can't get into them without being disruptive when the kids are here. Those are the same areas that need it the most."

Custodians are on duty 24 hours a day at Forest View but still find it hard to keep up with daily cleaning, much less major projects. "We have so much glass in this building we just can't keep it clean," Tjarks said. "I could put one man on it full time and he still wouldn't get it all done."

During vacation, Forest View is getting all new lights in the stairwell, a sink for the band room and the heater in the dishwasher is being rebuilt.

Some of the cars in the near empty parking lots in front of schools belong to administrators — principals, assistant principals, superintendents and other staffers.

"Some things are easier to do when the kids are on vacation and the phones aren't ringing or people constantly stopping in the office," said Jack Martin, Forest View principal. "We've spent a large part of our time redoing the attendance procedure; I've also worked on material preparing for an evaluation that's coming up this spring."

LEO HUNDT, a Forest View assistant principal, said he and many others in charge of instructional services, are wading through paper trying to plan scheduling and registration for next fall. "It would be simple if we just offered English 1, 2, 3 and 4. But we offer so much to the students it is very complex," he said.

Although the academic halls are relatively quiet, some parts of the schools are noisier than ever. Girls' and boys' athletic teams fill the gymnasium, some choral and band directors bring the kids back early for practice and several high schools are in the midst of play rehearsals.

Still, it is peaceful while the students are gone. "Every so often one of the little neighborhood kids comes in to take a look around," Tjarks said. "It's kind of nice having someone want to come here who doesn't have to. But they get into so many things we have to hustle them out."

"We tell them to come back when they're high school age."

Homeless family to get aid from fund set up by school

Christmas may have been dismal but the new year is looking brighter for the Arthur Frey family whose home was gutted by fire Dec. 20.

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59, which employs Catherine Frey as a teacher at Devonshire School, Des Plaines, has set up a trust fund for the family, which lost most of its possessions when an early afternoon fire struck its Wheeling home.

Arthur Perry, assistant superintendent in Dist. 59, said, "Although there is insurance to partially cover the loss there has been a considerable burden placed on the family — especially considering the time of year it occurred."

"In response to this situation we are establishing a benefit fund at the Bank of Elk Grove where people who wish to assist the family may make a contribution directly through the bank," he said.

THE FIRE started while Mrs. Frey and her daughter Mary were at Devonshire for the last day of school before winter vacation.

The fire gutted the kitchen and living room of the home, 923 Twilight Ln., and almost reached the bedrooms by the time firefighters arrived. Damage was estimated at $30,000 with heavy smoke and heat damage to the unburned portions of the house.

Wheeling Fire Chief Bernie Koeppen said the fire started in a stove.

Frey is a recruiting officer for the Navy in the Palatine recruiting office.

The family is staying with relatives in Des Plaines.

2 charged with taking tape decks

Two Palatine men caught stealing tape decks from cars in the Rolling Meadows Theater parking lots, 3295 Kirchoff Rd., Tuesday have been charged with burglary.

Gary P. Landt, 20, of 730 N. Hicks Rd., Palatine, and Raymond C. Mroczkowski, 18, of Rural Box 260, Rand Rd., Palatine, were charged by Rolling Meadows Patrolman Terry Rudolph with three counts each of thefts from automobiles. One count of burglarizing autos also was placed against each man by Mount Prospect police, and charges also were pending with the Palatine Police Dept., Rolling Meadows Chief Lewis R. Case said.

Police said radios, tape players, stereo phonograph speakers and more than 80 tape recordings were found in the auto Landt and Mroczkowski were using. The Mount Prospect thefts allegedly occurred in the Thunderbird Bowl parking lot on Rand Road, and the lot of the Randhurst Cinema, Rand and Elmhurst roads.

Although Mount Prospect police identified items believed taken from three separate autos, they charged the pair only in one case, on advice from an assistant Cook County state's attorney. Palatine police also identified items believed taken from autos in a movie theater lot there and plan to file charges against the men today.

Landt and Mroczkowski are to answer the Mount Prospect charges Jan. 8 in Mount Prospect branch of Circuit Court, and the Rolling Meadows charges Jan. 28 in Arlington Heights.

Elk Grove crews barred in Centex furnace checks

by JERRY THOMAS

Centex Homes Corp. has barred Elk Grove Village officials from accompanying inspectors hired by the firm when they inspect possibly faulty furnaces in the village.

The firm told Building Comr. Thomas Rottenbacher that the inspections being planned for some 1,700 homes are "none of our (Elk Grove's) business."

"In fact they told an inspector to 'go to hell,' when he pressed them on the issue," Rottenbacher said.

"I disagree and maintain safe furnaces are certainly this department's business and will continue to attempt to work with the builder in his inspections of the 1,700 suspect furnaces," Rottenbacher said.

Robert Franz, assistant village manager, said, "If the building commissioner is adamant that our inspectors should be in on furnace inspections as observers with the Centex-hired inspection teams, we will support him." The village manager and other administrators met to discuss the issue late Tuesday.

CENTEX HOMES CORP. hired Western Heating and Air Conditioning of Maywood to conduct an inspection and defective heat exchanger replacement program, which began Monday.

The program was initiated after independent and village studies determined furnace heat exchangers in homes built by Centex between 1962 and 1971 were failing prematurely.

Rottenbacher planned to send along village inspectors on Monday's inspections. However, the builder refused to say where they were being held.

"We want to know what they are going to do. I realize Centex does not have to obtain village permits to inspect or replace defective parts, but we want to know how they are going to go about it," Rottenbacher said.

The commissioner said, "I'm at a loss to explain why the builder would mind our help; frankly I don't see any disadvantage to our village men going along on inspections as observers."

"I BELIEVE it would help us later when those same residents call the village building department for the information," he added.

Rottenbacher said he was contacted by one resident whose furnace was inspected by the Western heating inspection team Monday.

"The inspection team told him he had a hole in his heat exchanger, advised him to turn it down low and said another crew would be back in a week to replace the defective part. He was panicked, and asked our village inspector to check the furnace also, so we did," Rottenbacher said. Rottenbacher disagrees with Centex's system of inspecting furnaces and delaying repair work when a defective system is found.

"If they insist on that type of an operation I believe residents will be continuously seeking reassurances from our village inspectors. I don't intend to turn village residents away when they are concerned about their safety and will continue to attempt to convince the builder we're better off going with their inspection teams than chasing them around later."

Centex officials again were not available for comment.

'Existing buildings key to new Des Plaines'

Architect student tells plan to keep city's identity with transit center, mall

by STEVE BROWN

Dave Thoma sees the key to revitalizing downtown Des Plaines in many of the existing buildings in the city, rather than the glass-and-brick structures that now loom in the future for the central business district.

Instead of a massive parking garage separating the heart of the downtown area, the 22-year-old Notre Dame University architecture student visualizes a low-profile transportation center and open mall.

A long-time resident of the city, Thoma took the real-world problem of downtown redevelopment back to school with him as a topic for a semester-long project.

"I WANTED to keep the identity of Des Plaines as it is now," Thoma said. In explaining the plan, he said the idea of the open mall and modern transportation center in the block along Miner Street between Lee and Pearson streets is the focal point to the over-all area.

"The train has been vital to the development of the city and we should recognize that," he said. The open space around the center is a land bridge that would link the north and south sides of the downtown area.

GENERALLY, Thoma believes his plans are consistent with the city's master plan and the work already done by the redevelopment association.

While removing the parking garage from the central downtown block, he would place two combination garage and office buildings east and west of the proposed mall.

His plan also includes the proposed Superblock office and retail complex that will be built.

Thoma hopes to carry his ideas beyond the classroom in the not-too-distant future. The former junior city official said he would like to arrange a presentation of his plans to the city council. City Clerk Eleanor Rohrbach said such a meeting can probably be arranged.

A NEW TRANSPORTATION center and a landscaped mall would highlight the Des Plaines downtown area in plans prepared by Dave Thoma.

Mikva gains airport noise fight support

U.S. Rep.-elect Abner J. Mikva, D-Ill., has begun lining up support for a proposal to give local communities some say in regulations designed to limit aircraft noise near major airports.

Mikva said he has talked with Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrel and Park Ridge Mayor Martin Butler about a proposal to create a board composed of local representatives to set regulations for aircraft noise.

He said he met with U.S. Rep.-elect Henry Hyde, R-Ill., to discuss the proposal. Hyde's west suburban district also borders O'Hare Airport.

MIKVA SAID he intends to meet with other local officials in the near future and plans to attempt to enlist bipartisan support from other congressmen from throughout the country whose districts are affected by large airports.

Under Mikva's plan an airport noise-pollution-control board would be created for every airport whenever 60 per cent of the persons living in the airport's noise impact area are not residents of the city which owns the airport.

"Chicago is far enough away from O'Hare to escape the worst of the noise," Mikva said. He noted that Congress should act on this issue because most airports receive federal funds.

THE PROPOSAL would allow the local board to set the regulations and any challenges to the rules would have to go before the Federal Aviation Administration or the Civil Aeronautics Board and could only be overruled if the rule had an adverse effect of safety or was commercially impractical.

Mikva said if his legislative proposal is approved many regulations and plans now being recommended by aircraft noise abatement groups could be developed.

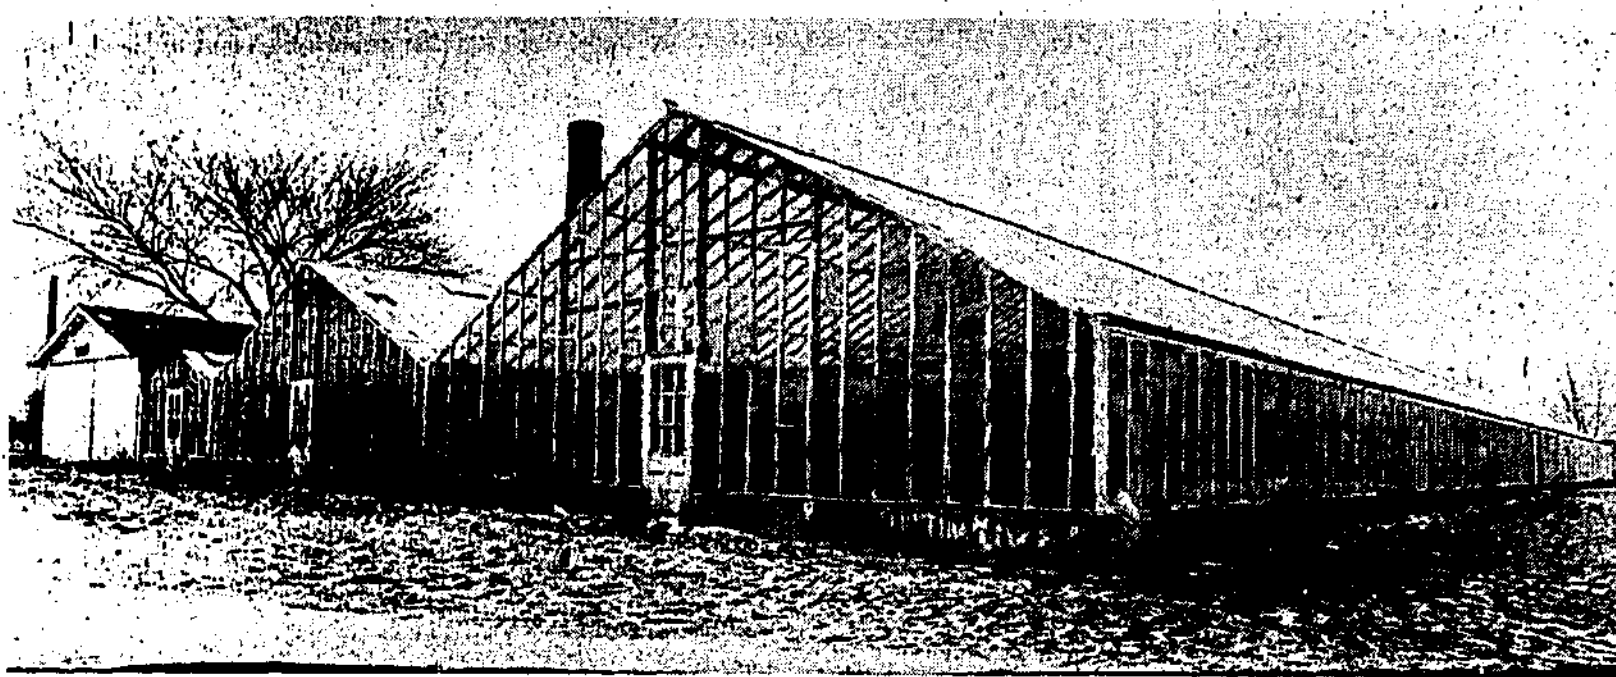

He suggested regulations might be developed to govern landing procedures, runway use, and curfews on airport operations similar to those in effect at Washington National Airport by the local boards.

Electric cord cause of rec room fire

A defective electric cord has been blamed for a fire Tuesday morning that caused an estimated $1,500 damage to a basement recreation room at the Ray Schenden home, 1801 Larch Dr., Mount Prospect.

Firemen said they were able to confine the fire, which occurred at 8:04 a.m., to the recreation room.

Firemen said one of the Schenden daughters smelled the smoke and woke up her parents. No one was injured.

IT WILL TAKE a lot of work to get this greenhouse Park back in working order for programs which are the building is missing, Park Director Thomas in the Mount Prospect Park District's Friendship scheduled to begin this fall. Although the glass in Cooper said the greenhouse is structurally sound.

Parks hope to use old greenhouse

The Mount Prospect Park District hopes to be able to use the greenhouse at Friendship Park, near Algonquin Road and Janice Street, for school and park programs next fall.

But first the park district must renovate the building. Park Director Thomas W. Cooper said this means the district must figure out what improvements are needed. He said the district is looking for someone who is knowledgeable about greenhouses so the district can prepare a project and go to bid with it.

Although Cooper admitted the building looks rundown, he said people familiar with greenhouses have told him it is "substantial."

"We need to renovate it, scrape the supports and put the glass back in," Cooper said, saying proper maintenance never has been done on the greenhouse.

The work is expected to cost more than $2,500, so the park district will have to go to bid on the project. Cooper, however, said he does not have any idea what the project actually will cost.

Although the district has owned the greenhouse property since 1970, the former owner only recently vacated the building and adjacent house. He was renting the property from the district.

COOPER SAID HE plans to explore the possibility of allowing High School Dist. 214 and the University of Illinois to use the greenhouse. A meeting is set for Jan. 7 with the two school groups.

Park board members will review plans for renovating the greenhouse before any work is done. Cooper said he expects work on the project to be done in the spring and summer months, with the building ready for operation when next winter's cold weather sets in again.

Boy, 9, shot twice

Motorists report windows hit by BBs

Arlington Heights police blame parents who gave Christmas BB guns to their children for a rash of incidents involving youngsters shooting air rifles at passing cars, and at each other.

At least two Arlington Heights motorists have reported their car windows shot out this week, police said. In both cases the cars were traveling along Euclid Avenue.

A 9-year-old Arlington Heights boy was shot once in the head and again in the shoulder by another youth while the two were shooting air rifles in a field south of Dundee Road.

Firing a BB or pellet gun in the village is as illegal as the discharge of any other cartridge-loading firearm, said Arlington Heights Police Capt. Jack Aldrich. The only exceptions are on police-approved indoor target ranges.

"If they use them out of doors, they're asking for trouble. And if the parents give them out as Christmas presents, then they're asking for trouble," Aldrich said.

"If a kid gets a BB gun he's going to shoot it. And what's he going to shoot it at? Cars, birds, windows and people," he said.

SUSAN GLAWE, 810 N. Drury Ln., told police a pellet or BB shattered the vent window on the passenger side of her car earlier this week as she was driving along Euclid Avenue near Waterman Avenue.

A second Arlington Heights woman, Lisa Kaskie, 228 S. Kennicott Dr., said the passenger window in her car was hit by a pellet Monday night on Euclid near Forrest Avenue.

In both cases, police checked the area, but failed to find the gun-toting youth.

The 9-year-old boy told police he was shot by an unidentified youth late Sunday afternoon while shooting in a field south of Dundee Road just east of Betty Lane in unincorporated Cook County. The boy was treated and released at Northwest Community Hospital.

Homeless family to get help from school trust fund

Christmas may have been dismal but the new year is looking brighter for the Arthur Frey family whose home was gutted by fire Dec. 20.

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59, which employs Catherine Frey as a teacher at Devonshire School, Des Plaines, has set up a trust fund for the family, which lost most of its possessions when an early afternoon fire struck its Wheeling home.

Arthur Perry, assistant superintendent in Dist. 59, said, "Although there is insurance to partially cover the loss there has been a considerable burden placed on the family — especially considering the time of year it occurred."

"In response to this situation we are establishing a benefit fund at the Bank of Elk Grove where people who wish to assist the family may make a contribution directly through the bank," he said.

THE FIRE started while Mrs. Frey and her daughter Mary were at Devonshire for the last day of school before winter vacation.

The fire gutted the kitchen and living room of the home, 923 Twilight Ln., and almost reached the bedrooms by the time firefighters arrived. Damage was estimated at $30,000 with heavy smoke and heat damage to the unburned portions of the house.

Wheeling Fire Chief Bernie Koeppen said the fire started in a stove.

Frey is a recruiting officer for the Navy in the Palatine recruiting office.

The family is staying with relatives in Des Plaines.

Burglars get $2,500, goods from salon

Martiniere Coiffures, a beauty salon at Rand Road and Kennicott Drive, was robbed of an estimated $2,500 in currency, checks and equipment by burglars who entered the shop through a rooftop ventilator.

In addition to nearly $300 that was taken from the shop's cash register and a locked file drawer, the burglars took a number of hair dryers and 80 to 90 hypodermic syringes used by the shop's owner, Tom Buccichaneri, who is a diabetic and used the syringes for insulin injections, police report.

Police theorize the intruders climbed to the roof of the shop by stacking empty milk cases from a nearby White Hen grocery store. Once on the roof, the burglars squeezed through a ventilation duct and kicked out interior ceiling tile to gain entry to the shop.

Police report the break-in occurred

Sunday night or early Monday morning. A burglar alarm for the shop was not working at the time, police said.

Mikva gets support in airport noise fight

U.S. Rep.-elect Abner J. Mikva, D-10th, has begun lining up support for a proposal to give local communities some say in regulations designed to limit aircraft noise near major airports.

Mikva said he has talked with Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrel and Park Ridge Mayor Martin Butler about a proposal to create a board composed of local representatives to set regulations for aircraft noise.

He said he met with U.S. Rep.-elect Henry Hyde, R-6th, to discuss the proposal. Hyde's west suburban district also borders O'Hare Airport.

Mikva said he intends to meet with other local officials in the near future and plans to attempt to enlist bipartisan support from other congressmen from throughout the country whose districts are affected by large airports.

Under Mikva's plan an airport noise-pollution-control board would be created for every airport whenever 80 per cent of the persons living in the airport's noise impact area are not residents of the city which owns the airport.

"Chicago is far enough away from O'Hare to escape the worst of the noise," Mikva said. He noted that Congress should act on this issue because most airports receive federal funds.

THE PROPOSAL would allow the local board to set the regulations and any challenges to the rules would have to go before the Federal Aviation Administration or the Civil Aeronautics Board and could only be overruled if the rule had an adverse effect of safety or was commercially impractical.

Mikva said if his legislative proposal is approved many regulations and plans now being recommended by aircraft noise abatement groups could be developed.

How long does it take to get a Social Security number for the first time?

An application to get a Social Security number for the first time will take four to five weeks to be processed. Therefore, you should apply several weeks before you need a number. After being reviewed in the Arlington Heights office, your application will be sent to Baltimore where it will be screened against the central files. Original numbers are issued by the central office in Baltimore.

However, a recent amendment to the Social Security law requires that persons applying for a Social Security number for the first time must present evidence of age, identity and citizenship or lawful alien status. The processing of your application cannot begin until such proof is submitted. For further information contact the Arlington Heights office at 120 W. Eastman, or call 255-7512 (toll free).

He suggested regulations might be developed to govern landing procedures, runway use, and curfews on airport operations similar to those in effect at Washington National Airport by the local boards.

'Existing buildings key to new Des Plaines'

Architect student tells plan to keep city's identity with transit center, mall

by STEVE BROWN

Dave Thoma sees the key to revitalizing downtown Des Plaines in many of the existing buildings in the city, rather than the glass-and-brick structures that will boom in the future for the central business district.

Instead of a massive parking garage separating the heart of the downtown area, the 22-year-old Notre Dame University architecture student visualizes a w-profile transportation center and a mall.

A long-time resident of the city, Thoma took the real-world problem of downtown development back to school with him as a topic for a semester-long project.

"I WANTED to keep the identity of Des Plaines as it is now," Thoma said. In explaining the plan, he said the idea of the open mall and modern transportation center in the block along Miner Street between Lee and Pearson streets is the focal point to the over-all area.

"The train has been vital to the development of the city and we should recognize that," he said. The open space around the center is a land bridge that would link the north and south sides of the downtown area.

Thoma believes the building of a parking garage there would be a mistake because it would form a barrier.

GENERALLY, Thoma believes his plans are consistent with the city's master plan and the work already done by the redevelopment association.

While removing the parking garage from the central downtown block, he would place two combination garage and office buildings east and west of the proposed mall.

His plan also includes the proposed Superblock office and retail complex that will be built.

Thoma hopes to carry his ideas beyond the classroom in the not-too-distant future. The former junior city official said he would like to arrange a presentation of his plans to the city council. City Clerk Eleanor Rohrbach said such a meeting can probably be arranged.

A NEW TRANSPORTATION center and a landscaped mall would highlight the Des Plaines downtown area in plans prepared by Dave Thoma.

Elk Grove Village

Work crews barred from furnace checks

by JERRY THOMAS

Centex Homes Corp. has barred Elk Grove Village officials from accompanying inspectors hired by the firm when they inspect possibly faulty furnaces in the village.

The firm told Building Comr. Thomas Rettenbacher that the inspections being planned for some 1,700 homes are "none of our (Elk Grove's) business."

"In fact they told an inspector to 'go to hell,' when he pressed them on the sue," Rettenbacher said.

"I disagree and maintain safe furnaces is certainly this department's business and will continue to attempt to work with the builder in his inspections of the 1,700 respect furnaces," Rettenbacher said.

Robert Franz, assistant village manager, said, "If the building commissioner adamant that our inspectors should be on furnace inspections as observers with the Centex-hired inspection teams, we will support him." The village manager and other administrators met to discuss the issue late Tuesday.

CENTEX HOMES CORP. hired Western Heating and Air Conditioning of Maywood to conduct an inspection and defective heat exchanger replacement program which began Monday.

The program was initiated after independent and village studies determined furnace heat exchangers in homes built by Centex between 1962 and 1971 were failing prematurely.

Rettenbacher planned to send along village inspectors on Monday's inspections. However, the builder refused to say where they were being held.

"We want to know what they are going to do. I realize Centex does not have to obtain village permits to inspect or replace defective parts, but we want to know how they are going to go about it," Rettenbacher said.

The commissioner said, "I'm at a loss to explain why the builder would mind our help; frankly I don't see any disadvantage to our village men, going along on inspections as observers."

"I BELIEVE it would help us later when those same residents call the village building department for the information," he added.

Rettenbacher said he was contacted by one resident whose furnace was inspected by the Western heating inspection team Monday.

"The inspection team told him he had a hole in his heat exchanger, advised him to turn it down low and said another crew would be back in a week to replace the defective part. He was panicked, and asked our village inspector to check the furnace also, so we did," Rettenbacher said. Rettenbacher disagrees with Centex's system of inspecting furnaces and delaying repair work when a defective system is found.

"If they insist on that type of an operation I believe residents will be continuously seeking reassurances from our village inspectors. 'I don't intend to turn village residents away when they are concerned about their safety and will continue to attempt to convince the builder we're better off going with their inspection teams than chasing them around later.'"

Home-help report July 31

When I decided to go back to work, I hired a woman to do housework for me. I know I have to make a report to Social Security, so I've been keeping a record of her wages and deducting Social Security contributions ever since she started in April. When is this report due?

If you have paid your housekeeper $50 or more in cash during the past calendar quarter, April through June, you must send the report of her wages and the Social Security contributions due on them to the Internal Revenue Service by July 31. If you don't have a copy of the wage report form, "Employer's Quarterly Tax Return for Household Employees (for Social Security)," you can get one at any Internal Revenue Service office.

Although the draft has been discontinued, young men still must register with the Selective Service office nearest them when they reach 18. Failure to do so constitutes a criminal act.

Richard M. Hall, supervisor of Elk Grove Township, has announced that the township has now been authorized to register youths reaching 18 years of age. It is not necessary that they live within the township.

Frances Altenburg, Margaret Blaschke, Elvira Grandt and Nita Stamm, the four full-time staff workers for the township, have been appointed supplemental registrars for the Selective Service System.

Burglars hit offices here; get $16,500 in equipment

A five-story office building at 999 South Ave. was burglarized Monday with typewriters and calculators valued at more than $16,500 reported missing, police said Tuesday.

Eight companies with offices in the building were hit in the burglary, although one office, Tallman Wenger Inc., reported nothing was taken. All the offices were on the first and second floors of the building.

Police said in each case a pry tool was used to open the front door of the offices and electric typewriters and calculators were taken.

Offices hit in the burglary included East North America, missing $1,973 worth of equipment; Trammel Crow, missing $2,223 worth of equipment; Six Flags, Inc., hit for $1,273 worth of equipment; Sebrite, reporting $7,762 worth of equipment missing; Respiratory Care Inc., missing equipment worth $820; CR Sales Corp., missing equipment worth $123; and M&E Alstot, March and Guilford Inc., reporting equipment valued at $1,960 missing.

The incident marked the second time in the past five weeks that a large office building has been burglarized. Over the four-day Thanksgiving holiday, an office building at 2500 Devon Ave., also reported a series of burglaries with the same type of equipment taken.

Police are investigating a possible connection between the incidents.
